Mammoth Snowstorm Cripples Nation's Northwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A mammoth snowstorm packing deadly winds churned through the Northwest today, driving temperatures far below zero in some areas and closing schools and roads.

The powerful storm — described by the Weather Bureau as almost unprecedented for late autumn — covered the entire northwestern quarter of the nation.

A Weather Bureau meteorologist in Helena, Mont., said "venturing out of doors is considered dangerous unless a person is thoroughly prepared."

A van carrying nine prisoners from the county jail in Seattle, Wash., to a reformatory tipped over on a snowy highway, but officials took no chances — a tow truck righted the vehicle with the prisoners still inside.

Robert L. Brown Jr. was awakened by the howling winds in Bellevue, a suburb of Seattle. He rushed outside and moved his new station wagon from under his trees. But two of his neighbors' trees tumbled — one on his car and the other on his house.

Schools were closed in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Washington State.

Visibility was cut to zero in blowing snow in some areas.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for Montana, Wyoming and North and South Dakota.

Winds at 35 miles per hour made life miserable in Cut Bank, Mont., where the temperature was —27, Tuesday. Unofficial lows in Montana included—40 in Havre and —38 at Summit, a mountain-top community. Great Falls had a December record low of —24.

Schools were closed in north central Montana and U.S. 12 was blocked by blowing, drifting snow in the northwestern part of the state. Wind gusts hit 70 m.p.h. at Livingston, north of Yellowstone Park.

Huge clouds of dust floated over the plains of Kansas and Colorado. U.S. 87 north of Denver was closed for a period Tuesday after a series of auto accidents caused by dust. One pileup on Valley Highway in Adams County involved 12 to 15 cars.

Residents in Bear Valley, southeast of Denver, reported up to 4 inches of dirt accumulation. The Colorado Department of Agriculture said the winter wheat crop was hit hard. It also reported a shortage of cattle forage.

The freakish winds in Eastern and northeastern Colorado reached gusts of 95 m.p.h. at one point. The low in Colorado was a paralyzing —31 in Alamosa.

Winds of more than 80 m.p.h. toppled a brick wall in a residential section of Cheyenne, Wyo. The snowfall in Wyoming ranged from 6 to 12 inches, but

U. S. Could Inflict 100 Million 'Quick Casualties' on Soviets

By TOM OCHILTREE

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said today further large-scale investments in strategic nuclear weapons are unnecessary because the United States possesses enough power to bring 100 million quick casualties to the Soviet Union.

In such an all-out nuclear exchange the Russians would expect to inflict the same number of deaths on the American population, he told the annual winter ministerial meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Massive as such a shock would be to either the United States or the Soviet Union, it would be even worse if a full nuclear strike hit the closely packed countries of Western Europe, conference sources quoted the secretary as saying.

McNamara, by implication, suggested there was no need for separate nuclear deterrent sys-

Hair-Raising Discovery Leaves Doc No Peace

By LEE LINDER

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — What happens to a doctor who may have discovered a way to grow hair on bald heads?

He is pestered for samples of the alleged magic cream. He is besieged with requests to act as guinea pigs. His telephone rings and rings, even past midnight. His mail reaches movie star proportions.

Dr. Christopher M. Papa, 32, a resident in dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, is in that predicament — and doesn't like it. He is an angry young man who prefers the anonymity of his tiny, slide-cluttered laboratory.

"It's getting so I can't get any real work done," he said in an interview, admittedly anxious to resume his primary interest: the study of the causes and effects of aging skin and how to restore its youth.

"Growing hair on a bald head happened accidentally," Papa said with a sigh and shrug.

"It was a by-product of other

Omaha Mayor Arrested in Bribery Case

OMAHA (AP) — The mayor of Omaha, James Dworak, was arrested today on a grand jury indictment charging him with conspiracy to receive a bribe, soliciting a bribe and receiving a bribe.

Also indicted was City Councilman Ernest Adams and three other persons. The names of the three were not revealed immediately since they had not yet been arrested.

The indictment returned by a Douglas County grand jury in Omaha said:

"The mayor of the city of Omaha did receive a promise for payment of money in the sum of $25,000 from John B. Coleman, with the intent of him —the said James J. Dworak — to execute or to refrain from executing a power in him vested with partiality or favor in regard to the zoning application of John B. Coleman."

The indictment said alleged incidents took place on or about the 9th, 10th and 14th days of September.

The grand jury began considering allegations made by Coleman on Nov. 16. The grand jury recessed Tuesday at noon after 20 days in session.

Adams was indicted on count of conpiring to receive a bribe, receiving a bribe and soliciting a bribe.

Bullet-Proof Community Center Planned

NEW YORK (AP) — An architect has unveiled plans for a $250,000 bullet-proof community center in Meridian, Miss., as a memorial to the three civil rights workers murdered in that state last summer.

Architect Paul Willen told a news conference Tuesday that funds to construct the L-shaped masonry building will be raised by the Congress of Racial Equality as a memorial to Michael Schwerner, James Chaney and Andrew Goodman.

Willen said the structure will have high walls on three sides to "withstand gunfire."

Jackie Robinson, former baseball star and co-director of the drive for the center's building funds, said $22,000 had been collected.

Trianon Will Be Moved to Denver Area

The Trianon will be dismantled and moved to a site near Denver because of the second donation Tuesday from a Colorado woman.

A last-minute donation of $35,000 by a Morrison housewife meant success today in a drive to raise $175,000 to move the Trianon Museum from Colorado Springs to a site near Denver.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hubbard, 53, made the gift at a First National Bank office in the presence of John W. Metzger, president of the Trianon Foundation.

It was the third contribution by Mrs. Hubbard bringing her share to $70,000. She said the money came from an inheritance from her mother, the late Mrs. Bertha Allen Gillett of Colorado Springs. She died in 1962 at the age of 87.

Metzger said plans will get under way at once for dismantling the Trianon in the Broadmoor area and transporting it and its estimated $1 million worth of art objects to a new site.

He said he hopes to have the museum reassembled and ready for visitors by May 1, but emphasized no exact site has been chosen.

"I shall appoint an advisory committee to help the foundation select the most desirable location from among the many offers that have been made," Metzger said.

He said the LaPlant-Adair Co. of Indianapolis made the $175,000 bid to dismantle the museum, haul by truck to the new site and reassemble it.

During the removal period, Metzger said, some of the art treasures may be displayed in the Denver Art Museum or elsewhere. The 18 acres of the present Trianon site will be used for residences.

Slinger Found Innocent by Insanity Reason

Richard James Slinger was found innocent by reason of insanity in District Court Tuesday by a jury which returned a directed verdict at the order of Judge William M. Calvert.

Slinger, 22, 320 Bijou St., had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon. He was alleged to have attacked Thomas G. Arnold and William H. Thompson, both of Ft. Carson, with a .22 caliber revolver Aug. 2.

Dr. Richard L. Conde, psychiatrist attached to the Emory J. Brady Hospital, testified he examined the defendant in County Jail in October. Outlining the defendant's past history, the doctor said he had been in a number of institutions, correctional, industrial and state hospitals in California.

The witness said that when Slinger was 12 years old he attacked a 12-year old girl and beat her up so badly that he was remanded to the state hospital for treatment. His history was filled with "vicious and sadistic acts." He heard voices, suffered from hallucinations and believed he was constantly being persecuted, the doctor told the court.

Mistrial Motion Filed in Martz Murder Trial

A motion for a mistrial and for an order to set aside the jury verdict in the case of Frank William Martz Sr., convicted of second degree murder Dec. 5 was filed in District Court Tuesday.

A hearing has been set for Friday.

Counsel for Martz, Wayne Hodson and Dave Morris, base their motion on the grounds that the jurors made and received telephone calls during the course of the trial and that this action violated a direct order from Judge David W. Enoch.

It is also alleged that during the trial the bailiffs in charge of the jury violated their oaths by permitting jurors to make telephone calls and personal communication with others not authorized by the court.

A total of 57 out-going calls are listed and an unknown number of incoming ones.

The only telephone calls in which names are listed are John Triguero, a District Court bailiff who telephoned his wife Edith who was serving as a juror.

Hodson and Morris also seek

Sec. Hodges Quits Cabinet; Successor Named

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced today the resignation of Luther H. Hodges as secretary of commerce and named as his successor New Jersey industrialist John T. Connor.

Connor, who will take over the commerce post Jan. 15, has been president of the New Jersey drug manufacturing firm of Merck & Co. Inc. since 1955.

The executive, 50, was active in business groups supporting Johnson during the presidential election campaign.

Hodges has been secretary of commerce since the start of the Kennedy administration in January 1960. He told Johnson he had planned to remain in the post only four years because he soon will be 67 years old.

Italian Spacecraft Sent Into Orbit in America

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Italian spacecraft dubbed San Marcos I and stamped "Launched in the U.S.A." is whirling around the earth every 95 minutes.

Italians are jubilant over the success of the 254-pound satellite which was rocketed into orbit by an Italian crew late Tuesday from the U.S. space agency's station at Wallops Island, Va.

With the space achievement, Italy becomes the third nation to orbit a satellite. Only the United States and the Soviet Union had orbited space vehicles previously.

"Now Italy has joined a select group of nations that have placed a satellite into orbit," said Sergio Fenoaltea, Italian ambassador to the United States. He thanked the United States for its assistance.

Deputy space administrator Dr. Hugh L. Dryden was the top U.S. representative present.

For the crew of 75 Italians, the successful launching capped an effort of more than two years, during which they had trained at various U.S. bases.

Manhattan Lot Is Six Inches Wide

NEW YORK (AP) — Edward Horowitz, 81, bought a 150-foot-long lot in midtown Manhattan at a city auction for $25.

Gooch Testifies Death of Wife Was Accidental

Richard Olon Gooch testified Tuesday that he first remembered all the details surrounding the death of his wife when a doctor injected him with sodium amytal, sometimes commonly called "the truth serum," Dec. 5.

The death of Gloria Dean Gooch was accidental, the defendant testified before the jury. She had threatened to kill him and then herself and had screamed, "Kill me, kill me."

This new testimony came Tuesday afternoon when counsel for the defense was examining Gooch, charged with the June 13 shooting of his 32-year old wife at the couple's home, 705 Main St.

On Monday a psychologist, Dr. Harold Hobbs had testified that the defendant's personality was such that under severe emotional stress he could be subject to amnesia. Throughout the trial several witnesses have

Colorado May Get Atomic Power Plant

DENVER (UPI)—An official of the Public Service Co. of Colorado revealed Tuesday that his firm may well consider building a giant atomic power plant in Colorado in the next 15 years.

PSC President Robert Person made the remark following a report that Denver might be the site for a $70 million nuclear fuel Federal Power Commission plant in the future.

Several other cities in the United States also were listed on the report.

"We couldn't at this time begin to say a plant of this type is in the imminent future," Person said. Person said such a plant would be constructed only after it becomes economically feasible.

He said he expected future advances in the nuclear field to bring such a project to a position of genuine consideration.

Snowfall on Watershed Shows Boost

A lot of snow fell on Colorado Springs' watershed in November, compared with a year ago — but December has not produced any large snowstorms.

Snowfall on Pikes Peak totaled as much as 21.5 inches in November with a moisture content of 1.68 inches, according to Department of Public Utilities reports.

Last year, maximum November snowfall measured by the department on the famous mountain was five inches with about half an inch of moisture.

However, as of today, only four inches of snow containing a little more than a quarter of an inch of precipitation has fallen in December on the Peak.

During all of December 1963, snowdepth was measured at 26

Negotiation Being Sought With Viet Red Attackers

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — There is a great deal more politics than war behind the impending bombing of Communist bases and supply routes in Laos and North Viet Nam.

Real purpose of these "limited and carefully controlled" air attacks is to induce the Reds to negotiate, and not to expand this protracted and increasingly costly conflict.

In other words, special intensified military pressure is to be exerted to bring about a particular diplomatic objective.

This explains the administration's apparent backing and filling on such bombing strikes; one day talking tough in on- and off-the-record comments, the next soft-pedaling the same way.

Publicly, President Johnson wants to convey the impression of pursuing a forceful policy. At the same time, he is anxious to avoid precipitating a general war.

It's a risky gamble, and whether he can get away with it remains to be seen.

That's the way the "new strategy," devised during Ambassador Maxwell Taylor's recent "consultations" here, was expounded by a top White House assistant to a group of congressional leaders. At an undisclosed briefing, he told them:

"The President wants to apply enough military pressure on the North Vietnamese to get them to the negotiating table. We're going to have to toss a few firecrackers up north to ascertain whether it's possible to bring about a confrontation that

Over Million in Funds Okayed For Hospitals

Over one million dollars has been approved for hospital construction in the Colorado Springs-Florence area, it was announced this morning.

An allocation of nearly $1.3 million in federal funds was approved by the State Board of Health for the local hospitals as well as ones in Fairplay and Alamosa.

St. Joseph's in Florence was awarded one of the two largest grants of $400,000. The other was for the Alamosa Community Hospital.

St. Francis here will receive $373,436; Penrose, $174,864, and the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center, $174,864.

Grants to St. Joseph's will go toward a $1.3 million 40-bed hospital; to St. Francs and Penrose for a diagnostic and treatment center, and to the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center for additional construction.

Other funds were $142,000 for the Park County Hospital at Fairplay and $400,000 to the Alamosa Community Hospital.

Livy's famous History of Rome covered 142 books, but only 35 of these are in existence today.

How Children Fail

Copywright 1964 Pitman Publishing Co.
(Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

We teachers, from primary school through graduate school, all seem to be hard at work at the business of making it look as if our students know more than the really do. Our standing among other teachers, or of our school among other schools, depends on how much our students seem to know; not how much they really know, or how effectively they can use what they know, or even whether they can use it at all.

When I was in my last year at school, we seniors stayed around an extra week to cram for college boards. Our ancient history teacher told us, on the basis of long experience, taht we would do well to prepare ourselves to write for twenty minutes on each of a list of fifteen topics that he gave us. We studied his list. When the boards came, we found that his list comfortably covered every one of the eight questions we were asked. So we got credit for knowing a great deal about ancient history, which we did not, he got credit for being a good teacher, which he was not, the school got credit for being, as it was, a good place to go if you wanted to be sure of getting into a prestige college. The fact was that I knew very little about anicent history; that much of what I thought I knew was misleading or false and that two months later I could not have come close to passing the history college boards, or even a much easier test.

I have played the game myself. When I began teaching I thought, naively, that the purpose of a test was to test, to find out what the students knew about the course. It didn't take me long to find out that if I gave my students surprise tests, covering the whole material of the course to date, almost everyone flunked. This made me look bad, and posed problems for the school. I learned that the only way to get a hespectable percentage of decent or even passing grades was to announce tests well in advance, tell in some detail what material they would cover, and hold plenty of advance practice in the kind of questions that would be asked, which is called review. I later learned that teachers do this everywhere. We know that what we are doing is not really honest, but we dare not be the first to stop, and we try to justify or excuse ourselves by saying that, after all, it does no particular harm. But we are wrong; it does great harm.

It does harm, first of all, because it is dishonest and the students know it. My friends and I, breezing through the ancient history boards, knew very well that a trick was being played on someone, we were not quite sure on whom. Our success on the boards was due, not to our knowledge of ancient history, which was scanty, but to our teacher's skill as a predicter, which was great. Even children much younger than we were learn that what most teachers want and reward are not knowledge and understanding but the appearance of them. The smart and able ones, at least, come to look on school as something of a racket, which it is their job to learn how to beat.

Not only does the examination racket do harm by making students feel that a search for honest understanding is beside the point; it does further harm by discouraging those few students who go on making that search in spite of everything. The student who will not be satisfied merely to know "right answers" or recipes for getting them will not have an easy time in school, particularly since facts and recipes may be all that his teachers know. They tend to be impatient or even angry with the student who wants to know, not just what happened, but why it happened as it did and not some other way.

In short, our "tell-'em-and-test-'em" way of teaching leaves most students increasingly confused, aware that their academic success rests on shaky foundations and convinced that school is mainly a place where you follow meaningless procedures to get meaningless answers to meaningless questions.

Quasi-Stellar Object Sends News to Earth

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Exciting news has just reached our planet earth.

It may be tidings of the birth of a mysterious object out toward the edge of the universe.

For perhaps five billion years the news has been racing through space at the speed of 186,000 miles per second.

The courier was light waves, produced by an apparent gigantic explosion long ago.

The news was picked up only three weeks ago in a picture taken with the giant 200-inch telescope on Mt. Palomar in California.

The picture showed that something had happened suddenly since a last look in that particular direction of the universe in 1962.

The distant light — still streaming toward earth — may be disclosing the story of the birth of one of the most puzzling of all heavenly bodies, says Dr. Allan R. Sandage of the Mt. Palomar and Mt. Wilson observatories.

The objects are known as quasi-stellar forces, abbreviated to QSF. They are an entirely new source and kind of energy in the universe.

They simply do not follow the rules or laws of physical forces that astronomers and other scientists have so far figured out.

They know why our sun keeps burning. They know that our sun is one of about 200 billion stars in a great family or galaxy — the Milky Way. They know there are billions of other huge galaxies. They have many ideas as to how stars and planets and galaxies were formed, and guesses about how the universe began.

But none can yet explain why the QSF's emit such prodigious energy — why they are trillions of times brighter than our own sun, why they broadcast so much radio energy, how or why they came about.

Only about 34 quasi-stellar sources have been identified so far, just within the last few years. Most of these were detected within the last year.

So the exciting news is that now perhaps — Dr. Sandage stresses the perhaps — a QSF is being seen in the process of being formed.

Dr. Sandage described the discovery to the second Texas Symposium of Relativistic Astrophysics, and amplified in an interview.

The studies may show that a QSF is formed by an explosion within the nucleus or center of a galaxy, he said. On the other hand, the newly observed light waves could represent only a temporary flare within the galaxy.

This object, known as C3-2, has been known to be a source of strong radio signals, as are other QSF's. But it has not stepped up its output of radio noise.

In 1951 and later, a sky search showed C3-2 to be visible only in faint red light. This was taken to mean it was a rather ordinary distant galaxy.

This year's new look with the 200-inch telescope brought the surprise. Now it was suddenly visible in blue light, as well as under a red filter. The sudden blue light visibility signified an explosion.

Dr. Sandage sait it was a highly lucky chance for him and Philip Vernon, a young research student from Paris, France, to have made the discovery. They checked with Dr. Willem Luyten at the Univeristy of Minnesota, who had photographed C3-2 two years ago. His pictures did not show anything visible in blue light.

CANINE COLLAR TYCOON

MAYSVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — Ben F. O'Kelley has been in the business of outfitting dogs with collars for 30 years. O'Kelley is the owner and sole operator of "The Dog Collar Works," a sometimes thriving business operated in the basement of his home.

"A feller can go broke in this business about half the time," O'Kelley said. To supplement his income from "The Dog Collar Works," O'Kelley owns some land, raises chickens and "a few old cows." O'Kelley, who sells his collars by mail order, said he has a seasonal business with most orders coming in from August to March.

The insurance business in the U.S., including life, health and property - liability insurance, provides about 1,200,000 jobs, the Insurance Information Institute reports.

President Sends Christmas Greetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has sent members of the U.S. armed forces a special Christmas greeting expressing "great pride and deep appreciation" for their "steadfast devotion and readiness to defend our nation's heritage."

"As we approach this holy season," Johnson said Tuesday, "all is not serene.

"In Southeast Asia, American servicemen are giving their lives so that others may be free to shape their destiny.

"In this time of both joy and sorrow, it is my hope that every man and woman in uniform will realize the essential nature of the task he or she is performing."

Johnson said he wanted to express "my special thanks" to those who must be separated from their families during the holiday season.

Sailor Pleads Guilty Of Simple Assault

NEW YORK (AP) — A sailor charged with attempted rape has pleaded guilty to simple assault on a secretary.

The case attracted national attention because the secretary, Arlene Del Fava, 27, defended herself with a switchblade knife. An illegal weapons charge was filed against her but a grand jury refused to indict her.

Her assailant, Harold Modell, 21, a Navy apprentice fireman from Queens, was arrested at a hospital where he had gone for treatment of stab wounds.

Snowfall on Watershed Shows Boost

inches at the Ruxton Hydro Plant three miles up the east face of the Peak. It had a moisture content of 1.09 inches, according to Water Superintendent Jack McCullough's records.

On the city's Blue River water system, on the western slope of the Continental Divide north of Fairplay and Alma, snowfall in November of this year totaled 68.5 inches, compared to 11 inches for November 1963.

So far in December snowfall has totaled 13 inches on the Blue River watershed.

The heaviest snowfall on city watersheds usually is in the first part of the year.

The Blue River snowpack was 389 inches for the 1956-57 winter; 389 inches in 1956-57; 355 inches in 1961-62; and only 192 inches last winter.

Generally, the city is in "fair" shape for water storage for this time of year, according to the Utilities Department.

Going into the present month, reservoirs were filled at 52 per cent of capacity, holding approximately 5.5 billion gallons. Last year they were filled at 44.6 per cent of capacity.

The use of underground water this year, from three sources, has saved some of the storage in the mountain reservoirs. In some months, as much as 30 per cent of Colorado Springs' water consumption was from wells.

Water use this November was 502.8 million gallons, or 16.6 million gallons per day.

In November 1963 water usage totaled 514.3 million gallons, or 17.1 million gallons per day.

The 5½ mile Homestake Tunnel, to bring additional western slope water to Colorado Springs, is reported to be 54 per cent completed through the Continental Divide.

She is survived by a daughter Mrs. Donald Dieter; a grandson, Richard Dieter and a granddaughter, Mrs. Kenneth Baker, all of Colorado Springs; and a sister, Mrs. W. R. Thomas of Bryan, Tex.

Mrs. Seay was a member of Emmanuel Bible Church.

Sheriff Reports Theft Of Items From Car

David Hoff, 2054 S. Corona St., reported to the sheriff's office Tuesday that two sanders and 11 sander belts worth a total of $102 were stolen from his locked car.

Hoff told Deputy Sheriff Dave Sturgeon that his vehicle was parked at Harrison High School at the time of the incident.

Negotiation Being Sought With Viet Red Attackers

would open the way to a negotiated setlement we could live with."

To further press this backstage aim, the legislators were informed, the following was decided on:

Secretary Rusk to explore every diplomatic channel in an effort to persuade Hano and Peking to come to a conference table.

Through intermediaries to convey to the Communists a proposal to broaden the talks now going on in India between the U.S. and Cambodia into a regional East-West parley for reaching a settlement on South Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

The bombing of Red bases and supply routes to be confined strictly to targets approved in advance by Washington. Wholly excluded from such attacks are North Viet Nam's industrial areas. They will continue to enjoy immunity as "privileged sanctuaries."

RELUCTANT APPROVAL

The Joint Chiefs of Staff agreed to this "new strategy," but questioned its effectiveness. They voiced doubts it would accomplish its purpose.

The military leaders pointed out that in the Korean conflict, where the U.S. dominated the air and enemy supplies were transported by rail and highways, bombing operations, at the most, only delayed and never halted Communist attacks.

In Laos, where jungle trails and primitive dirt roads constitute the supply routes, the Joint Chiefs contend "limited and carefully controlled" air interdiction will have even less effect. In their opinion, direct massive bombing of North Viet Nam's communications, airfield and industrial centers is necessary to bring the Reds to terms.

Preparations for the air raids already are well underway.

"Radio spotters" and "intelligence gatherers" from South Viet Nams' special forces have infiltrated into Laos to pinpoint troop movements and supplies from North Viet Nam along the Ho Chi Minh Trail — or "Highway No. 9," as it appears on some U.S. military maps.

A likely target is the Tchepone airfield.

The attacks will be made by T-28 armed jet trainers, and B-26 World War II vintage bombers. They will be manned by Vietnamese crews.

U.S. Air Force and Navy jet fighters will fly cover for these strikes.

It is deemed probable that Red Chinese jets may attempt to retaliate. In that event, the U. S. fighters will intervene to protect the South Viet Nam planes.

MORE FOREIGN AID PERVERSION

U.S. aid to Cambodia is being extensively used to enable Communist Viet Cong forces to infiltrate gravely imperiled South Viet Nam.

Intelligence reports reveal that the U.S.-financed and installed communications system of Cambodia's national police is playing a key role in the movement of the Viet Cong across Cambodia into Laos and from staging areas there into Viet Nam.

Numerous messages disclosing this shocking perversion of a U.S. air project have been intercepted by U.S. and South Viet Nam monitors. They also reveal that Cambodian police, trained by the U.S. are acting as guides for the Red guerrillas.

Unpublished State Department records show that the Cambodian police communications system cost U.S. taxpayers $3,791,000.

The money came from foreign aid funds voted by Congress. As described in the State Department's files, the project was for a "counter-insurgency program to assist the Cambodian government to develop a centrally controlled and administered national police force."

As installed by the U.S., the expensive communications system includes a "fully operated radio network; an efficient transportation system; a nationwide traffic control system."

Documents found on Viet Cong prisoners, routed through Cambodia into South Viet Nam, reveal that both the communications and transportation systems — whose equipment was provided by the U.S. — are used by the Communist infiltrators.

JUNKETEERS

Representative Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the powerful House Judiciary Committee, personally took pains to see to it that members of his committee attending the conference of the Inter-Governmental Committee for European Migration in Geneva received red-carpet treatment — including ample counterpart funds. The veteran legislator wrote Secretary Rusk specifying exactly the kind of accommodations and facilities desired. Said Celler, "In view of current commitments and difficulties in obtaining travel facilities on American flagships, it will be appreciated if you will authorize the members and staff members accompanying them to travel on foreign flagships or airlines, if necessary." In addition to the three Democrats and four Republican committeemen making this lush junket, three staff members of the committee also went along . . . The U.S. is putting up $3.3 million for rural electrification in Chile, as part of the Alliance for Progress program there.

research. We didn't set out to grow hair. But we found that we were doing it as we rubbed the hormone drug testosterone on the skin under the arm pits. So we tried it on the head — and hair grew. It took many months, but it grew. In one case it was a year before anything started to show.

"Sure, I'm happy to have been able to take this giant step forward in hair-growing research because up to now baldness was considered hopeless.

"Now, I'm sure it isn't. Man can grow hair, which makes the process of losing hair reversible."

But Papa, with a head of thick black hair himself, insisted his apparently fortuitous discovery is still very, very experimental.

"Much, much more study must be made," he said. "It may take years."

Between questions and answers, the telephone rang and rang.

"I'm not in private practice," Papa tells them all. "I wouldn't dare advise you, or anyone, to use this testosterone, which happens to be an old-time drug which can be obtained only by prescription. It should be used only on the advice of a physician.

"There is no product and I am marketing none."

A non-smoker and a non-athlete — "My hobbies are strictly sedentary, books and music and theater" — Papa said testosterone "is a very potent drug that generally is injected into people for rather serious conditions, primarily after severe surgery."

Since Papa disclosed his hair-raising discovery last Thursday at a meeting of 1,500 dermatologists in Chicago, he has had not a moment of peace and quiet.

Letters have come from professionals, from waitresses, from teachers, from businessmen. They all say "please help" and "I'm desperate."

"Before this happened all I used to get were advertisements from pharmaceutical companies," he said. "I hope nobody feels I am giving them a brush-off.

"I really haven't been interested that much in the problem of baldness. I realize the magnitude and am sympathetic to the problems but it's going to have to be someone else to carry this on."

Mistrial Motion Filed in Martz Murder Trial

a mistrial on further grounds that the bailiffs did not keep the jurors together at all times as required by the oath, and that the court committed seven errors chiefly related to the excusing of jurors, granting or denying motions and the selection of which instructions would be given to the jury.

Martz, 53, foreman of the Red Creek Ranch, was convicted of the fatal shooting of Lonnie Thomlison, Dec. 18, while the deceased and two other men were gathering wood illegally on the ranch.

Gooch Testifies Death of Wife Was Accidental

said that Gooch was uncertain whether he had killed his wife, and testified he had given at least three conflicting stories concerning the circumstances of the death.

Gooch testified Tuesday that his wife had a drinking problem and that he was so concerned about her working at the American Legion where liquor was available that he took an extra job himself. He is a Ft. Carson sergeant.

In 1961 he had Mrs. Gooch hospitalized for treatment in Germany and then at his own expense, had her sent home hoping home influence would alleviate her problem. When he returned from overseas she was still drinking and he had her join Alcoholics Anonymous and later sent her to Ft. Carson Hospital for treatment when she was "in bad shape and great pain."

On June 13 the defendant told the court he had a few beers with friends at Ft. Carson and then drove home. He was not drunk, he said. He found his wife in bed asleep and woke her up as the house was "topsy turvy" with unmade beds, dirty dishes, and papers scattered all over the floor. He described the kitchen as "a mess."

Gooch went on to say he "chewed her out" about the condition of the house. Before she became an alcoholic she "was one of the best housekeepers I have ever seen," he added and would "not have allowed the house to get into that condition." He said an argument ensued with his wife and then broke down and wept while the court recessed for a few minutes.

After it reconvened, Gooch continued in a steady voice saying "We had decided it was no use trying any more. She had this drinking problem and I could not work and cope with it. I decided that at the end of the month she and my daughter would go back to Tennessee, I would retire at the end of the month (August), my pension would go to them and I would find a job."

"She went to the bedroom," he told the court, "and said as you want to get rid of me I'm leaving. I followed her." The defendant said he had a can of beer in his left hand at the time. "She was by the closet. I walked by and we were talking, I don't remember the exact worlds. I though she should not go at this time but stay to the end of the month.

"I went to the dresser. I turned round and she was by the bed and she had a gun in her hand. She said she was going to kill me and herself. The gun was not cocked. I tried to talk her out of it and said what would happen to Kathy (the daughter) if both of us were dead."

The witness continued saying his wife still persisted and cocked the weapon. He took both of her hands, she had very small hands, he explained, as he stepped towards her. He managed to get the gun in his right hand and a struggle followed in which she fell on the bed with her legs still on the floor and the defendant landed on his knees.

At this point he stated, her hands were around his right hand, and he still had the can of beer in his left. Both of her thumbs were on the Gooch's trigger finger, and as they were still struggling she pressed his finger saying "Kill me, kill me," and the gun went off.

The witness said she slumped backwards and then forward again and the weapon exploded a second time. Gooch concluded this part of his testimony by saying he never told the officers what he had just told the court because he "did not remember," and that he first remembered "one week ago Saturday."

"Did you love your wife" asked Gresham. "Yes, very much." "Do you still love her" much." "Do you still love her?" "Yes," he answered hoarsely as he started to weep again.

In response to a question put by Gresham as to why he had hit his wife on two occasions, incidents brought out earlier by Deputy District Attorney Bob Russel, the defendant said that on one occasion when Mrs. Gooch was drunk she had insisted on getting dressed and going out. He maintained she was too drunk and after a lengthy argument she kicked him in the groin and he instinctively slapped her.

The second occasion was when he had gone to the American Legion where she was working. He found her behind the bar drunk and he slapped her in the hope she would lose her job.

Three character witnesses, two of them Ft. Carson men, testified earlier as to the defendant's good reputation for truth and veracity.

First witness of the day was Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames who said he had known Gloria Gooch before the shooting. He said Gooch had told him the marriage had "been going on the rocks" for some time and that the defendant was trying to keep it going but that it had been difficult.

The witness admitted to Gresham that he was aware the dead woman had a drinking problem. "When he (Gooch) told you of shooting her, he didn't tell you anything you didn't believe, did you?" asked the attorney. "You and Mr. Littrell did a pretty thorough job in investigating the case didn't you?" "We did the best we could," answered Ames. "Is that why you had to hire a private investigator," a taunt which immediately brought a sharp objection from Russell which was sustained.

Ames admitted he had refused to discuss the case with Gresham and had said that this was on orders from the district attorney's office.

Police Officer Otis Kirkbride admitted during cross examination that he, Ames and Littrell had discussed between themselves "what they thought they knew about the case." The officer also admitted that when Gooch had said he thought he had shot his wife he added that "this may have been put into my mind."

The people rested their case Tuesday morning at 9:50 whereupon Gresham said "You rest with only five out of 18 witnesses?"

Russel replied heatedly "I object to a comment of that nature." Judge Hunter D. Hardeman sustained Russel's objection and Gresham apologized to the court with the words, "I beg your pardon, your Honor, I was just surprised at the announcement. It will take me a few minutes to get organized because I did not expect this sir, at all."

The last witness of the day put on by the defense was Dr. Thomas J. Hurley, the psychiatrist who administered the sodium amytal to Gooch, but he did not get very far in his testimony due to a speedy objection by Russel.

The doctor admitted injecting the drug at County Jail Dec. 5 and said that when a patient could not recall a particular event as it had been so "upsetting" and consequently repressed, the drug could break down this mental block.

He said Gooch had been unable to recall the events of June 13 except as he had previously related them to his attorney and the officers.

At this juncture Russel objected saying the results of sodium amytal were not admissable in a court of law. Gresham said the doctor could testify if the test was given and his opinions, and insisted he was not asking an account of what was said while Gooch was under the influence of the drug.

Russel insisted what is said is not admissable into evidence and Gresham countered by saying medical conclusions and diagnosis were admissable.

Immediately after these exchanges Judge Hardeman ruled that the matter be argued before him this morning at 8:15 out of the presence of the jury and the court recessed for the night.

Windsor's Main Artery Gets New 'Patch' which doctors replaced a section of his aorta 10-12 centimeters (3.94-4.68 inches) long," said famed surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey.

DeBakey, who has performed thousands of such operations, went from the operating room to the administration offices to issue the report. Then he went on the fourth floor to inform the anxious duchess that all went well.

"He tolerated the surgery well and is now in what is expected to be a three-hour post-operative recovery period," DeBakey said.

The aorta is the main artery leading from the heart. From it, blood is pumped to arteries all over the body. In the case of the Duke, a section of the aorta in the abdominal region had become weakened.

The weakend section had ballooned out in an aneurysm. It was necessary to replace it because if it had burst, the result would have been fatal.

The operation started a 7:30 a.m. CST. Tests had shown the Duke was in excellent physical shape. He arrived Monday from New York.

He was awakened early today and the duchess went to his room. She stayed with him until he was wheeled to an elevator for the trip to the operating room.

Woman Fights Off Attacker In Her Home

A local housewife woke up late Tuesday night when someone had both hands on her shoulders and was trying to hold her down in bed, the sheriff's office reported this morning.

According to Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames, the woman started fighting her assailant and he tried to pull the bed clothes over her head. The house was in darkness but the victim knew her attacker was a man.

She succeeded in fighting him off and he ran down into the basement. She then checked on her children and called the sheriff's office and her husband who was at work. While she was on the telephone her attacker picked up the extension in the basement and listened to the conversation, the woman told Ames.

The officer checked the basement and found the man had left by the basement door. The woman's purse had been prowled but only 50 cents in change, all it contained, taken.

Sec. Hodges Quits Cabinet; Successor Named

President George Meany, called reporters to the White House theatre to announce the Cabinet change.

Hodges was the second member of the Cabinet of President John F. Kennedy to resign since Johnson entered the White House. The first resignation, last summer, was by the late President's brother, Robert F. Kennedy, who quit as attorney general to run for the Senate on the Democratic ticket in New York.

Johnson said he would submit Connor's nomination to the Senate early in January.

In announcing Hodges' departure, Johnson said he accepted the resigantion of Hodges, a former Democratic governor of North Carolina, with "deep regret."

In a formal letter to Hodges, Johnson said the white-haired Southerner had led the Commerce Department with prudence and progress and was "one of the scarce breed" who are sympathetic to the needs of the people and "ready to work around the clock to meet those needs."

still pending against the defendant, rape by force, Conde said the defendant had told him "There was nothing to it. They all seemed to like it as far as he was concerned." According to Conde, Slinger has admitted several such acts. A hearing on the Colorado offense has been set for Jan. 4.

In summing up the doctor diagnosed the defendant as a schizophrenic of the paranoid type. He was unable to distinguish right from wrong and could not refrain from doing the wrong, said Conde, nor was he able to copoperate with counsel.

The doctor recommended treatment but added that the defendant was a maximum security problem, going on to say that the doctors must be extremely careful in evaluating his recovery to society, if indeed he ever did return to society. He is "extremely dangerous," the doctor concluded.

Minor Injuries In Auto Mishap

A two-car accident Tuesday at E. Platte Street and Iowa Street resulted in minor injuries to three persons, the State Patrol reported.

Clark Wilson, 48, suffered a whiplash neck and Doris L. Wilson, 48, sustained a wrenched back and neck. Mrs. Wilson was taken to Memorial Hospital after the accident by private vehicle. Wilson, 2006 E. Meadowlark Dr., wasn't injured seriously enough to require hospitalization, according to the report.

The accident occurred when the Wilson vehicle, northbound on Iowa Street at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday, stopped at E. Platte Avenue, and was hit from the rear by a car driven by Udell E. Middleton, 38, 2328 Magellan Street. Middleton suffered a slight cut on his nose in the accident.

The Wilson vehicle had $390 damage, while the Middleton car had $100 damage, according to the patrol.

more snow was falling and piled into deep drifts by strong winds. At Powell, on the storm's fringe, the temperature dropped from 27 above zero to 12 below in a matter of minutes.

New Mexico was hit by 72 m.p.h. winds, shifting snow into drifts.

Destructive winds accompanied by bitter cold belted Washington State, closing schools to an estimated 10,000 pupils. Snow falls ranged from 1 to 12 inches.

Blizzard conditions prevailed in North Dakota and Northern Minnesota with up to 4 inches of new snow predicted, accompanied by strong winds and extreme cold temperatures.

Utah had cold wave warnings. So did all of Kansas and northwest Missouri for today and tonight. Northwest Kansas had some flying dust which cut visibility.

Temperatures dropped to —60 over Alaska. Even the usually moderate Alaskan Panhandle reported sub-zero readings.

Cold weather numbed New England as the temperature ranged from 10 above to —5 in some sections.

Roads were icy in northern New York State and the mercury lodged near zero in some areas.

In contrast, the South and Southeast enjoyed seasonal weather with relative mild temperatures and clear skies.

The nation's temperatures ranged from Havre's —40 to 71 in Miami, Fla.

He Was Just Looking for A Sick Pal

A man who was in a service station that was closed and had just been burglarized was apprehended Tuesday in the station at 11:35 p.m., police reported.

At 11:25 p.m. Tuesday, police were called in regard to a man being inside Steve's Sinclair Service, 130 E. Cucharras St., with the lights in the station all off.

Jerry Woolsey, 911½ E. 2nd St., told police he and three friends were walking by the station and saw a small man walking around inside. He said that since the lights in the station were off, they checked around the building and found a window broken out in the back. At this time, the police were contacted.

When officers arrived, they went into the station and apprehended a man who stated he had been told by two soldiers that a friend of their was sick in the station. The soldiers asked him if he would, because of his small stature, go into the station and aid their friend.

The man said he would, and went to the station. He told police that because he couldn't get in, he went around to the back and broke a window and crawled through. He said that once inside he couldn't find anybody, and at this time the police arrived.

The suspect had three pairs of sunglasses, an envelope of developed film, a toy saddle, a toy skunk, and a cigarette holder in his left hand coat pocket. In the right hand pants pocket, police found a screwdriver, nine gold bond gift stamps, and $1.76 in change, according to the report.

According to the police, the man is being held for investigation of burglary.

Family Offers Reward For Return of Dog

The Kenneth Schmidts, 322 E. Woodmen Rd., are hoping that Chan will be returned. Chan is a red male chow, with a black mouth and very large feet. On the right side of his forehead he has a slight scar, which is visible when his coat is wet. Mrs. Schmidt said that the dog, which is very friendly and interested in people, bears a resemblance to a husky breed in coat and facial contour. The dog is registered and about 18 months old. A reward is offered for his return.

Since the dog disappeared four weeks ago, the Schmidts have advertised and contacted veterinarians and the Humane Society.

Tuesday, Schmidt spoke with Clyde Casey, owner of Casey's House of Pets, 1100 S. Tejon St. According to Schmidt, Casey said that he had purchased from the Humane Society three weeks ago a dog which resembled the Schmidts' lost chow very closely. Casey took the dog to the home of his mother, Mrs. M. M. Casey, 823 N. Custer Ave. When he gave it a bath, he noticed a scar in the same place on its forehead. The next morning, however, the dog escaped from his house, and has not been seen since.

If you know anything of the whereabouts of this dog, please contact the Schmidts, phone 633-5471. Mrs. Schmidt added that the dog may be living out of doors, because its coat is very heavy.

Judge Rejects Lesser Plea By Maestas

District Judge William M. Calvert refused this morning to accept a guilty plea to a lesser charge in the case of Henry Eddie Maestas. Despite last minute efforts by counsel for the defense to delay jury selection began.

Maestas, 28, 513 Walnut St. is charged with aggravated robbery and conspiracy, and wished to plead to simple robbery and conspiracy.

Local attorney Roger Hunt who is defending Maestas along with Denver lawyer Walter Gethree motions, all denied, heard rash had three motions, all denied, heard by Judge Calvert before the trial started.

He requested a continuance, the fourth or fifth, as Gerash was presently enegaged in a case in Denver.

Hunt asked for a change of venue from El Paso County on account of local press stories concerning the defendant which were alleged to be prejudicial. The same motion was denied last week by Judge G. Russell Miller.

A change of venue was further requested on grounds that the court was prejudiced under the new laws of Colorado criminal procedure and on the fact that Judge Calvert would not permit the district attorney's office to amend the charge.

Hunt also argued that the judge should disqualify himself as he bore prejudice against the defendant for he had heard the Martinez case, a co-defendant, now serving 30 to 40 years in the State Penitentiary.

Maestas is accused of robbing the Self Service Drug Store, 506 W. Colorado Ave. March 17 and conspiring with Bennie Thomas Martinez and Henry Filmone Vigil. Vigil has not been tried yet.

He has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity, and although he has been found legally insane he still maintains both pleas. The trial will be on both issues.

Stolen Auto Is Recovered

A 1963 model car valued at $3,800 was stolen from where it was parked in the 1900 block of W. Pikes Peak Avenue and was recovered within an hour of the time it was reported missing, police said Tuesday.

Elizabeth F. Sanford, 925 Westmoor Place, told police she had left the keys in her car when she parked it on Pikes Peak Avenue at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday. When she returned at 8:40 p.m., the car was gone.

Police recovered the car at 9:25 p.m. from where it had been parked at the rear of a building at 1213 W. Bijou St. A woman who saw the car being left at that location told police three young-looking males had run from the scene after the car was parked.

The car had no observable damage, according to the report.

SANTA and the SINGING TURTLE

By LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: The turtle and the Snowman arrive at the Festival. The turtle explains to Santa that he is worried about the Prince and doesn't want to sing until he arrives. Suddenly Womp appears.

CHAPTER ELEVEN
THE FESTIVAL

No one at the Music Festival paid any attention to Womp as he squeezed his way into the back of the audience. But George, the Singing Turtle, shivered suddenly under his shell and felt the way turtles feel when they know danger is near.

"There's something about him I do not like," he whispered to the Snowman. "Why do they let him in?"

"He is a musician," said the Snowman. "See, he carries a flute in his hand."

"He doesn't look like a musician," grumbled George. "He doesn't even look as if he likes music!"

Santa was on the stage welcoming everyone to the Festival. He wished everyone a Merry Christmas and said it was too bad the Festival had to be on Christmas Eve when they were all so busy, but he hoped it would make Christmas all the merrier.

He told how long and hard the musicians had practiced and how far many of them had travelled in order to perform. Then he listed the prizes and he said the first prize winner was to be named Grand Musician to the Queen of Fairies.

This was so high an honor the very thought of it caused the audience to gasp and George missed two heartbeats from pure excitement.

"Now let us enjoy ourselves," said Santa. The Fairy Queen waved her wand and the Festival at last began.

The first performer was a tiny cicada dressed in pale blue gauze. She sang a song called "Lazy Days" about the wonderful times of summer.

The little cicada had a sweet haunting voice and George could have fallen in love with her because she sang so beautifully and summertime was his time, too. But all the while she was singing he was thinking about the missing Prince and he could not really enjoy himself at all.

A swarm of bumble bees called the Buzzing Baritones were next. They sang a love song with such feeling that half the audience wept. The Queen Fairy said it was beautiful and Santa Claus called for an encore.

"Don't worry," said the Snowman to George. "I am sure you can do better than that."

"I am not worrying about that," said George. "It's the Prince I am worrying about." He stretched his head out as far as it would go searching for the Prince over the heads of the crowd. All he could see was the black cloaked figure of Womp, the manwitch. George drew in his head and shuddered.

Now an ibex and a yak were on the stage playing a duet on bassons. They showed great skill and musical knowledge but their music was far out and futuristic and it was clear they would never win the prize.

A bullfrog sang hymns in a rich bass voice.

Next came a bullfrog who sang hymns in a rich basso profundo. Then the Pied Piper from Storybook Land danced across the stage, playing gay tunes on his pipes, and all the littlest pixies left their seats and danced after him.

After that, a praying mantis played the cello; King Cole and his Fiddlers Three played several jigs, and Three Men in a Tub used their tub for a drum and beat out a fine, stirring march.

Next came three chipmunks who called themselves the Chipmunk Chatterboxes. They stamped their feet and beat on pots and pans and slashed sticks across an old washing board and sang at the top of their voices. They played such rollicking tunes and had so much fun doing it that Santa Claus himself leaped from his chair and did a jig in front of the Queen Fairy.

It was something to see and something to hear! The audience swayed and clapped and stamped their feet.

Only George was quiet, for he knew, suddenly and for sure, deep in his turtle heart, that the Prince wasn't going to get to the Festival at all.

Artificial Industrial Diamonds May Be Made

By PHIL KEIF

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Dr. H. Tracy Hall, the man who first made diamonds in the laboratory 10 years ago today, now makes things that don't exist.

Which is not really so different, because man-made diamonds didn't exist until he made them for the first time, Dec. 16, 1954, at the General Electric Laboratory in Schenectady, N.Y.

The so-called "belt" apparatus he invented achieved the extremely high temperature and pressure necessary to repack the loosely spaced carbon atoms of graphite into the tight-packed carbon atoms of diamond.

Hall went to Brigham Young University the next year as director of research and the patent on the "belt" stayed with GE. The Department of Commerce slapped a security restriction on the "belt."

So Hall had to invent another machine to do his research. It's called the tetrahedral anvil press with an X-ray diffraction attachment to take pictures of the atoms being repacked.

It can create pressures — 3,000,000 pounds per square inch — equal to that at the bottom of 2,000 Washington Monuments stacked one atop the other.

It can subject a compound to temperatures — 5,000 to 10,000 degrees centigrade — like those on the surface of the sun.

He has forced boron and sulfur atoms to combine to form a compound that doesn't exist in nature and which, when heated later, will generate a higher voltage than any known thermoelectric substance — a possible commercial byproduct for transistors.

And of course he always has his eye open for a new compound harder than diamond — no success, yet.

The 45-year-old physical chemist and father of seven got his first glimpse of this process when he was a teen-ager in Ogden, Utah, watching a grocer pack tomatoes for sale.

He couldn't figure how the grocer could repack six bushels of tomatoes delivered by a farmer into seven bushels.

The incident flashed back when he was studying the packing of atoms at the University of Utah where he goth is Ph.D. in 1948.

"I felt as one who had just glimpsed a deep, dark secret," he said in an interview."

The secret is in packing atomos — or tomatoes — so that you vary the space between Repacking atoms is Hall's specialty. He still makes a few diamonds now and then, just to keep in shape. But he uses his tetrahedral anvil press for basic research.

So do many other scientists. Last month the French Atomic Energy Commission bought one for $175,000.

One of these days, somebody might get the notion to start making industrial diamonds with it. Hall said that is a possibility but he doen't know of any firm plans by anybody to do so.

TRAITOR

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, the Communist party paper, has declared Angolan rebel leader Holden Roberto a traitor and announced support for his Communist-backed rival, Agostino Neto.

The paper accused Roberto, who heads a rebel government in Leopoldville, of coming under the influence of the United States and of lending forces to Premier Moise Tshombe's government for use against the Congolese rebels.

Dispute Still Dominates NATO Meeting

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic alliance's defense ministers turned today to a checkup on their military striking power, but the French-American dispute over unclear policy continued to dominate the annual ministerial conference.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization's state of military readiness and its preparedness prospects were the principal items under study in the conference hall.

Outside the conference, Secretary of State Dean Rusk was to meet for the second time this week with President Charles de Gaulle, chief foe of U.S. plans for an integrated allied nuclear defense force.

With France determined to forge its own independent nuclear force, Rusk met Tuesday with diplomatic leaders from Britain, West Germany, Italy and the Netherlands to consider holding a top-level meeting early in the new year to study proposals for a NATO nuclear force.

They tentatively agreed on a meeting of deputy foreign ministers to study the U.S. proposal for a multilateral nuclear force — MLF — British suggestions for a wider Atlantic air-sea nuclear command and any other ideas on the subject any NATO member wants to bring up.

The meeting of the five foreign ministers reflected U.S. determination to proceed with plans for an allied nuclear command. Rusk has assured De Gaulle, however, that the United States has no desire to isolate France and that the door to any NATO nuclear command will always be open to the French.

In an address to the NATO Council Tuesday, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville made a new attack on the U.S. proposal for a NATO fleet of surface ships armed with Polaris missiles and manned by crews of mixed nationality.

Couve de Murville claimed he could not comprehend how supporters of the project could say they want to halt the spread of nuclear weapons to other nations and at the same time propose that non-nuclear nations have a voice in the use of such weapons.

Pinkerton Boosts Industrial Safety

NEW YORK (AP) — In the old days, the Pinkerton National Detective Agency had a hand in tracking down such notorious badmen as Jesse James, Sam Bass and the Younger brothers.

Starting Jan. 1, the world's biggest private police force will be known simply as Pinkerton's, Inc. It wants to play down its private eye role and emphasize its less glamorous work as industrial guards.

Robert A. Pinkerton II, the fourth-generation member of his family to head the agency, announced the name change Tuesday.

Almost 90 per cent of the agency's business this year has been in non-investigative work, said Edward J. Bednarz, executive vice president and general manager.

Pinkerton's was founded in Chicago in 1850 by a Scottish-born detective, Allan Pinkerton.

Alexander Selkirk remained as a castaway on Juan Fernadez Island for 4 years and 4 months until the British Navy rescued him.

Columnist Sees Another One Get Pay Raise

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK (NEA) — Generally, we do not question the stories on television, being content that the machine still comes equipped with an off-on switch. After a hard day of work, nothing is so relaxing as a few sustained objections and a subdural hematoma or two.

The only show we never watch is The Reporter. Not that we dislike dramas about the newspaper life. It is just that the relentless hero, Danny Taylor, looked to us like an agent for the American Society of Newspaper Publishers.

So, it was, quite by accident that we discovered that there soon will bt an enormous change in Danny. He will acquire a new apartment. He will get a new car. He will get a dandy new suit. In short, all the earmarks of fantastic success will be his.

We could not believe it. But on inquiring further we discovered that it was absolutely true. Danny is due for a raise.

According to the show's creator, Jerome Weidman, the show's ratings have been terrible because reporters like Danny Taylor went out of style in the 1930s.

Consequently, Danny has been raised from $7,000 per year to $8,000. "After all," Mr. Weidman said, "he is supposed to be the best damn columnist in the country, so why shouldn't he get paid for it?"

We had no answer to that question. In fact, the more we thought about it, the less answer we had.

It occured to us, however, that when it came to damn columnists in the country, we were just as much a damn columnist as Danny Taylor. And so, right after lunch the other day we went in to see the boss about a raise.

"A what?" he queried briskly. He had once been a newspaperman himself and still enjoyed a brisk query after lunch.

"A raise," we said.

"How do you spell it?" he asked.

"R-a-i-s-e," we said slowly while he wrote it down on his cuff.

"A raise?" he said, more hurt than angry. "If I remember correctly, I just gave you a raise on February 11, 1959. What do you want another one for?"

We have found it best to make the request on the basis of need. But since our car was repossessed and we seemed to be doing quite well on a low protein diet, we felt it was only fair to explain:

"Because Danny Taylor got a raise."

"Really?" The boss said. "How much did I give him?"

"He doesn't work her," we said. "But he's the best damn columnist in the country."

"Well," the boss said, "there you are."

"Where?" we asked.

"If you didn't work here, I'd be happy to see you get a raise," the boss said. "In fact, I might even think about hiring you. How much did this Taylor fellow get?"

"He went from $7,000 per year to $8,000," we said.

The boss wrote the numbers on his cuff, and after studying them for a few moments, he said:

"I want to do what's right for everybody. You go out and see if somebody will offer you $7,000 and hen come back and we'll discuss it.

We could not help breaking into a happy grin. "Gee, thanks," we said.

One Nun Not Happy With Modern Dress

By J. C. Tillman

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A Benedictine nun who holds her flowing habit in deep reverence expressed indignation here at a proposal to drastically modernize the dress of Roman Catholic nuns.

A young nun in Oklahoma City last week introduced a streamlined habit to escape summer heat and said of the old robes: "You perspire so much. You wake up wet, you work wet, you go to bed wet — you just have a sticky feeling all the time."

Sister Hermana, the Benedictine sister in Little Rock, replied: "My gosh! we don't sleep in these things."

The two views represent part of a controversy over proposed changes in a garb that has contained symbolism and various religious values for centuries.

Both Sister Stephen, the Oklahoma City nun, and Sister Hermana, principal of St. Edwards School here, want a revision in the garb — to make it more functional.

But Sister Hermana is anxious to see that none of the reverence for the habit be lost.

Her order wears a typical flowing garb. It has a tight headdress that fits tightly around the face.

She said she would like to see the pleated portion that wraps around the face eliminated and the long veil shortened.

She also would like to see some of the pleats taken out of the flowing skirts. But she doesn't like the idea of a drastic revision.

Sister Stephen, modeling a new habit she designed for consideration by members of her community, said it gave her a sense of freedom.

The habit resembles the uniform of an airline hostess.

"I feel like I've been freed and let out of armor," she said.

Sister Hermana commented, "If she felt like she had been in armor, there was nothing to keep her that way. She could have left at any time."

Sister Hermana looks on her habit as an asset. "It never kept us from doing anything we wanted or needed to do," she said.

Sister Stephen complained that once her long veil got caught in a door as it locked and she had to wait for help.

As a teacher, Sister Hermana is constantly in and out of the church. With the veil, she said, "I can pop in or out without worrying about whether my head is covered."

The habit designed by Sister Stephen has no head covering.

Designs for new habits of the various orders will be vastly different, since they will be conceived by members of the orders, Sister Hermana said.

"Anyone who has the ingenuity, skill and energy can design one," she added. It can then be made, and modeled before the community, which may vote on its acceptance.

One of Sister Stephen's complaints was that the present garb lacked feminity.

Sister Hermana feels that feminity is expressed as much in actions as in garb, and she said her habit is an expression of self denial in the manner of Christ.

Sister Hermana said the 36 nuns who were slain in the Congo recently might have abandoned their garb and escaped harm.. They did not.

Common Market Agree on Grain Prices

BRUSSELS (AP) — The six European Common Market countries agreed today on a singel schedule of grain prices, effective in mid-1967.

Agreement was reached after 13 months of tough bargaining. It was the major step toward a unified agricultural policy necessary for Common Market participation in Kennedy Round tariff negotiations opening next month in Geneva.

West German Economics Minister Kurt Schmuecker hailed the agreement as "a giant step toward European unity."

Walter Hallstein, president of the European Economic Community's executive commission, termed the agreement "a great political feat."

"If we reached agreement on farm prices," he said, "it is thanks to the political will of all to succeed in creating in Europe a political force."

The agreement was a triumph for French President Charles de Gaulle, who had threatened to boycott the Common Market unless it agreed on agricultural prices. West Germany, which has the highest wheat price in the community, was the chief obstacle, but Italy also raised last-minute objections.

Effective July 1, 1967, this schedule of prices is to take effect within the trade bloc:

Durum wheat, $3.95 per bushel; soft wheat, $2.89; rye, $2.38; corn, $2.30 and barley, $1.99.

World prices for such major grains as durum wheat, barely and corn are still 30 to 50 per cent lower than these future prices. The present French price for soft wheat is $2.70 per bushel; the comparable American price is $1.90 and the West German price is $3.20.

In recent years the Common Market countries have imported about 10 million tons of grain a year, mostly hard wheat and feedstocks. The community plans to protect its production by setting tariffs on grain imports that not only cover the difference between the world prices and the future market prices but also provide small preferential margins.

Countries like West Germany and Italy, whose grain prices are higher than the future schedule, will receive compensation for their farmers' loss of income and in some cases will get subsidies until 1970.

The new schedule will be effective only for the 1967-68 season. Future prices will be based on production costs and developments in internal trade, ministers from the six nations agreed.

The six are Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

France now becomes the big beneficiary, as the only one of the six nations having grain surpluses. The Common Market farm fund will subsidize any surplus exported outside the area so it can compete on the world market. Since the importing five countires have to pay most of this bill, they will find it advantageous to buy from France rather than from the United States and other foreign exporters.

West Germany made numerous concessions, and Schmuecker has hinted that his government will press for French cooperation in speeding up the European unity movement, cutting industrial tariffs in the Kennedy Round talks and formation of the NATO multilateral nuclear force which is anathema to De Gaulle.

Peronistas Losing Argentine Influence

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Unions representing nearly half of Argentina's organized labor force have reused to join pro-Peronist factions of the General Confederation of Labor in a nationwide strike Thursday and Friday.

Non-Peronist unions, including bank clerks, government employes and business workers, threatened in stormy sessions Tuesday night to quit the confederation if Peronist labor leaders insist on holding the 48-hour strike.

President Arturo Illia's government clamped down two weeks ago on Peronist agitators, fearful the abortive attempt by ex-dictator Juan Peron to return home from exile in Spain would touch off wide disorders.

Confederation leaders called the strike to protest the arrest of their secretary-general, Jose Alonso, and 40 other members of the organization.

Cascade News

By MRS. JENNIE WYATT — 684-9612

Remember the Family Fun Night, to be held at the Fire House in Cascade Wednesday, Dec. 16. There will be refreshments for sale and games.

Cindy Hagan just recently returned from a two months' visit with her sister and family in Hawaii. She made the trip by Jet, leaving Denver in the morning and arriving in Honolulu in time to have dinner with Sgt. and Mrs. Robert McKennon and daughter, who are stationed at Schofield Barracks. She landed at the International Airport and received the leis, a welcome from Hawaii. While there she enjoyed my interesting experiences among them a visit to the Diamond Head, International Marketplace, where the natives dance for the tourist. She saw the Arizona, which is known as the ship that the Japs could not sink.

The Pioneer Construction Co. of Pueblo has been very busy this past week starting on the new highway which is to be constructed this winter, making a four-lane highway from Cascade to Manitou.

Mrs. Jack Lanning entertained at a luncheon for her card club Thursday. Guests were: Alice Jackson, Wyssie Spears, Mona Hammond and the hostess. The ladies spent the afternoon playing Canasta.

The Cascade Home Owners Association wishes to remind home owners that there is to be a meeting of the zoning committee at the New County Building Dec. 17, at 10 o'clock. Everyone interested is urged to attend.

We welcome two new families to this community. They are Spec. 4 Howard Gates and Mrs. Gates, of Earlington Ky., presently stationed at Fort Carson, and Spec. 4 Arvin Lee Payne, Mrs. Payne and son Thomas, from Sugar Valley, Ga., presently stationed at Ft. Carson. They both live in the Jacob apartments on Topeka Road.

The Cub Scouts held their regular meeting this week at the home of their leader, Mrs. Joyce Woolston. Paul Willie and David Woolston had the flag ceremony. The boys worked on gifts for their fathers for Christmas. It is interesting to know that this den has had perfect attendance since they started meeting. The meeting closed with the living circle. Tony Johnson had the refreshments and Den Chief Ronnie Slaven led the boys in a game.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Murphy are the parents of a baby girl born Dec. 5 at Penrose Hospital. They have named the little miss Staci Yyn.

Mrs. Arvin Payne entertained Thursday evening at dinner honoring Spec. 4 Payne on his birthday. The guests were Spec. 4 and Mrs. Howard Gates.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Campbell and family, Darline Simpson and Mrs. Cleo Clevenger, of Orrick, Mo., were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wyatt and Robin.

They were: President, Mary Lou Quinn, vice president, Candy Sumner; treasurer, Lee Ann Rossi. Refreshments were served by Robin Wieman. Mrs. Phyllis Giles and Mrs. Jan Pettit took the girls on a tour of the North Pole.

'Liberty and Peace' Sought for Viets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says the common devotion between the United States and South Viet Nam is to preserve liberty and peace.

It "is strengthened by the close personal ties which bind so many of our people to so many of yours," Johnson told the new South Viet Nam ambassador, Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, as he accepted his credentials at the White House Tuesday.

"In contributing their strong moral and material support to Viet Nam," Johnson said, "the American people are mindful of the great sacrifices being made by the Vietnamese people in the defense of their own freedom and of freedom everywhere against Communist aggression and subversion."

Khiem, former minister of defense, is the first South Viet Nam ambassador here since Tran Van Chuong resigned in August 1963 in protest against government raids on Buddhist temples in Saigon.

Film Industry Sees Coming Year as Crisis

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film industry leaders are looking with apprehension to 1965, the year many fear will bring a crisis in movie morals.

With self-censorship reins greatly eased, the major companies have been pouring forth films with a heavy quotient of sex and seduction. It seems almost incredible that only a few years ago "The Moon is Blue" was denied a production code seal because the word "virgin" was used.

"The Moon is Blue" seems a fairy tale compared to today's movies.

How far can the movie makers go without arousing militant action by the moralists?

Some industry observers believe the limit is being pushed. They cite numerous examples of questionable taste.

The cause celebre of the moral crisis may turn out to be a film from the needler of American mores, Billy Wilder. His "Kiss Me, Stupid" is just in time for the Christmas holidays. holidays.

The film has brought a sharp break between the production code administration and the powerful National Legion of Decency. The code administration, which the major companies sponsor and support, gape a seal of approval to "Kiss Me, Stupid."

The legion, which classifies films for Roman Catholics, stamped the movie with a C — condemned. This has rarely happened to a major Hollywood film.

The legion expressed "astonishment" that the seal would go to a film "so patently indecent and immoral."

"It added: "It is difficult to understand how such approval is not the final betrayal of the trust which has been placed by so many in the organized industry's self-regulation."

Hollywood newsmen last week got a look at what caused the legion's indignation. "Kiss Me, Stupid" tells the story of a swinging singer named Dino (Dean Martin who gets stuck in a Nevada town when a couple of amateur songwriters try to sell him tunes.

To keep him in town, the piano teacher (Ray Walston) hires a floozy Kim Novak) to pose as his wife and throw herself at Dino. But things get mixed up and Dino spends the night with the real wife (Felicia Farr). The story is told in raucous style with emphasis on double entendres.

It is the legion's phrase "final betrayal" that chills the hearts of film leaders. In times past the legion has exerted powerful influence on Hollywood to clean up its movies. Does this mean a declaration of future action?

The answer will be known in 1965, when the crisis of movie morals may become a national concern.

Magazine Features Canon Decorations

Canon City's Christmas decorations are featured in the December issue of Colorado Municipalities magazine, along with several other Christmas-decked Colorado Cities.

The magazine notes that "It's the Season for Singing 'Deck the City Halls'. . .," and includes pictures of Denver, Estes Park, Englewood, Monte Vista, Colorado Springs, Springfield, La Junta, Grand Junction, and Sterling, as well as Canon City's Main street decorations.

The article describes other decorations in the city, including the gaily lighted, decked out municipal building, and the manger scene, put up by Colorado State Penitentiary inmates, overlooking Canon City on the Skyline Drive.

SURGERY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt is "doing as well as can be expected," say her doctors, after an operation on the aorta, the body's major artery.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, 60, mother of heiress Gloria Vanderbilt, was admitted to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Dec. 8, and underwent surgery Tuesday.

1,000 to Take Part in Post Exercise Today

Some 1,000 officers and enlisted men will take to the field in a command post exercise today and Thursday, climaxing training at Ft. Carson for the year.

At the same time, the 1st Battalion 61st Infantry will be completing its Army Training Test, last of the units scheduled for 1964.

The command post exercise will include headquarters of major commands, the 1st and 3d Brigades, Division Artillery, Support Command, 5th Signal, 5th Aviation, Cavalry, Armor, elements of Division Rear, administrative and special staffs, 5th Military Police, 5th Military Intelligence, and 303d Army Security Agency.

While the entire headquarters will be on the reservation, the problem play will be in an adjacent area. The problem will revolve about a defensive situation and will include night problems.

Among those here for the exercise will be three visiting Israeli officers.

BOOK BENDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of new books needed for college libraries is rising even faster than the number of new students, according to Robert J. Keir, president of C.I.T. Educational Buildings, Inc. and The Tuition Plan, Inc. The average will reach almost four new books per college student in 1967-68, he said, because of the increasing complexity of the educational process and the consequent need for more reference works. In 1963-64 it was three new books per student.

Mrs. Kennedy is expected to accompany her sister from New York City.

Noisy Muffler Costs Youth $15 In City Court

A noisy muffler on a motor scooter brought a $10 fine to a 15-year old boy, Willie Melons, 430 E. Willamette St. Monday in Municipal Court. Melons had previously ignored the citation and his appearance Monday was the resut of a warrant having been issued for his arrest.

In other action a heated altercation in front of the May D & F store downtown ended in court in a finding of not guilty against Robert Welsh, 23, 2241 E. Platte, who had been charged with riotous conduct and breach of peace. Welsh had become incensed when a stopped car in front of him refused to move, and both Welsh and the complaining witness had exchanged angry words. Judge Allan Asher reprimanded Welsh for what he termed "injudicious behavior" and said that he had gotten much too upset over a comparatively trivial situation, but found Welsh not guilty of both charges. The two men shook hands as they left the court.

Carmilo Quinones Perez, 21, 619 S. Baltic St., had charges of disorderly conduct, riotous conduct and breach of peace dismissed against him as the complaining witness, Mrs. Quinones, had failed to appear for the second scheduled Monday hearing in a row.

James Knight, 30, 3317 Penn St., and Russell Renkel, 23, 2831 W. Kiowa St., agreed to drop mutual charges against each other. Knight had charged Renkel of riotous conduct, breach of peace and injury to private property and Renkel had charged Knight with riotous conduct and breach of peace. At the request of both complaining witnesses, Judge Asher dismissed the charges. However, Renkel had been jailed for an additional charge of drunkenness, for which he was found guilty and fined $25.

Also fined $25 for drunkenness Monday were: Woodrow Eason, 48, 123½ S. Cascade Ave.; Bernard Evans, 45, Clay Hotel; Byron O'Neal, 51, Salvation Army; Samuel Ford, 20, Ft. Carson; William Harpstrite, 40, 1427 W. Colorado Ave.; George Pitsenbarger, 42, Carson and Carl Simmons, 40, Ft. Carson.

A ten day suspended jail sentence was handed down to John Winn, 50, Arrow Hotel, who was found guilty of drunkenness.

Frank Atkinson, 37, 815 E. Cimarron St., was found guilty of riotous conduct and breach of peace and was given a ten day sentence in the City Jail on each charge.

A ten day jail sentence was also imposed upon Douglas Murphy, 53, no address, who was found guilty of drunkenness.

Jimmy Warren, 22, Ft. Carson, was charged with riotous conduct and injury to private property after he put his fist through a juke box which had refused to honor a quarter he had deposited. Warren claimed he was merely hitting the thing to make it work and the glass accidentally broke. Judge Asher found him not guilty of riotous conduct, but fined him $5 on the other charge.

Joe Martinez, 48, 520½ Prospect Lake Dr., had a charge of injury to private property dismissed against him at the request of the complaining witness. Martinez had broken a lock to gain entry to an apartment of which the complaining witness was landlord, but had made full restitution for the damage to the lock. Judge Asher dismissed the charges but warned Martinez hereafter to wait until he was invited before entering someone elses apartment.

Willie Boyd, 26, 535 E. Costilla St., had charges of disorderly conduct and riotous conduct dropped at the request of the complaining witness, who was Mrs. Boyd. Mrs. Boyd claimed she didn't know what she was signing, and that the charges were the policeman's idea entirely, and that she only wanted the police to look for her husband. Judge Asher dismissed the charges cautioning the Boyds to settle their domestic quarrels without the aid of the police.

Carl Hussey, 34, Ft. Carson, was found guilty of committing a nuisance and was fined $25. A $50 fine was imposed against Gene Haynes, 26, 815 E. Dale St., who was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

At the request of the complaining witness charges of disorderly conduct, riotous conduct and breach of peace were dismissed against John Croff, 18, 3032 W. Platte Ave.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Paul Chavez, 23, 408 N. Franklin St., who failed to appear to answer to a charge of riotous conduct. Bond was set at $50.

Bonds totaling $100 were forfeited when the following persons failed to appear to answer to the following charges: Peter Chavez, 57, 616 E. Santa Fe St., drunkenness; Dani Webster, 24, Oakland, Calif., resisitng police and drunkenness; and James Jenkins, 38, 15 N. 13th St., drunkenness.

Trials were set for the following persons on the following charges: Terry Evans, 28, 1214 N. Prospect St., riotous conduct and breach of peace: Raymond Fiolkoski, 26, 1665 S. Adams St., disorderly conduct and breach of peace; John Gibson, 65, 522 E. Moreno St., riotous conduct and breach of peace; Johnnie Jones, 32, 510 S. Wahsatch St., riotous conduct and breach of peace and James Roberts, 25, 2830 W. Kiowa St., disorderly conduct, riotous conduct and breach of peace.

Continuations were granted to Gene Moore, 18, 1201 Vega Dr., charged with drunkenness and carrying a concealed weapon, and Charles King, 34, 312 W. Dale St., charged with riotous conduct, breach of peace and drunkenness.

Korean Orphans Are Helped by College Students

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — Central Michigan University students tucked an extra $50 for Christmas into their December check for 83 adopted brothers and sisters half a world away.

The brothers and sisters are Korean orphans. Central Michigan students have raised $10,200 for them since adopting the waifs in 1959.

Providing for Central's children has become a university-wide project since it was organized by student Neil Kirwin, who had served in Korea as a U.S. soldier.

Working with the American-Korean Foundation, Kirwin's group chose 46 children at Youn Sen Orphanage outside Munsan, about 40 miles north of Seoul.

Children there are Central's chosen ones, but the population has grown, thanks largely to the affection shown by 5,300 big brothers and sisters on the mid-Michigan college campus.

The 1964 fall campaign raised $2,790. A 30-member committee of students and teachers, headed by sophomore William A. Nowak, 19, is planning other fund-raising activities.

The December check forwarded through the foundation to Munsan was $400, instead of a customary $350 for the month.

"We never send items, always money," Nowak explained, "because money travels much more inexpensively than shipped goods."

The money often is designated for certain purchases. For instance, Central students are donating $50 a month to pay off a mortgage on three acres of farm land.

Nowak said Central's project "is a step toward the solution of world poverty, although only perhaps a small one." He hopes other colleges will take up similar programs or even get in on Central's "because we'd like to make it a nationwide project."

Women Want To Go on Trip to Space

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Woman, not content with an almost complete conquest of man's world on earth, wants to help him conquer space.

Applications by the dozens are being received by the Manned Spacecraft Center from women scientists for one of the jobs being opened up for scientists-astronauts.

"We are not throwing out any applications just because they come from women," a space agency spokesman said today. "Being a man wasn't one of the requirements for the job.

"I don't know how many women have applied, but I do know it is a large number and many are still being considered If there isn't a woman chosen, it won't be because of sex."

More than 900 persons have applied to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the 10 to 20 positions NASA will fill next year.

Of that number, 200 applications were tossed out because physical requirements were not met, the space agency said. Most of these were rejected because applicants wore glasses.

NASA said the objection to scientists wearing glasses was that pressure suit helmets and spectacles don't go together, and contact lenses are impractical in space flight.

Some other applications were rejected because they came from persons from foreign countries.

Almost every type of scientist has applied, ranging from doctors to botanists. However, the Manned Spacecraft Center said there was a "particular interest in receiving additional inquiries from the geological sciences."

Recruiting ends Dec. 31. Recommendations will be made by the National Academy of Sciences to NASA in the spring of 1965.

if a scientist can't fly, he or she will receive flight training in jet aircraft and helicopters.

To qualify, a scientist must be under 34 years old, a U.S. citizen and no taller than 6 feet, and must hold a bachelor's degree and a doctorate or the equivalent in experience.

At present, the nation has 28 astronauts, all men.

Peaceful Contacts Urged With Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says his administration will do all it can to step up peaceful contacts with the Soviet Union.

He met at the White House Tuesday with a group of industrial leaders who spent two weeks recently in the Soviet Union visiting factories, laboratories and engineering design institutes.

Johnson said he hoped there would be more such trips, in both directions, and added: "I am asking all agencies of the government on our side to make sure that we're going as far as we can to extend this hand of peaceful contact to the Soviet people, without in any way endangering our security."

The White House said that a similar Soviet delegation has visited the United States.

After the meeting, Donald Hornig, the President's special assistant for science and technology who headed the delegation, told newsmen he found indications the Russians "wanted to warm up relations" with this country.

Cats first entered the service of mankind with the Egyptians, who tamed them to keep grain storehouses free of rats.

College Girls Sell Elephant To Another Zoo

By AUSTIN SCOTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Smith College coeds have come face to face with an ugly, weighty problem. They were delighted, but the problem, a 4,000-pound, nasty-tempered hippopotamus named Betsy, wasn't impressed.

The girls are Nacy Hormer, 20, of Worcester, Mass., Ann Longfellow, 19, of Wayzata, Minn., and Ellen Emerson 19, of Concord, Mass.

Two weeks ago, "sort of out of pity," they submitted a bid on Betsy, one of several surplus animals put up for auction by the city.

Their $400 bid won, and they arrived at Brooklyn's Prospect Park Zoo Tuesday for a look at their "white elephant," so to speak.

"She's beautiful!" the girls exclaimed in unison. "Isn't that a lovely mouth? Isn't she great? She looks so docile."

Betsy, obviously unused to this kind of flattery, pressed her ample behind against the rear wall of the cage, and made a low rumbling noise.

"Watch yourself now," said zoo keeper Kenneth Welch. "She's mean and she charges. One swipe of that head and it's all over."

When the girls discovered theirs was the winning bid, they were faced with proving to city officials that they could take proper care of a 10-year-old hippo.

It would not be easy, they decided, to show that a girl's college is the ideal place to keep one. Especially since Betsy has what her keeper calls "a personality problem."

Another Suborbital Test Flight Slated

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Space agency officials will try again Jan. 5 to launch an unmanned Project Gemini capsule into suborbital test flight.

The final unmanned flight of the project was scrubbed last week when a defect developed in the rocket engines.

The fully instrumented capsule will be fired over a suborbital course which will generate searing heat to test both the spacecraft and a Titan 2 booster for manned flight.

ART SHOW TOUR

RACINE, Wisc. (UPI — The Johnson Collection of 102 contemporary American paintings, exhibited in 14 countries abroad in the last two years, has returned to this country to begin a tour of American art museums.

The collection, known as "ART: USA," will be exhibited in 22 U.S. cities and Toronto, Canada, over the next two and a half years, beginning with the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. and concluding with a show at the Columbia, S. C., Musuem of Art in May, 1967. The collection, which includes the work of nearly all top-ranking artists in this country, was acquired in 1962 by S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc. here.

Korea Chief Signs With West Germany

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chung Hee Park of South Korea returned to Seoul today from West Germany, where he signed an agreement for $39 million in commercial loans to his government.

Park also sought closer economic cooperation between South Korea and West Germany in talks with German officials during his week's visit in Bonn.

Truman Says He Knew FDR Was Near Dying

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman says he had indications 13 days before President Franklin D. Roosevelt died that Roosevelt's life was near an end.

In a transcribed television series to be broadcast next Friday, Truman said:

"It became perfectly obvious to me that due to (his) health I would eventually inherit the presidency. I had seen him just 13 days before. His eyes were sunken, his magnificent smile was missing from his care-worn face. He seemed a spent man.

"I realized I would probably have to take over an impossible job, and I had a strange feeling that Mr. Roosevelt knew."

Roosevelt died April 22, 1945. Truman, then vice president, was sworn in that day.

HITLER'S BAN

The 1935 Nobel peace prize was awarded to Carl von Ossietzky, a German pacifist, who was a prisoner of the Nazis. In 1937, Hitler issued a decree in which he called this award an insult to Germany and forbade Germans to accept Nobel prizes.

Power Company Employe to Retire Jan. 1

David F. Parks of 664 Orchard Ave., Canon City, recently announced his retirement from the Southern Colorado Power Company after serving 41 years in the Canon City power plant. His retirement is effective Jan. 1, 1965.

Parks who came to Canon City with his family from Kincaid, Kan., in 1905, started work Dec. 31, 1923, as a coal shoveler on the plant's yards. He worked at that job for seven days a week for six weeks before being transferred to the repair gang, later being moved to the engine room.

He spent 40 years in the engine room which is now called the control room, seeing many new changes and innovations take place in the development of electrical power.

Parks recalled the shoveling job, on which he started, had been replaced by trucks, hopper, crusher and elevators, and many other tasks had been replaced by automation.

The plant produces five times as much electricity now as it did when he started working, Parks said, and employs the same number of men.

In addition, Parks commented, the plant uses 1.2 pounds of coal to produce a a kilowatt of power compared with two to three pounds needed to produce a kilowatt in 1923. And, he added the electrical output at that time was 30 cycles, compared with 60 cycles at present.

Parks also remembers the days when a breakdown at the plant would leave the city without power. "Now with a 'loop' reaching from Pueblo, and backing around through Salida, if the City plant goes out, local residents would notice no difference in the service."

Parke and his wife, Marie have no children. With his retirement, he said he plans to spend more time in his woodworking shop, and tending flowers, two of his favorite pastimes.

Greek Prince Will Wed Commoner

ATHENS (AP) — Prince Michael of Greece and Marina Karella, 24, a commoner, have set Feb. 7 for their wedding.

The royal palace announced the date today. A palace spokesman said King Constantine, a cousin of the 25-year-old prince, would be best man.

Michael was third in line to the Greek throne, but renounced his right of succession to get permission from the king to marry Miss Karella, daughter of a Greek industrialist.

DIVING FIRST?

Earliest reference to the practice of diving occurs in the Iliad, where Patroclus compares the fall of Hector's charioteer to the action of a diver diving for oysters, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Cushing Proposed For Nobel Prize

BURLINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, "deserves the Nobel Prize for meritorious service in behalf of peace and good will," says a Jewish editor.

Dr. Alexander Brin, editor and publisher of the Jewish Advocate in Boston, said Tuesday in a speech to a civic group that Cushing's "magnificent call at the ecumenical assembly has evoked a deep, reverberating echo in humanity's collective heart."

Cardinal Cushing made an impassioned plea for adoption by the council of a document exonerating Jews in the Crucifixion of Christ.

Bombed-Out Negro Church To Be Rebuilt

OBERLIN, Ohio (AP) — They're calling it "Carpenters for Christmas" and the plan is to help rebuild a bombed-out church so Negroes in Ripley, Miss., will have a shelter to worship the Christ child.

About 30 studnts, teachers and townspeople, mostly from Oberlin, will leave here Saturday for Ripley, where the Antioch Missionary Church was bombedand burned Oct. 30 following a Freedom Democratic party civil rights rally.

More than 1,300 Oberlin College students will skip dinner today and chip in the $500 saved to help finance the project, which is led by the Oberlin Action for Civil Rights group. It's an independent organization chartered by Oberlin College.

Final goal for fund-raising is $10,000. Oberlin church congregations gave Thanksgiving Day offerings to the fund which now stands at about $1,500.

"About $5,000 would at least put a roof over their heads," said Jerry VonKorff, cochairman of the project.

The "carpenters" plan to complete the shell of a newly designed building by Jan. 2, at the end of Oberlin's Christmas vacation, so students and teachers can return to classes.

The workers include a mason contractor, a skilled carpenter and several persons with experience in carpentry. They will work along with men of the church.

Handicapped Enjoy Canon Christmas Party

About 40 physically handicapped children and young adults attended the annual Christmas party of the Fremont County Society for Crippled Children and Adults held last Saturday in the National Guard Armory in Canon City.

The party, which is made possible through individual contributions of members of the society board, and cooperation with the Colorado State Penitentiary, is the high point of the year for many of the handicapped youngsters.

All who attended received gifts from Santa Claus; ice cream, cookies, and chocolate milk. The gifts were toys donated by persons in the area, and repaired by prison inmates during the year.

Santa Claus himself, was represented by an inmate, as was a clown helper.

A group of four musicians from the penitentiary provide Christmas music, and students from New Hope School for mentally retarded children, performed in a happy Christmas play.

Overlooking all the festivities was a large Christmas tree provided and decorated by prison inmates. Santa stood near the tree as he gave out his many gifts to the eager youngsters.

Mrs. Edward Delaney, school nurse, in the Fremont District Re-1, is this year's president of the society.

Pack Members Decorate 'Mitten Tree'

At the annual Christmas Pack meeting, Pack 13, sponsored by the Longfellow School PTA decorated their "mitten" tree that was to be presented to the Christian Home for Children.

This was a "good turn" project taken on by the Cubs of Pack 13. Each Cub was given the name and age of a boy at the home. While the parents and Cubs sang Christmas Carols, each Den came forward and placed their mittens on a five fost Christmas tree.

The Denners from each Den took the tree to the home on Saturday and made the presentation. A total of 43 mittens were on the tree.

Den No. 2 has the opening ceremony after which the attendance count was made and presentation of awards. Receiving awards were: Bill Birmingham, Gold Arrow; Allen Hampson, Kevin Liddle, Greg Frank and Kenny Wilson Silver Arrows.

Den No. 4 received the Attendance Ribbon and the Achievement Ribbon for their work in earning awards and getting the parents to attend the pack meeting. Mrs. Irene Frank and Pat Brown are the Den Mothers for Den No. 4.

Ken Willis was inducted into the Webelos Den by their leader Major David Birmingham.

The closing ceremony was conducted by Den 3 who lead the Cubs and Parents in singing Silent Night.

City Jury Acquits Driver In Failure to Yield Case

A Municipal Court jury of three women Tuesday acquitted Lewis James Calvert, 24, 418 N. 28th St., of a charge of failing to yield the right of way.

Calvert was represented by attorney Eugene Bird.

The defendant was cited Sept. 15 by Patrolman Terry Hobt when his car was struck by another car at San Rafael Street and Hancock Avenue.

Calvert, westbound on San Rafael, said he stopped at the sign, saw no other cars approaching on Hancock, a through street, and was almost across the intersection when he saw a flash, and his car was struck.

He said the other driver must have been driving without lights (it was around 7 p.m. on a rainy night) and must have turned her lights on just before she hit his car.

The driver of the other car is out of the state, attending college, and could not appear in court. Judge Allan Asher refused Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac's motion for a continuation of the trial. Bird also resisted Isaac's motion, on grounds that the defendant works outside of the city for the most part, and was prepared for his trial Tuesday.

Under cross-examination by Isaac, Calvert said he talked to the other driver after the accident but it "never occurred" to him at the time to ask her if she had her lights on.

The jury deliberated for about an hour before bringing in the not guilty verdict.

In regular court session Tuesday, Judge Asher found Dr. Gilbert Horn, 48, 4108 Tumbleweed Dr., guilty of speeding and imposed a $15 fine. Dr. Horn said he would appeal the decision.

Robert Bowen, 18, and William Karr, 18, both of Denver, pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness and reckless driving, respectively, and received fines of $25 and $75. Karr also had his right to drive in the city suspended for 60 days.

Julius Chacon, Denver, pleaded guilty to careless driving and was fined $15. Eugene Ortega, 22, Pueblo, failed to appear in court on a speeding charge and his $14 bond was ordered forfeited.

Local Coin Club Meets Tonight

The Colorado Springs Coin Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Carpenter's Hall, Cascade and Costilla. The public is welcome at all club meetings.

With twenty-two members joining the club at the last meeting active membership now totals two hundred and two.

The Colorado Springs Coin Club was activated in December 1962 at Ft. Carson, by Maj. Gen. Ashton H. Manhart. Activated under the name of Coin Club of Carson, the name was changed when the club moved its meeting place to Colorado Springs late in 1963.

Activities planned for Wednesday evening are a coin auction, dealers bourse table, prizes, a coin quiz and refreshments.

Those joining the club at the last meeting were, Don Wilkinson, Donavon G. Scott, V. J. Pietrowski, Faunt D. LeRoy, Richard D. Feasel, Edward Baile, Thelma McElvain, Wallace A. Scotten, Charles A. Wren, Lynn M. Winchester, Opal B. Kohne, Twila Kohne, John Hadley, Steve Hadley, Jim Hadley, Susan Hadley, Bette Maddalena, Herbert Crowl, Mrs. W. G. Huffman and W. G. Huffman.

Junior Choir To Present Cantata Today

The Junior Choir of the Evangelical Presbyterian Church 2511 North Logan Ave., will persent a Christmas pageant and cantata, at 7 p.m. this evening in Seaman's Hall.

The cantata is entitled, "Come, Hear the Story," with text by Nona Keen Duffy, and music by Faith Chambers Wilson.

The production is under the direction of Mrs. James R. Alexander. Mrs. G. O. Horn is the accompanist.

Juniors in the cast include: Mike Chisman, Narrator; Connie Hogan, Mary; Robert Van Westenberg, Joseph; Debbie Dewhirst, Angel; Ann Altmann, Angel; Gary Bostrom, Freddie Vollbracht, Tommy Gorab, Wise Men; Paul Holland, Randy Hogan, Charlie Clark, Shepherds.

Anna Mae Leonard and Kathy Chisman will sing a duet. Violin accompaniment will be played by Cathy Gorab, and Fred Badke will be featured on the trumpet.

The public is cordially invited to attend. There will be an infant nursery provided.

$12,000 Awarded In $400,000 Injury Suit

Jane L. De Hart was awarded $12,000 by a District Court jury Tuesday in the $400,000 personal injury suit brought against Sproul Homes Inc.

No damages were awarded to her husband, Van De Hart who was also listed as a plaintiff.

It was alleged the plaintiff suffered serious injuries, both mental and physical and permanent brain damage when a kitchen cabinet fell off the wall of their home at 309 Sherri Dr. and struck her on the head.

The house has been built by the Sproul company.

Other defendants named in the suit were Colonial Products Co. who made the cabinet, Alfred J. Fritz, the sub-contractor and Gerhard P. Weigel, the supervising foreman, but the cases against them were dismissed during the course of the trial.

Youth Problem Understanding Makes 'Date Line' Column a Hit

Ele and Walt Dulaney, who will write a "Date-Line" column starting soon in the Gazette Telegraph are old enough to have a deep understanding of the problems of young people, yet young enough to have a feeling of personal involvement in hopes and fears of adolescents. Ele was born on the island of Maui in the Hawaiians on July 3, 1938, and Walt was born in Ohio on May 20, 1934.

ELE DULANEY

WALT DULANEY

Ele was graduated from the University of Hawaii; Walt was graduated with a Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Southern California. Walt was on the staff of a Y.M.C. A. organization in Hawaii that was trying to organize a girls club.

It needed an advisor of the female sex and someone suggested Ele Taira. They became friends, then love developed and after serious consideration they married.

"We battle about 12 per cent of the time," said Ele, "but it's always fun making up."

They began writing the "Date-Line" column of guidance and question-answering for young people for the Honolulu Star-Bulletin & Advertiser. It was an instant success. Young people and their parents developed great confidence in their advice, and the paper was flooded with mail and phone calls.

"Each reader is a worthwhile person," said Ele. "Instead of pointing an accusing finger at his sins, we prefer to sit on the same side of the desk with him and consider together the human problems we all have."

"We write for single young people 13 to 30, and for the older adults who are interested in the younger generation," Walt explained. "Our readers are not members of the 'teen-agers forever' cult."

"We're not parents or club mates, but concerned, sincere, older friends," Ele said. "We are always ready to consider each new situation with an open mind. We try to listen to young people more than we talk."

Walt went on, "We like readers to like us, but we won't buy that affection at the cost of sacrificing what we feel is right. We won't be wishy-washy, but we won't light any fake controversies just for excitement. If we step on somebody's toes, it's because of honest disagreement, not just for the sake of stimulating reaction."

Ele is five feet two. She wears trim, sheath dresses and often wears her waist-length jet hair in a single braid. She likes Liszt, Chopin, Puccini and Tshaikovsky, but also digs Broadway scores. When not writing, she works at Kaukini Hospital in Honolulu.

Walt is five feet seven,, has blue eyes and, like so many men promise themselves, works out daily in pool and gym. He collects records, largely vocals, and eats with chopsticks in oriental restaurants.

"He's a map nut," added Ele. "The walls of our house are covered with them. When he's glum, he paints himself out of the mood. Nothing artistic — just messy finger-painting impressionism. But after an hour of tossing red, orange and turquoise at white paper he's happy and relaxed again."

Ele's and Walt's "Date-Line" column starts in the Gazette Telegraph Monday.

Opera Group To Hold Auditions

The Colorado Springs Opera Association will hold auditions for the production of "Die Fledermaus" at 7 p.m. Thursday evening at the choir house of Grace Episcopal Church, Monument and N. Tejon Streets.

The Johann Strauss opera is to be presented at Wasson High Auditorium on April 2-3.

Persons who have auditioned for the local opera association during the past year are not required to audition again, but may do so if they so desire. They should, however, inform the casting committee of their interest in being considered for one of the roles in the opera.

Canon Administrators Meet With Educators

Three Canon City administrators of Fremont School District Re-1 attended the Governor's Conference on Education in Denver, Dec. 11 and 12.

The three were William Stultz, president of the school board; Ralph Monell, superintendent of schools; and Bob Lemons, business manager for the district.

Baton Students Presented in Rotary Program

Ken Burrett presented several of his students in a program of baton twirling and announced his retirement from the position of Colorado Springs Youth Goodwill Ambassador Tuesday at the meeting of the East Side Rotary Club at the Red Carpet Restaurant and Lounge.

Guests of honor were members and leaders of Girl Scout Troop 49, from the Colorado Deaf and Blind School. The troop is sponsored by the East Side Rotary Club. Members are deaf students of cadet level (junior high school age). Present were: Mrs. Catherine Davis, leader; Mrs. Charlotte Stevens and Mrs. Dorothy Sumner, assistant leaders; Miss Barbara Snell, junior assistant; and 16 members of the troop. Presenting them was Dr. Vern Smith.

Baton twirlers appearing on the program were: Clynthia Ladig, 8, 1964 runner-up in the Miss Majorette of Southern Colorado Pageant, junior division; Julie Ann Thornton, first runner-up in the senior division of the Miss Majorette of Colorado contest; Sandra Thornton, Miss Junior Majorette of Colorado; Julie Scott, who placed in the top seven in the Miss Majorette of Southern Colorado contest; and Susan Tull, 7, who placed third in the Miss Majorette of Southen Colorado contest. Misses Tull, Ladig, and Sandra Thornton, three of the 13 members of the Junior Majestics, also present a group number.

Burrett, as a result of the contest Aug. 21-22, 1963, in Toledo, Ohio, won four world titles for baton twirling: grand champion boy, strut title, solo title, and drum major of the world. He has now retired from competitive twirling.

He served as Youth Goodwill Ambassador in Colorado Springs 1963-64, and in Longmont 1960-61. A student at Wasson High School, he plans to continue teaching baton twirling, and, after college, to go into military teaching or social work.

Zenas Brush, president, East Side Rotary Club, was in charge of the meeting. Program chairman was Howard Gray. The invocation was given by the Rev. Harold Knudsen, pastor of the East Methodist Church.

By BYRON AKERS

At a time when Colorado Springs residents are hotel-minded because of the disappearance of the old Antlers and plans for replacing it with a tall, modern hostelry, Mrs. Marian McDonough of Palmer Lake reminded members of the Historical Society of the Pikes Peak Region Tuesday night that the city has always had hotels noted for their accommodations and cuisine.

On Jan. 1, 1872, only five months after the first township stake was driven, the doors of the first fine hotel opened. The site was Pikes Peak and Cascade Avenues where the first stake was driven. The location is now a parking lot.

Built by Gen. William J. Palmer, founder of the city, it was called the Colorado Springs Hotel. It became the center of the young town's social life and its guests included many notables.

"The hotel was a two-story frame building with a mansard roof cut by dormer windows and had numerous towering chimneys," Mrs. McDonough said. "The second story windows were shuttered in the fashion of that period. Across the front of the building was a wide veranda with an unobstructed view of Pikes Peak. The dining room seated 48 and there were rooms for 45 lodgers.

"To visitors in Colorado Springs back in 1872, it was the Antlers and Broadmoor of the city's early days."

Mrs. McDonough showed a worn scrapbook of old newspaper clippings and menus gathered in 1872-1873 by her father, Henry McIntire, the hotel's first manager. Then 20, McIntire came west in 1871 and joined the Denver and Rio Grande survey party. Although young, he had previous hotel experience in Long Branch, N. J. and St. Augustine, Fla.

"Regarding his hotel experience under the apprenticeship of the Lelands as more important than his lack of age, the town company selected him to manage their hostelry. Gen. Palmer may have remembered how very young he was when he became secretary to the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and urged that they hire this young man from New Jersey.

"After the survey party, which had been working from the new town to Pueblo, disbanded the latter part of September, young McIntire tented of some weeks with Dr. William Bell, friend and associate of Gen. Palmer, back of the location of the old railway office on Huerfano Street: now Colorado Avenue).

"When a room could be fitted up for him in the new hotel building, he moved over there. From that time until January 1st he was buying furnishings and superintending the decorating of the hotel."

Mrs. McDonough recalled that "one of the things my father learned in the hotel business was to be an expert meat carver. He could slice roasts, turkeys and chickens like a chef. In later years his children and grandchildren would exclaim, 'Please don't cut the meat so thin you can almost see through it. I'm still hungry!' "

The first manager's scrapbook proved, his daughter said, that "for a sparsely settled locality of Colorado Territory, it had a fabulous cuisine which was considered by many to be the best west of St. Louis.

"From the clippings and momentoes pasted in the old scrapbook, one gathers that early residents of Colorado Springs like elaborate parties and balls and enjoyed gourmet food."

Reporters from leading eastern newspapers extolled the hotel's food and accommodations in the flowery journalistic style of that day.

"One could board and room by the week for $18. Believe it or not, dinner cost a dollar and tea or supper, lodging and breakfast without dinner was $2.50.

"Children at the first table paid full price while smaller children, nurses and servants at the second table were charged half price.

"The menu for breakfast was broiled beef steak, ham, salt mackerel, muttonchops, liver and bacon, fried codfish balls, veal cutlet, hominy, pork steak, potatoes, stewed codfish and cream, corned beef hash, eggs in a variety of styles, and a ide choice of breads.

"The dinner menu was even more staggering and if you could hold up until tea time or supper, a glance at the tea card was reassuring for those with large appetites. You could pick from a list of cold ham, tongue, pressed beef, roast beet or order a sizzling steak and baked potato. There were hot breads of all kinds, or drip and dry toast, fruit, cake and beverages."

According to McIntire's scrapbook, one of the first and most elaborate social events held at the Colorado Springs Hotel was the combination and supper of the Odd Fellows and Masons on May 30, 1872.

"It must have been a gala affair," Mrs. McDonough said. "The souvenir bill of fare was most elaborately done in lavender and gold and offered an astounding menu. If any guest could waltz or polka after this supper, it must have been due to the mountain air."

The New Year's Eve ball that rang out 1873 was the first the hotel's initial large social event attended by the town's leaders.

"According to what my mother remembered of the ball and told me, the public rooms were beautifully decorated with pine boughs and there was a glittering Christmas tree in the lobby. This was mother's first grown-up party and she wore girlish white with lace at the throat and coral wedding broach and ear bobs.

"The dancing began at 9 o'clock with many of the elite of the community present. The festivities continued until 3:30 New Year's morning. Downings orchestra provided the music and an elaborate supper was served at midnight."

When McIntire gave up his position as manager in 1873 to become summer manager of the Oakton Springs Hotel, Pewaukee, Wis., business and professional leaders of the town gave him a farewell banquet. He returned in the fall and went into his father-in-law-to-be's private bank here.

The Colorado Springs Hotel retained its prominence for a decade until Gen. Palmer built the first Antlers and remained in business for some years thereafter.

"According to the Gazette of January, 1894, a part of the hotel was moved to Nevada Avenue and Las Animas Street and was called the Mountain View Hotel. Kenneth Englert, president of the historical society, says another part of the famous old Colorado Springs hotel is now an apartment house on Rio Grande Street."

Mrs. Nelson Hunt was elected president of the historical society for the coming year, succeeding Kenneth Englert. She served as first vice president for the past year.

Fillmore Will Get Another Traffic Signal

A traffic signal will be installed by the middle of next week at Fillmore Street and Templeton Gap Road.

The city and county will split the cost of installation of the signal since the location is half in the city and half in the county.

City Traffic Engineer Don L. Smith said it has been further agreed that the city will maintain and repair the signal and the county will pay the electric utility bill.

Requests have been made off and on for two years to get the intersection signalized, but studies made during that time indicated traffic did not warrant such an installation.

Another 24-hour traffic count ever, and this survey showed that minimum volume requirements for a signal were met or exceeded for six hours and very closely approached for another four hours.

The nationally accepted, recommended and followed warrants for signalization at this type of urban intersection require that a minimum of 500 cars approach the intersection from both approaches of the major street, and a minimum of 150 vehicles approach the intersection from the highest approach of the minor street during the same eight hours of an average day.

More Than 30 Die In India Cold Wave

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 30 dead were reported today as a week-long cold wave continued to grip northern India.

In New Delhi, 13 of an estimated 15,000 persons who live in the streets have died of exposure. The cold wave has killed 17 persons in neighboring Uttar Pradesh State.

Srinagar, capital of the mountain state of Kashmir, and the Vale of Kashmir have been snowed in for days.

NEW DELHI — India is sending ten prominent farm leaders to tour world exhibits.

Rules Changes Opposed by Republicans

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans of some Democarts to try to curb the House Rules Committee's stranglehold on legislation ran into some formidable Republican opposition today.

The plans may be a major subject of consideration at a meeting Wednesday of Republicans now serving in the House or elected to the new Congress convening Jan. 4.

In brief, a group of Democrats with leadership blessing wants to limit to 21 days the time during which the Rules Committee may hold up bills approved by other committees. After 21 days, the speaker could recognize a qualified member to call up such bills, regardless of the Rules Committee's position.

In letters to Republican colleagues, Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri, a leading planner for Wednesday's conference, urged Republicans to oppose the 21-day rule. He called it "the phony device the liberal Democrats have developed" to give the speaker more power.

As an alternative, Curtis proposed more frequent use of an existing rule known as the calendar Wednesday rule. This allows the chairman of a legislative committee to call up for a vote on Wednesdays any bill approved by his committee. It permits a complete by-pass of the Rules Committee, but has been used sparingly in the past because it limits debate.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, chairman of the GOP conference, said at least 115 Republicans have indicated their intention to attend the meeting.

Matters expected to be discussed at the session include proposed changes in the rules of the Republican party and of the House itself, more adequate staffing for minority members of House committees, construction of a new and more popular "image" for the Republican party and perhaps changes in the House leadership structure.

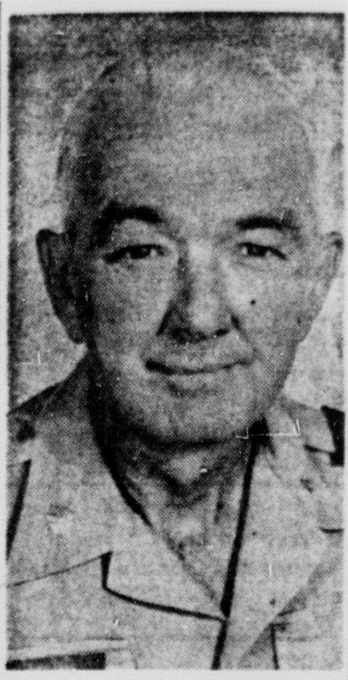
Currently, there are no signs of a major threat to the minority leadership of Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, although several members, including Ford and Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, are known to be available if the GOP dcides to change leaders.

NEW DOG BREED

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — A completels new breed of dogs has been bred here by a sociology professor.

Prof. Ghys Cronje claims the dogs, which now are two months old, show outstanding signs of intelligence. He said that at the age of three weeks they could mount a nine-inch step and by the time that they were four weeks old were retrieving tennis balls thrown away from them.

Cronje has named the new breed "Huskatians." The litter of pups was bred from a German Alsatian police dog and a thoroughbred Alaskan Husky.



LT. COL. PATRICK BREEN

Colonel Breen Named Carson Supply Officer

Lt. Col. Patrick J. Breen is Ft. Carson's new installation supply officer, succeeding Maj. Donald R. Roney who is leaving the mountain post for duty in Korea.

Col. Breen's former command of Ft. Carson's 705th Maintenance Battalion has been taken by Maj. Robert R. Hamling. Maj. Hamling will be in command pending the arrival of Lt. Col. John J. Ballaster Jr. in February.

Col. Breen received an Officer Candidate School commission as an ordnance officer in 1942 at Ft. Warren, Wyo., and served in the China, Burma, India Theater.

He was post athletic director for two years at Ft. Bragg. He took over the rebuilt center at Butzbach, where armor and artillery were repaired, and was director of maintenance for a tank rebuild center in Tokyo until transferred to Korea in 1951.

Then he was materiel officer responsible for maintenance and supply of Eighth Army. Later he commanded an ordnance deport.

Col. Breen also served as commanding officer of troops at Ordnance School and was senior instructor for career officers at Aberdeen Proving Ground. He was graduated with honors in 1957 from the industrial management course at Babson Institute.

He became director of offshore military assistance procurement for Europe and the Middle East while assigned to the Ordnance Procurement Center at Mannheim. Before coming to Carson in 1963 he was senior ordnance procurement instructor at the Army's Logistic Management Center.

Col. Breen holds the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster won in Burma and Korea.

Israel Seeks New Cabinet After Scandal

By ERIC GOTTGETREU

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP) — Israel was in the market for a new government today following the resignation of Premier Levi Eshkol, forced out by a 10-year-old security scandal.

Eshkol quit after a rift in his Mapai party caused by former Premier David Ben-Gurion's demands for a new inquiry into the mysterious Lavon affair, which occurred while Pinhas Lavon was defense minister.

There was speculation that Eshkol, 69, would again be asked to form a government but would accept only on condition that the Lavon affair not be reopened. Meanwhile, he and his Cabinet remain in office as a caretaker government.

(Israeli censorship has prevented publication of details of the Lavon affair in Israel, but it is believed to involve the crushing of an Israeli spy ring in Cairo because of a security leak during Lavon's tenure.)

In his letter of resignation to President Zalman Shazar, Eshkol said: "No practical purpose will be served by an inquiry into an affair that took place 10 years ago. On the other hand, I foresee serious injury internally and externally to the country's standing and good name."

Ben-Gurion's demand had caused a serious crisis in the Mapai party, Israel's largest, to which he and Eshkol belong.

Observers felt that the Mapai would have to call on Eshkol again to head the government. Its only other member of comparable stature is Ben-Gurion, but at 78 he is believed unwilling to take over the government. And his demands for a new Lavon inquiry have so alienated the Mapai's coalition partners that he probably would be unacceptable to them.

A special ministerial committee exonerated Lavon in 1960. Ben-Gurion bitterly objected and resigned as premier the following year. He returned to power a month later but retired on June 16, 1963. Eshkol, finance minister since 1952, took over.

Ben-Gurion has said he has amassed new evidence in the Lavon case which would upset the findings of the ministerial committee.

Eshkol and Ben-Gurion had been close friends while Ben-Gurion was premier. Their friendship is said to have cooled in recent years.

"GENTLEMEN OF CLOTH"

While the word "cloth" has come to mean a fabric, it meant clothing at one time and this old meaning is retained in referring to clergymen as "gentlemen of the cloth" in regard to their distinctive clothing.

Gourmet Dinners Are Served by Little Brothers

By CARROLL ARIMOND

CHICAGO (AP) — The Bible says simply, "Feed my lambs," but the Little Brothers of Notre Dame won't settle for that.

They feed their lambs — hundreds of Chicago's elderly and forgotten — a la Francais with homard (lobster), punch au rhum and petits fours.

"A meal of any kind will sustain the body," says Brother Jack Riordan, "but we want to feed the spirit as well. The little special things we do, like serving champagne or setting the fruit salad on fire, gives our friends a consciousness of their dignity, a feeling someone remembered."

Over the Christmas weekend, Riordan and his three brother companions in the only center of its kind in the United States will serve gourmet dinners to 750 persons and present each with a small gift — gloves, cologne or perfume.

Most of the guests will be entertained at parties in neighborhood halls. The bedridden will be served hot dinners in their dwellings.

A brother bearing a tray and a brightly wrapped parcel will be the only visitor many of these shut-ins will have during the yule season.

The practical will say that without the frills the brothers could serve an ordinary meal to twice as many persons. But that would mean abandonment of an idea conceived by Armand Marqueset, a Paris business man, in 1939.

He wanted to do something then about remembering the elderly poor without making them feel they were objects of charity. But the war intervened and it was 1946 before he founded the brothers in Paris.

The brothers are laymen, but take yearly vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. After five years they promise to remain brothers for life, but they can be released from this pledge.

There are about 50 brothers around the world, operating five centers in France, and others in Montreal and Casablanca.

Michael Salmon, a Parisian, started the Chicago center in 1959 and was joined by Patrick Demenge, whose home was in the French Alps. Not French, but Chicago West Side Irish, Riordan cast his lot with the brothers in 1962. Joseph Ryan, like Riordan a former Chicago high school football player, joined later.

Both Riordan and Ryan have trained in the Cordon Bleu School of Cuisine in Paris.

When they're not working on menus, they're contacting benefactors to keep their pots boiling.

'I Had a Ball' Musical Said Helter-Skelter

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — "I Had a Ball" is a helter-skelter musical with an unfortunate knack of getting in its own way.

Starring Buddy Hackett, the production premiered Tuesday night at the Martin Beck Theater. Among jubilant assets are a top-notch, toe-tapping score; garish excitement galore; and some slick performers.

Each time the affair gives promise of becoming an entertainment blockbuster, it is dragged down by a leaden, untidy book and a lack of artistic discipline.

Hackett enacts a Coney Island pitchman looking for a fast buck with a mixture of psychoanalysis and fortune-telling. To help a pal, he stares into a crystal ball, coyly named Sam. To get the audience into a properly receptive state for the ensuing honky-tonk fantasy, Hackett looks out over the house and challenges: "Is there anybody here who doesn't believe in Tinkerbell?"

Jerome Chodorov, who wrote the book, doesn't, however, match James Barrie as a master of whimsy. His humor is generally primitive and occasionally vulgar.

The bulk of enjoyment is in the score by Jack Lawrence and Stan Freeman, who have turned out a series of lilting tunes and sharp lyrics.

With Hackett on stage are Richard Kiley, in superb vocal form; an irresistibly potent new songstress, Karen Morrow; and Luba Lisa, a bikini-clad cutie with boop-a-doop pipes.

Tourists are permitted to search for diamonds in the Crater of Diamonds at Murfreesboro, Ark.

Dr. King Hails Compliance In Race Issue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has joined other Negro leaders in hailing widespread Southern compliance with the public accommodations section of the Civil Rights Act.

The president of the Atlanta-based Southern Christian Leadership Conference said in Paris Tuesday that compliance "has been good up to now and will be improved" as a result of the U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the ban on discrimination in public facilities.

King, who was en route home from Oslo where he received the Nobel Peace Prize, added: "The hard core of resistance, it is hoped, will recognize and obey the law of the land."

But pockets of resistance remained in some rural sections of the South, especially in communities where there were no biracial committees. Such groups helped smooth the path for desegregation in major Southern cities.

Paul Anthony of the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta said businesses in most rural communities probably would comply if the act were tested.

Richard Haley, regional director for the Congress of Racial Equality at New Orleans, said his office has received only six complaints from Louisiana since the civil rights law went into effect.

This absence of complaints, he said, could mean little effort is being made to test the public accommodations section.

Tests in some Mississippi cities resulted in compliance with the law, but there is little desegregation in the state. The Jackson Chamber of Commerce recommended compliance in July and most facilities which did not comply converted to private clubs.

In North Carolina, no major areas of resistance were reported. The president of the NAACP in the state, Kelly Alexander, said that next year his organization would work for better educational and employment opportunities.

The need to concentrate on discrimination in jobs, education and housing also was mentioned by Negro leaders in Tennessee, Alabama, and Georgia.

In South Carolina, many businesses have complied with the law. In Texas and Virginia, where there has been little open resistance, voter registration is being emphasized rather than demonstrations and sitins.

The Lee House Diner in Petersburg, last known holdout against the civil rights law in Virginia, said it would comply with the law after the Supreme Court upheld the public accommodations section.

Desegregation of restaurants and motels continued in Atlanta, once the scene of demonstrations and mass arrests.

But Lester Maddox reiterated that he would never serve Negroes at his segregated Atlanta cafeteria. His case is pending before the Supreme Court.

John Lewis, chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, said he was gratified by the degree of compliance in rural Georgia.

Lewis and other civil rights leaders said there would have been no compliance with the law and little or no desegregation without demonstrations and Harold Ellis and Glen Johnston are getting out Christmas trees and boughs.

Lee McGlasson, of Oklahoma City, had a critical heart attack. He is reported in serious condition.

Warner and Shirley Lasher, Timmie and Tammie, Deldon and Ella Mae Ellis spent Sunday with the Harold Ellis family.

The school bus hit a patch of ice Friday evening, Dec. 4, just west of Divide. The bus laid over in the bar pit. Mrs. Martin Hammer had three grandchildren on the bus. The people of Divide would like to thank the servicemen who picked the children up and took them to Florissant.

Happy birthday to Harold Ellis, Warren Rainwater, Mrs. Mary McCutchen and Mrs. Arvilla Hodges and happy anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Billy Rainwater.

Mrs. Hagerty received a letter from Mrs. Campbell of Canon City. She is reported to be not very well.

Mrs. Taylor Attends International Conference

Mrs. Thelma Taylor, wife of Lt. Col. Gil W. Taylor, 2010 Eagle View, Colorado Springs, recently participated in the sixth annual conference of European Area American Red Cross volunteer chairmen at Berchtesgaden, Germany.

Mrs. Taylor, Red Cross Volunteers' Chairman at the U. S. Army's Wurzburg garrison, was one of 56 representatives from Red Cross groups at U.S. military installations in France, Italy, Holland and Germany attending the four-day conference. Discussion centered around a simplified plan for updating the American Red Cross volunteer program, which became effective in the European area Nov. 1.

The new plan affects more than 3,000 American Red Cross volunteer workers in Europe, North Africa and the Middle East. The plan provides an opportunity to expand community services and basic instruction for all volunteers, specialized for individuals by the organizations they serve.

Mrs. Taylor was appointed Wurzburg chairman last July. She was a Red Cross volunteer Gray Lady locally during her husband's former assignment to the area in 1952 and a Red Cross volunteer nurse's aid in Wichita Falls, Tex. during World War II. She was also an active volunteer at the Colorado State School for the blind.

As volunteer chairman, Mrs. Taylor works with the Red Cross Field Director assigned to the Wurzburg post, coordinating the activities of the Red Cross volunteers at the installation. Through the Field Director, she joins community leaders in the continuous review of local needs, and the Red Cross volunteer program provides appropriate Red Cross services to assist in meeting these needs.

Lt. Col. Taylor is presently Deputy Commander of the Air Force's 602d Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron in Wurzburg. The couple have two daughters.

The Mature Parent

Too Much 'Understanding'?

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My daughter, 12, had a very bad childhood. Her father and I separated when she was 3. As I had to work, she lived with my parents and my sisters' families. She has never forgiven me for this bad childhood. Though I remarried two years ago in the hope of giving her a decent home and father, she gets back at me by defying me. She is supposed to check in at home after school but will not do it. . .

ANSWER: You are so eager to regard yourself as a bad mother that you have begun to convince your child you are one.

Why should she check in after school to please a mother who gave her such a terrible childhood? If you want this child to give you better consideration, you'll have to start giving some to yourself.

Were you so happy during that "bad childhood" of hers? Did you enjoy your separation from her? How were they for you—the lonely meals at night; the daily struggles at your office; the painful sense of your own homelessness when you visited the homes of your parents and sisters? Did you have a fine time during those years of this child's "bad childhood"?

You know, we can give too much "understanding" to other people. We can struggle so hard to "understand" a child's reasons for mistreating us that we cannot see how we are mistreating ourselves. We so concentrate on the bad things which the child experienced that our own experience of bad things ceases to be real to us.

So anxious are we to feel the child's hurts that we lose all feeling for our own. And with the loss of sympathy for them, we also lose our respect for the courage with which we endured them. The meaning of our own brave struggles with adverse circumstances is overwhelmed in guilty pity for the child's.

If you could now begin to remember your own bad times during your daughter's "bad childhood," appreciation of yourself might begin to seem appropriate to you. By recalling your efforts to move out of those bad times into better times, those efforts would begin to seem worthy of respect. Contemptuous treatment by other people would make no sense to you at all. And when it was given to you by this child, it would appear so unmerited to you that you would turn on her—and open her eyes to her mother.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	2 ◇	2 ♠
3 ◇	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇

North's hand is of about average strength and merits one forward-going move when partner opens the bidding. Although the trump holding is not quite up to the standard requirements, an immediate raise to two spades does the best all round job of describing North's holding, and is not apt to lead to subsequent complications.

West opened the king of diamonds against the final contract of four spades, and the ace was played from dummy. Declarer decided to test the trumps first and he accordingly cashed two high spades. When all hands followed, South temporarily permitted the nine of spades to remain outstanding while he switched his attentions to the club suit.

A small club was led to the king and, on the return, declarer successfully finessed the jack. He tried to cash the ace; however, West ruffed in, and the defenders proceeded to cash one diamond and two hearts to register a one trick setback.

Observe that it would not have helped South to draw the last trump, for dummy lacks the entry needed to repeat the club finesse. It was declarer's hope that, if clubs did not divide evenly, the hand with the four clubs would also have three trumps. In that case, South would be able to safely ruff out his last club with the eight of spades.

A three-three division of the outstanding clubs was not favored by the odds, and declarer's handling of the suit was based on a somewhat remote prospect. A better plan of campaign - in the opinion of this department-is to arrange for repeated finesses in clubs. Inasmuch as communication with the dummy is severely restricted, South must begin his oerations in the club suit without delay.

It is suggested that, when West's diamond lead drives out one of North's two entries at the opening gun, declarer should lead the three of clubs and take a first round finesse in his hand. When the jack of clubs holds, South can afford to draw the trumps, for he is in position to reenter the dummy subsequently with the king of clubs to repeat the finesse.

The Bride Cooks

AP Food Editor

Orange Juice
Wheat Germ Pancakes with Butter and Maple Syrup
Crisp Bacon Beverage

Wheat Germ Pancakes

½ cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
teaspoon salt
¼ cup wheat germ
1 egg
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon salad (not olive) oil

In a mixing bowl, stir together the flour, baking powder and salt; stir in wheat germ; add the egg, milk and oil. With a rotary beater, hand or electric, beat just until blended; batter will be thin. Bake on a hot (380 degrees) greased griddle until top surface is almost dry; turn and bake other side. Makes 2 large servings.

Chiffonade salad dressing is often found on the menus of fine hotel restaurants. Why not make it at home? You can do so by adding finely chopped hard-cooked egg and cooked beets to French dressing.

Spot or Floodlighting Brings Out Home Beauty

CHICAGO (UPI)—The use of spot and floodlighting is becoming more popular to highlight special paintings, sculptures, fireplaces, draperies or other areas where well - controlled high intensities of light are desirable.

Floodlights in swivel reflectors, aimed to light draperies, can be dimmed to suit the mood or the seeing need in a living room. Dimming devices can change the entire "feel" of a room without affecting the local light for close-seeing jobs.

Colors of spot or floodlights can be mixed. Equal numbers of pink, blue-white and yellow lamps, for example, produce a general lighting effect that's somewhat like that of white light, but far more stimulating.

This lighting technique is appropriate for almost any application. A fireplace with a surface of brick, stone or wood paneling can reflect soft indirect light into the seating area to make the hearth a natural gathering place. One lamp can be aimed at the raised hearth to feature decorative accessories and fireplace equipment. Normally, floodlights are placed at least 8 to 18 inches out from the wall and 2 to 3 inches apart for this type of application.

For beauty and flexibility of living space, draperies can be lighted with recessed "hi-hat" units using 150-watt floodlights. They highlight the draperies and provide an interesting play of light and shadow. Spot or floodlights on draperies should be turned on only when the draperies are drawn; otherwise reflections from the window wall might reveal lint or fingerprints on the glass surface.

Downlight Technique

Downlights over a furniture grouping can give a quality of spaciousness to a room. You can even light curtained window walls, directing the light toward the bottom of the window.

Aim downlights over sculpture or paintings so they graze the artwork to bring out its full color tints and highlights, yet do not bounce reflections from it or dull its beauty by swallowing it up in a glare of light.

Every home has hidden beauty to be brought out by spot and floodlighting. At one time, the technique was considered "theatrical" and had few applications to the home. But new developments in light sources have reduced the size of spot and floodlight bulbs and have made them practical for many applications in almost every room of the home.

Probably the most commonly used household spotlight bulb is the 75-watt size, available either as a spot or a flood. Because of its small size it can be mounted in simple "hi-hat" fixtures, which are very shallow and ideal in all types of ceiling constructions.

Some good cooks like to baste ham, while it's baking, with sherry or ginger ale.

CLOSE ONES

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts, Los Angeles Rams and St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League each won five games by seven points or less last season.

Nice flavor change for corn: cook diced onion until golden in butter or margarine and add to hot drained whole-kernel canned corn. If there's a green pepper on hand, you can dice a little of this and cook it with the onion.

Beta Sigs to Hold Annual Christmas Party

The Delta Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will hold their Christmas party at the Candlelight Inn at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

It is usually easy to remove wafer-type cookies from their baking pans if you use a pan-coating of fat and flour.

Gamma Phi Groundbreakers "Dig In" At New Sorority House Location

Gamma Phi Beta actives and alumnae held ground-breaking ceremonies Tuesday at 1110 Wood Ave., the site of their new sorority house.

The Colorado College chapter has occupied temporary quarters next-door at 1122 Wood Ave., since their Cache La Poudre house was torn down to accommodate the college's sports center.

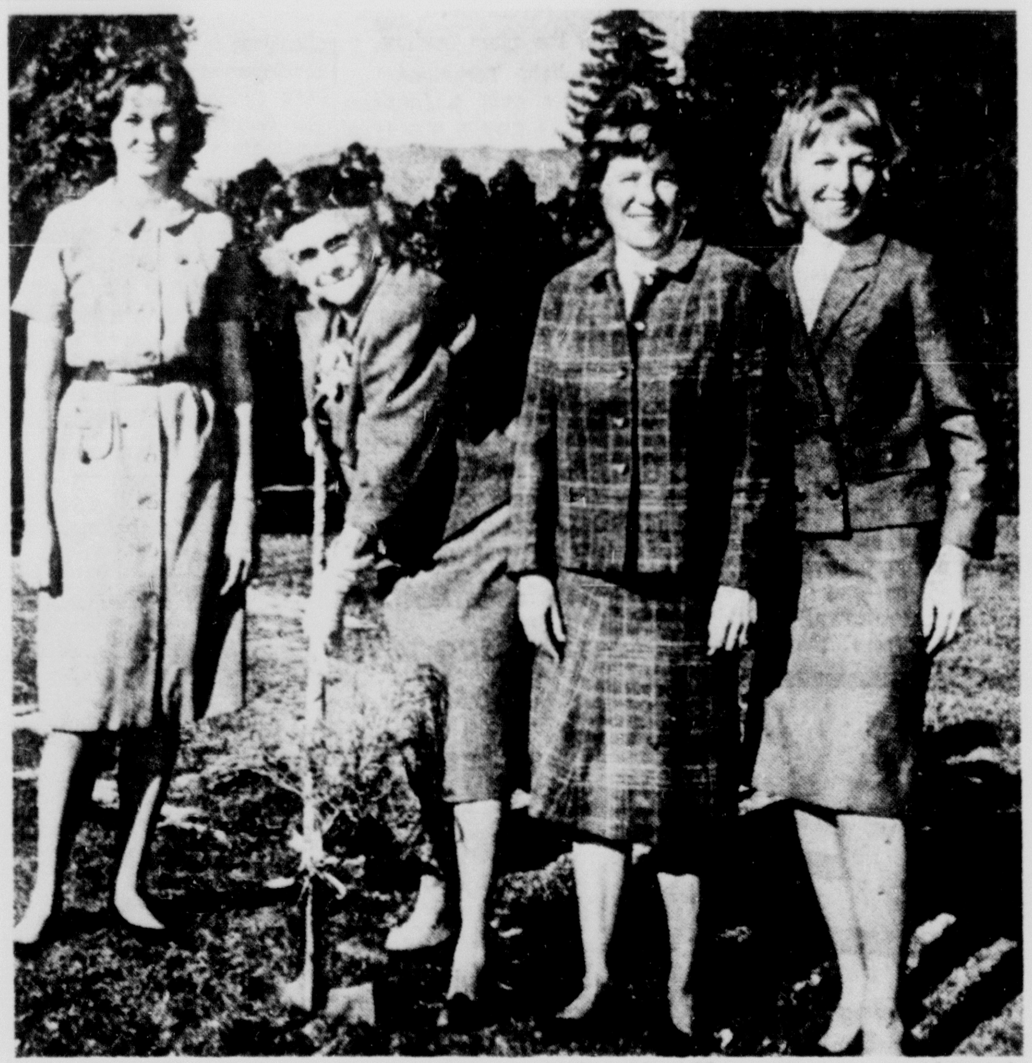
The traditionally-styled new house will be of white brick with rooms for meeting and studying plus a housemother's apartment.

The living room with an unobstructed view of the Rockies will have French doors opening to a terrace and sunken garden. A snack bar will adjoin the lower level recreation room, and a complete kitchen is in the first floor plans.

House board members instrumental in planning the new house are Mrs. Harry W. Williams, president; Mrs. Jerry A. Smith, Mrs. T. Matson Collier, Mrs. Norbert Socha, Mrs. Morris Miller and Mrs. Shelly McMillin, Mrs. Wayne F. Cooper is alum chapter president, and Mrs. Marcia Irving is president of the active chapter.

Alpha Phi chapter of Gamma Phi Beta has been on the CC campus since 1932. The Colorado Springs alumnae chapter was chartered the same year. Two of the original House Board members, Mrs. Loring Lennox and Mrs. Vera Hebert, are still active alumnae and were honored at the ceremony.

Mrs. James Phillips was hostess at a coffee hour at the Gamma Phi House following the groundbreaking.



DIGGING IN — Colorado Springs' Gamma Phi Beta, sorority activities and alumnae broke ground at 1110 Wood Ave. Tuesday to get the building of their new chapter house under way. Participating in the ceremony were (left to right) Miss Marcia Irving, president of the active chapter; Mrs. Loring Lennox, an original House Board member; Mrs. Harry W. McWilliams, House Board president, and Mrs. Wayne Cooper, alumnae club president.

Ever use sour cream for a cole slaw dressing? Just mix with lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper to taste. The slaw may be made from shredded green cabbage or the cubbage

Green cabbage (shredded) tastes especially good when it is pan-cooked with a little butter and water.

Only the Steinway sounds like a Steinway
Those who know pianos best know that the tone of a Steinway can be produced at no other keyboard. What is the secret? Critical attention to details of design, materials and workmanship, assuring technical supremacy in hundreds of hidden places. This gives our piano the tone that inspires you, and the longevity that protects your investment. Grands and Verticals are built in attractive styles.

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM FOR CHRISTMAS
Colo. Springs: Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.
Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A featherstitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.
The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra® spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.
"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer-genius, Olga. They are available at Neustetters, Foundation Department, Third Floor adv.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

More Bad Luck!

DEAR ABBY: I have had very bad luck with husbands. One died, and I divorced two, and now I am alone again. My thoughts keep going back to a very fine man I used to know between my second and third husbands. About a year ago I heard that his wife had cancer and it was just a matter of time. I would like to find out if she is dead yet. I have lost all contact with my friends in that town but I do have this man's business address. How can I let him know that I would enjoy seeing him again without having it look like I am chasing him? Also, how can I find out for sure if his wife is dead yet? —MILWAUKEE

DEAR MILWAUKEE: Information of this kind should be sought through a mutual friend. And there is no way a woman can let a man know that she would "enjoy seeing him again without appearing aggressive — especially when she would enjoy it so much that she can hardly wait to bury his wife.

DEAR ABBY: It seems that the saying, "Girls fall for men who are heels" is true, yet no one has been able to tell me why. I know it is true in my case because every man I have ever fallen for has been a heel. They have all been rough, abusive, lying, cheating and strictly no good. But even knowing this, I can't stop loving them. Can you tell me why a woman goes right on loving a man like that? —MAD ABOUT JOE

DEAR MAD: There are many women who "go right on loving a heel" because they feel a deep sense of unworthiness, a need for punishment and, deep down, they feel that they don't deserve anything better. It is a "sick" love that thrives on punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem with a neighbor who has recently moved into my neighborhood. I knew her casually years ago, and I suppose that's the reason she has latched on to me. While she is a good-hearted soul, and I enjoy her company in small doses, I do not have enough in common with her to become the bosom buddy she is trying to make of me. I work and she doesn't, and the minute she sees my car in my driveway she runs over to visit. She also feels free to intrude when I have other guests. The situation is becoming very trying. I would tell her off once and for all, but I don't like to hurt people's feelings. I'd like to remain friendly with her without giving her the freedom of my house. Can this be done? —WORKING WOMAN

DEAR WORKING: That depends: If you have the courage to tell your neighbor that you have only a limited amount of time for "visitors" and please to wait until YOU call HER, you can retain your privacy, and perhaps her friendship in "small doses." On the other hand, if HER feelings mean more to you than YOUR privacy, prepare to surrender your privacy and don't complain.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Connie's Sister, Kathy": Please send me your address. It is very important that I get in touch with you.

Problems? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A delightful way to serve grapefruit, whether you are having a few guests or a large group.

Shrimp Curry Steamed Rice
Condiment Tray of Mango Chutney, Crisp Onion Rings and Fresh Tomato Relish
Sesame Crackers Green Salad
Grapefruit on the Half Shell

Grapefruit on the Half Shell

Grapefruit
Clover Honey
Slivered toasted blanched almonds

Use a half grapefruit for each serving. With a small sharp knife, cut away sections from dividing membranes. If grapefruit is seedless, use a kitchen scissors to snip out center membrane; if grapefuit has seeds, use a small sharp knife to cut out center in plug shape. Spoon honey into center; chill. Just before serving, sprinkle almonds over center.

DESIGNING WOMAN — Mrs. Heidi Brandt (left) is a "designing woman," she tells Mrs. Robert F. McDermott, wife of the U.S. Air Force Academy Dean of Faculty. Mrs. Brandt, who talked on holiday greeting design at the Academy Officers' Wives Club December luncheon, is with the Colorado Springs Looart Press, Inc. She is the only U.S. artist to win the TB Christmas seal design competition three times. Her next design will appear on the 1966 seal. Gary Loo, another member of the Looart Press, Inc. firm, also spoke to the wives on the greeting card business.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I am writing to say how much I appreciated the hint which appeared in your column last year just before Christmas. It worked so well in our family that I think it should be repeated so that other mothers might enjoy the holidays, too.

Your advice about having Christmas dinner on Christmas Eve really worked for us. There was less excitement, so everyone ate better and enjoyed the entire meal.

Then, on Christmas Day, I reheated some of the leftovers, sliced some ham and fixed a buffet on my table. Whenever we were hungry, we just helped ourselves to whatever we wanted, as often as we wanted, and it was wonderful . . .

My husband and I spent the entire day relaxing and enjoying the company of our children. —Patricia Stevens

And, folks, a Mrs. Philip Powell wrote about this wonderful idea last year. She said her husband decided that "she" should be in on some of the fun of watching the children enjoy themselves Christmas morning and NOT in the kitchen trying to get a big meal which, when ready, was never eaten because the children were too excited with the things Santa had left.

Mrs. Powell also used fancy paper plates to make it more festive so there would not be a lot of dishes to wash later.

She brought peace into her household on this glorious day, and not only that, but she didn't have to stand in the kitchen and do all the cleaning up afterwards. I think this is a wonderful way really to enjoy the holidays. So, if you have your Christmas tree Christmas morning, why not have your lovely dinner (which you have worked so hard on) on the Eve?

And may the glory of the holidays be with you all. —Love, Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Do not throw away caps from empty detergent bottles.

Glue two of them together, put narrow rick-rack or pretty, colored adhesive tape over the seams and sprinkle on glitter or glue small stars on them, from your dime store. Use them for Christmas decorations on your small Christmas tree! —Anna Johnson

Dear Heloise:

I've discovered a grand use for a baby bathinette. It is a perfect aid for Christmas gift wrapping.

The tub itself holds the spools of ribbon with only the ends dangling outside ready for winding into bows. Inside the tub the ribbon spools are free to roll around without eventually finding their way to the floor.

The row of plastic pockets across the top are made to order for keeping scissors, pencil, pen, cellophane tape, tags, etc., right at hand.

The lower tray holds my assortment of wrapping papers, and the top 'table' part is just the proper back-saving height, and its size has proven to be adequate for wrapping packages, large or small.

Try it—you'll never give up that bathinette even if you're about to be a grandmother!—Elaine S. Kay

Dear Heloise:

One more use for your nylon net:

Last year I hung a curtain of it a corner of the living room and pinned the Christmas cards on it. The thin net shows so little that the cards have an appearance of floating in air, and it holds many cards. —L. Lucas

Dear Heloise:

At Christmas time, when I have several small gifts for several different families, I just put the name of each family on a large shopping bag and as I wrap a gift, I put it in the right bag.

The shopping bags make for easier delivery, also. —Helen L. Clark

Stop Winter Wrinkles

Use the colder months to give your skin a lovely bloom, but guard against dry wrinkles caused by the cold air. Even mildly crisp air causes the skin to contract, preventing protective oils from reaching the surface. Ask your druggist for a little oil of olay, and before you make-up, smooth it over your face, neck and hands. You will be amazed how quickly this moist oil will give the skin a peaches-and-cream loveliness, esepcially on cold days. Your druggist should be able to get you a small supply.

. . . Margaret Merril.

ERRORLESS

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Outfielder Danny Litwhiler of the Philadelphia Phillies went through the entire 1942 season without making an error.

Household Hints

United Press International

Time saver: Arrange herbs and spices alphabetically on a wall rack so there no need to shuffle through all the jars and bottles.

Cook any leftover frozen fruit that has thawed. Cooking helps the fruit retain its color and prevents spoilage.

Wipe all refrigerator spills immediately. Acid foods such as lemons, tomatoes and milk can eat into the enamel and colored vegetables like carrots can leave stubborn spots.

To dampen clothes for ironing, a bottle that is easy to hold and is corked with a sprinkler top usually dispenses moisture more evenly than hand sprinkling. Atomizer sprinklers also are available.

MIGHTY MITE

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pat Fischer of the St. Louis Cardinals is the smallest player in the National Football League, standing 5-8 and weighing 167 pounds.

For extra flavor, marinate chicken pieces in oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper before flouring and frying.

What's New

United Press International

A new shower unit, shaped like a cylinder, eliminates the need for shower curtains. The manufacturer said the molded fiberglass units have no dirt-catching corners either and are designed to keep water from dripping on the floor.

(The Swan Corp., 721 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.).

Ready-to-install billfold doors now come with decorative grillework inserts. They are available in two and four-door units, complete with all hardware and knobs. Their natural light-diffusing and see-through qualities make them suitable for kitchen, living room and dining room areas, as well as playrooms, family rooms and dens. The grillework, a silicon-impregnated die - cut hardboard, is as strong as solid paneling despite the openwork. It resists moisture, scuffs, stains and is finished smooth on both sides for easy paint application.

(Panelboard Manufacturing Co. Inc., 222 Pacific St., Newark, N.J.).

A new conecpt of protection and convenience for family storage is provided by a new unit which combines sanitized wardrobe space and shelving fiberboard storage unit is treated to withstand 200 pounds of weight. It also has a humidor unit, a perforated box attached to the hat shelf which assures more effective use of moth or para flakes. The sanitizing of interior walls and shelves protects against mildew.

(Stor Right Co., Garfield, N.J.).

Three new designs in the "fun with borders" wallpaper collection feature a French chef design, a scroll pattern, and a perky canopy border. The chef border is a humorous potpourri done on a white background with such top colors as red, orange, green, fuschia, and blue. The scroll border comes in burgundy, wedgewood, empire green, black and gold. The canopy one comes in five colors on white—yellow, red, blue, black and green.

(United Wallpaper Co., 3101 S. Kedie Ave., Chicago, Ill.).

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

RANDY SPARKS TURNS HARD TIMES INTO GOOD

Hollywood —The first time I met Randy Sparks was on Bob Hope's '58 Christmas tour to the Azores, Madrid, Naples, Frankfurt and Berlin. He sang and and was delightful. I thought when he came back his career would zoom, but he tells me it was starvationsville. His marriage was breaking up. His only ossessions were a house in Tarzana and an idea for a folk singing group. All he had to offer the singers was shelter, so 14 people moved into his home and started rehearsing. Columbia agreed to make one record with them. They waited for money; none came. Randy sold the house to support them. When they reached absolute bottom, the money poured in. The group is the new Christy Minstrels. Randy recently sold it for 2½ million dollars.

Meanwhile our hero married Diane Jergens, has a baby son, a new home in Bel Air, a coupple of music publishing firms, and a club in Westwood, Ledbetters, which he uses as a rehearsal hall for his new folk singing groups.

Julie Andrews has so many irons in the fire she can't go home for Christmas. She signed to star in "Hawaii," is making plans for a TV special to be taped in March and broadcast in September, and husband, Tony Walton, is busy on Broadway. I told Julie I liked her on Andy Williams' show, but thought the writers should make her dialog sharper and less saccarine: "You're not as sweet as you look."

"That's the nicest thing you ever said to me, Hedda."

Pat Boone drove out from his house, stopped to say hello, and almost got run down by a bulldozer. You take you life in your hands when your drive anywhere in Beverly these days. Pat has invited his whole family from Nashville, Tenn., for Christmas, and a dozen are coming. What with his own brood of four, plus Pat and Mama, their house will look like a dormitory.

Desi Arnaz IV and Dean Martin Jr. take their band into H. D. Hover's Century restaurant. Their dads worked for Hover when he ran Ciro's.

John Cohn and son, Harry Jr., take off next week to spend the holiday in London. She's taking her longies along. She tells me Laurence Harvey finishes in "Camelot" February 1 and comes here for at least a month before returning to London for "Life at the Top." . . . It looks as thought John Cassavetes and his wife, Gena Rowlands, will have a his and her TV series.

KIDNEY STONE COLIC

Passing a kidney stone (calculus) is a painful experience. The severity and duration of the attach of colic depends upon the size and shape of the rock and whether its surface is smooth or prickly. Large stones usually get stuck in the tube going from the kidney to the bladder (ureter), causing obstruction. Small rough pebbles scratch and irritate the passageway as they inch their way along, trying to escape.

Pain comes in waves, generally starting in the kidney area. It shifts to the front and goes down into the groin as the calculus moves toward the bladder. The victim grunts, groans, and twists about, trying to find a comfortable position.

As the stone approaches the bladder, an intense feeling of urgency to urinate develops. Distension, nausea, and vomiting may ensue. Painkillers such as morphine and atropine ease distress and these drugs may relax the tube, making passage of the stone easier.

Pain persists so long as the stone moves. It may subside if the stone gets stuck, giving the impression that the attack is over. Physicians have been fooled so often they now rely upon X-rays to determine the progress of the rock.

Furthermore, all urinary specimens are passed thru a strainer in order to retrieve the stone. This is important because urinary calculi are made up of chemicals that come originally from the body. Analysis of the stone provides the clew as to the ingredients and it may be possible to prevent recurrences.

From 80 to 90 per cent of the kidney stones pass spontaneously. Those larger than three-eighths of an inch in diameter are too big to escape and cause obstruction. A period of watchful waiting is suggested; if no progress is made, the surgeon tries one of several procedures to dislodge the calculus or to dilate the ureter. Surgical removal is done as a last resort.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on kidney stones if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

BLUE FUNK

J. S. writes: Whenever I walk into a public building, such as the library for books, or a civil service office for an exam, I break into a sweat and can hardly talk. Do you think my adrenal glands are too active?

REPLY

No. If anything, they are not active enough. This reaction indicates lack of confidence in yourself or a feeling of insecurity.

HEART DISORDERS

L. M. writes: What is the difference between an enlarged heart and coronary disease?

REPLY

The heart enlarges when it works harder, such as occurs when the blood pressure is elevated or a valve is too narrow or does not close properly (leakage). The coronary arteries supply the heart muscle with nourishment and arteriosclerosis is the main disease of these vessels.

CHILDHOOD NEPHRITIS

R. A. writes: My 10-year-old daughter has just recovered from an attack of acute glomerular nephritis. What do's and don'ts should I follow to prevent a recurrence?

REPLY

Guard against streptococcal infections. Recurrences are not common but in approximately 10 per cent there is residual damage to the kidneys and the disease smolders for years.

MEASLES PROTECTION

Mrs. M. R. writes: Is the measles vaccine long lasting or must boosters be given every

REPLY

FEW YEARS?

REPLY

Long lasting, when the vaccine produces a mild form of the disease.

Tobacco Heir Reynolds Dies At Age of 58

LUCERNE, Switzerland (AP) — The body of tobacco heir Richard J. Reynolds Jr. is to be cremated Thursday.

Reynolds, 58, died Monday at a Lucerne clinic. He moved to Lucerne two years ago after he was stricken with chronic emspyshema, a lung disease.

The cigarette heir's doctors had testified during a court acbeen aggravated by excessive smoking.

His fourth wife, the former Dr. Annemarie Schmitt, 35, of Germany, was with him when he died. Six sons also survive, and the widow is expecting a baby.

Reynolds was born in Winston-Salem, N.C., the eldest of the four children of tobacco magnate R. J. Reynolds. He ran away to sea at the age of 17, inherited $20 million from his father at 28, and made his own mark in the aviation and shipping industries.

In 1940 he was elected mayor of Winston-Salem and in January 1941, was named treasurer of the Democratic National Committee. He resigned both posts in 1942 to enter the Navy, where he won a Bronze Star for service aboard a carrier off the Philippines.

After the war he made large investments in a variety of business interests and also gave millions to research and charity, particularly in Georgia and North Carolina.

Reynolds' first wife was Elizabeth McCaw Dillard, daughter of another tobacco magnate, who bore him four sons. They were divorced in 1946 after a 13½-year marriage. Estimates of the divorce settlement ranged from $3 million to $11 million. She died in 1961.

Viet Casualties Climb in War Against Reds

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Vietnamese government troops last week suffered their highest casualties in eight months in the war against the Communist Viet Cong, a U.S. spokesman said today.

Government forces killed 550 Communist guerrillas, however, compared with 260 of their own dead.

A total of 985 government troops was killed or wounded, the spokesman said.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged a moderate advance early this afternoon. The rise followed two days of sharp declines.

Most advances of key issues were less than a point. Trading was moderately active.

Some small losses showed up in steels and motors which had been solidly ahead earlier.

Comsat, which opened on a block of 15,000 shares, continued active and ahead by a point. It had advanced more than 4 points early in the session. Comsat fell about 10 points Tuesday when trading was limited to a cash basis.

Schering gained a point and reached a new high. Merck and Pfizer added fractions.

Jones & Laughlin and Ford and Chrysler posted gains of about half a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .8 at 320.8 with industrials up 1.4, rails unchanged and utilities up .6.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon had gained 2.20 to 859.65. It had been slightly higher during the morning.

Prices were higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed and Treasuries declined.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Soybean futures were sharply lower and the grains steady to lower in moderate trading late today on the Board of Trade.

Prices for soybeans advanced a cent or more around the opening but demand was not sustained. Declines in the final hour ranged up to 5 cents a bushel under Monday night's close.

Wheat was firm most of the session with the nearby December delivery up a cent a bushel at times.

Colder weather over the main grain belt, resulting in increased use of feed grains, stimulated early demand for corn futures.

Rye and oats were steady.

Estimated carlot receipts were wheat 3, corn 22, oats 1, barley 8, soybeans 15 and rye none.

Atomic Mine Field Urged By Germans

PARIS (UPI) —West Germany has proposed the creation of an atomic mine field along the Iron Curtain to strengthen Western defenses in central Europe, military sources said today.

The plan was said to be part of a West German "forward strategy" study presented to the NATO military committee last week.

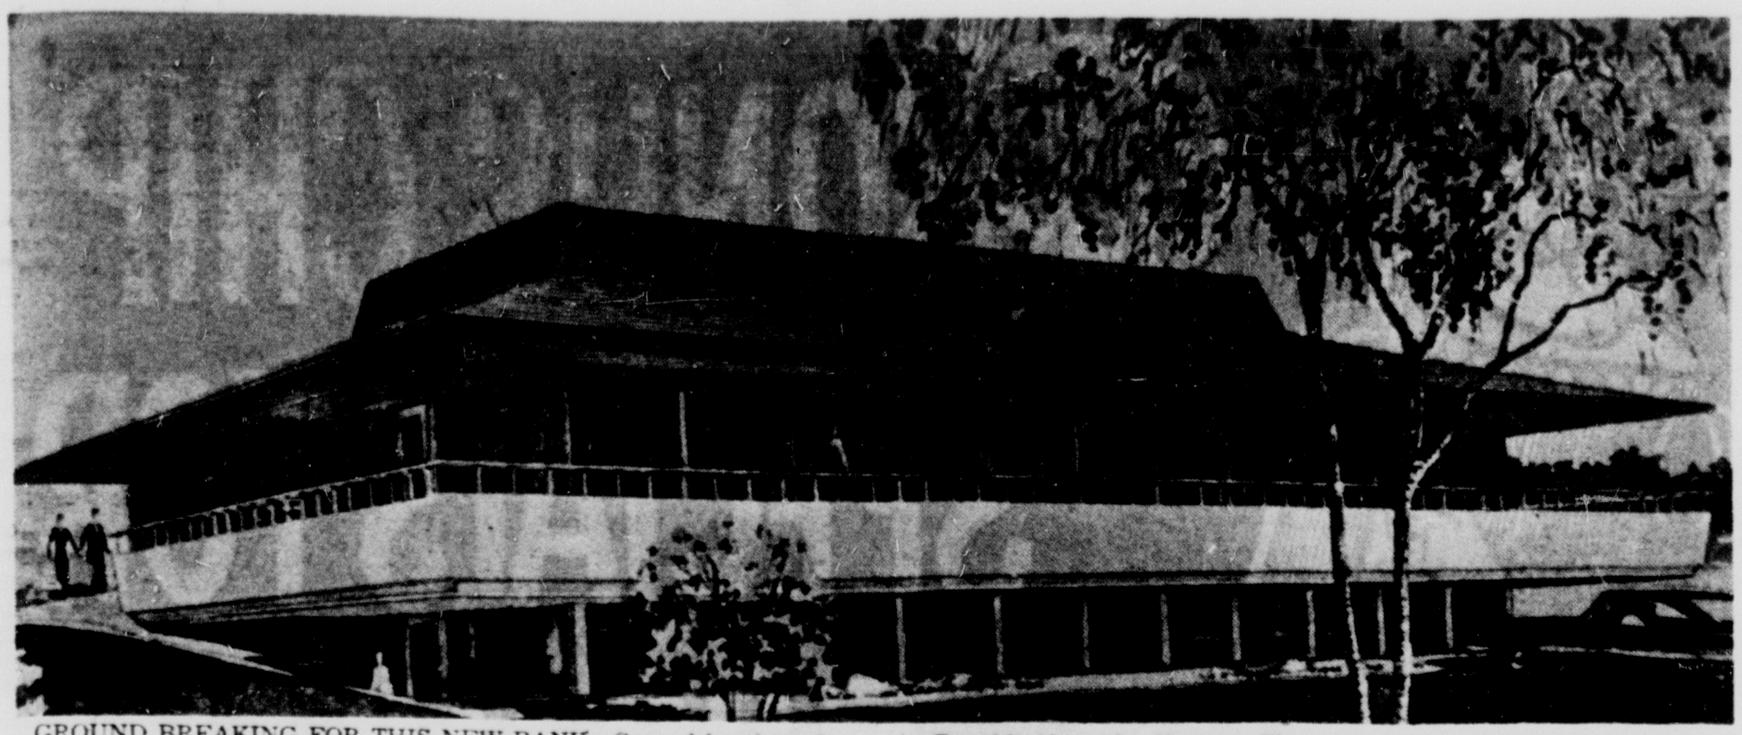
It proposes the placing of atomic mines at points where an aggressor might be expected to attempt a breakthrough in the first stages of any war, sources said.

AWARDS

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's top television awards was given Tuesday night to the major American networks for their coverage of President John F. Kennedy's funeral.

It is the foreign program award, one of several made by the Guild of Television Producers and Directors.

It was accepted on behalf of ABC, CBS and NBC by Dr. Cleanth Brooks, the U.S. cultural attache.



GROUND BREAKING FOR THIS NEW BANK—Ground breaking for the Western National Bank building occurred at 1200 North Circle Drive Tuesday morning. Present at the occasion were: Willis Paul Fischer , bank president; Leo H. Ververs, chairman of the board; and Ray Frost, local contractor in charge of construction. Architects for the 9,600 square foot structure is Marvin Knedler and interior designer is Donald Alvarado, Denver. The estimated cost of construction is $200,000 and completion date is set for May of 1965. The new building will feature air conditioning, and kitchen and community room facilities for both employes and the public. The building will face on North Circle Drive.

S&H Publishes First Incentive Travel Catalogue

S&H Travel Awards, Inc., a subsidiary of The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, the nation's oldest and largest trading stamp firm is now distributing its first incentive travel catalog to business and industrial concerns.

The catalog, entitled "New Worlds Travel Awards," contains 36 large pages strikingly illustrated by color artwork instead of conventional photography and is the largest in the incentive field. Seven major artists worked on the illustrations.

The catalog details foreign and domestic trips of varying length and destinations which can be tailored to individual company desire and specifications. While it illustrates a great many glamor trips, companies have a virtually limitless choice of destinations and may select ones not listed in the catalog.

"Travel is becoming widely used as the incentive not only for salesmen, dealers and distributors but in company campaigns in the areas of safety, attendance performance, good housekeeping, employe suggestions and other incentive achievements," according to Richard H. Henry, general manager of S&H Travel Awards, Inc.

"Many of our major clients are asking for travel, either as the principal award in incentive with S&H Green Stamp and Henry said.

Trips may be perpared for groups of any size or for couples and individuals. S&H incentive representatives are available to counsel with companies in establishing their incentive goals, mechanics of operation, campaign themes, budgets and other details.

Herny pointed out that S&H Travel Awards, Inc. also arranges trips and holidays for stamp - savers who acquire S&H Green Stamps through retail establishments, and for non - profit organizations which undertake group savings projects.

In addition to the travel awards incentive program, travel plans are offered by S&H in more than 32,000,000 regular consumer catalogs published last spring and in more than 500,000 incentive merchandise catalogs being distributed to business and industrial concerns.

S&H Travel Awards, Inc. was incorporated last spring & held its first general sales conference in the San Juan, Puerto Rich, in July.

Dillon Discloses Tentative Plans To Quit Cabinet

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon has made tentative plans to resign within a few months, it was learned today.

His most likely successor: Donald C. Cook of New York, head of a large utilities firm and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. He is 55.

Other names that have been mentioned for the post include David Rockefeller, 49, president of New York's Chase-Manhattan Bank, and Robert B. Anderson, 54, a close associate of President Johnson and a former secretary of the Treasury. Anderson, a native Texan, now lives in Greenwich, Conn.

An administration source said it appeared unlikely Rockefeller would be appointed. He is a Republican and a brother of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Dillon, 55, a Republican, apparently plans to return to the Wall Street investment banking firm founded by his father.

Although he does not wear the same party label as President Johnson, Dillon contributed a considerable sum to Johnson's presidential campaign and there is no indication of a rift between the two men.

About two months ago, Johnson asked Dillon to stay in the office for an indefinite period and Dillon has now given what appears to be a final answer.

One reason for his desire to return to Wall Street is the illness of his father, Clarence Dillon. Some of his associates said he would not rule out a return to government service at some time in the future.

It was also learned that G. D'Andelot Belin, the Treasury's general counsel, plans to resign soon.

Two other positions immediately above Belin's need to be filled, so Johnson may be looking for men to fill the four top Treasury posts.

Con Men, Circumstances Dim City Hall Repute

By SAM CAMPBELL

Some people have the idea that City Hall is peopled by crooks, thieves and empire-builders.

I rise to disagree and to defend.

It happens that I have had quite a lot of contact with City Hall people over a period of years. My job is to be suspicious so I observe them rather closely. True, on occasions I have been fooled more than a few times by the same persons.

Yet I give to you a heart-felt testimonial that by and large the people at City Hall are as polite, as considerate, and as honest as any group of individuals you would meet in any private industry. I believe these people wish to do right. I believe that most of them do the best they can under the circumstances.

But if my experience with City Hall is a true representation of the treatment that can be expected generally from that quarter, why is it that City Hall has such a prevailing bad reputation? Why is it noted for snooping, for interference, for trouble making, for fat-catting, for extravagance? Let me give you my theory.

First of all, it stands to reason that the con-man type of mentality always will gravitate to the place where it can con the most with the least amount of effort. Another way of saying the same thing is that scum always rises to the top. City Hall wears the mantle of authority and acceptibility. You do get a drift of the con character in that direction.

Under cover of the fact that most of the people at City Hall are decent and respectable, the con man can operate somewhat more freely. So he makes his presence felt while screening his tactics.

The second reason that, in my opinion, accounts for the bad reputation of City Hall is that the con is able to do more damage there. He is able to fleece with greater ease than the private con.

Suppose, for instance, there was a con man in the building department. Let us assume for study purposes, he is a junior grade con man. All he wants is a Christmas bottle slyly set in his pickup truck or a fast fiver slipped to him "in appreciation."

All the guy has to do to achieve his objective is to slow down his inspection — that is, hold the job up — or to become unusually persnickety about the number of nails in a stud. Well, the contractor is over a barrel; he has money out at interest. A bottle of whiskey or a $5 bill is a cheap way to avoid a loss that otherwise might ruin him.

As time, death and increased taxes advance the buck-and-bottle artist up the rungs of officialdom, the payoff becomes proportionately higher. Now he is in a position to hold up an entire tract of houses. Always, he can give good reason. He knows the city code better than the city council, better than the builder himself. Furthermore, he knows how to use it, and he does use it — like a billy club.

Maybe he does a little engineering or draughting on the side. If so, his signature on building plans is worth money. Of course, it's worth money. He knows the building code, doesn't he? He's a problm solver. If you have a hundred homes that you can't put on the market because of a building-code problem, wouldn't you pay him to solve it.

In summary, the con man does tend to graviate to City Hall and circumstances give him a powerful advantage there. But the general run of municipal employes is just as good and considerate as human beings anywhere else. An evil system lets bad men do worse and prevents good men from doing better.

Exchange Bank Names Customer Computer Head

Paul Williams, member of the staff of The Exchange National Bank since 1959, has been named special representative for customer computer services, it was announced today by J. D. Ackerman, president.

Williams, a graduate of the business and banking school of the University of Denver, has had experience in many departments of the Bank and has recently confined this time to computer services. Originally from Elgin, Il., he has been in Colorado since coming to DU and is now married to the former Kay Ives of Colorado Springs.

They make their home here at 720 Melany Ln. Williams, who has also taken courses here in the American Institute of Banking, is a member of the First Presbyterian Church and the Knob Hill Optimist Club.

"The demand for additional services from our customers is growing daily," Ackerman said in making the announcement. "Although many of our personnel have become familiar with computer services available to these customers, we feel it best to have one man in charge of servicing these special needs.

Banking is our primary service and we intend to continue our emphasis on this as a personal financial service. We recognize, however, that many customers would like to share the advantages which our computer can offer them. This we intend to offer through Mr. Williams," Ackerman pointed out.

MONTEVIDEO — Uruguay plans an export promotion drive.

MANY CHOSEN, BUT FEW RUN

PIMLICO, Md. (UPI)—One hundred and forty-seven three-year-olds were named for the $150,000 Preakness stakes when nominations closed on Feb. 15, but only six of them made it to the post last May 16.

CHANGE OF OWNERS—New owner and operator of the Old Canon Lounge, now called the Keg Lounge, is Jan Knight. She is making her first venture in private enterprise, but brings 10 years of experience in the lounge business with her. The Keg Lounge, 730 Manitou Ave., was completely remodelled before it opened in late-November. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Keg Lounge Opens in Manitou Springs

Recently opened for business in Manitou Springs is the Keg Lounge, 730 Manitou Ave., formerly the Canon Lounge.

The Keg is owned and operated by Jan Knight, 2519 Pikes Peak Ave. It is her first venture into private enterprise after 10 years of employment in the lounge business.

Before changing its name to Keg Lounge, the old Canon Lounge was completely remodeled. It received fresh coats of paint, both inside and out.

A new ceiling and floor was installed, along with wood panelling in the back bar area. Also complete new plumbing and refrigeration systems were installed.

Additional remodelling will be done in the near future. Plans are now being made to have the front of the building redone to look like a huge keg.

The Keg Lounge seats from 90 to 100 customers in booths and at tables. A dance floor is located at the rear of the building.

Each Friday, Saturday and Sunday, entertainment will be provided by the "Fez" Bryant Trio. On Fridays and Saturdays, the trip will play from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. On Sunday, the hours will be from 3:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The new look of the Keg Lounge also includes scenic pictures hung throughout the building and a new gold color on the formerly green leather upholstered walls.

Singer Sewing Center Has Major Facelifting

Singer Sewing Center, 11 S. Tejon St., was recently remodeled from top to bottom. It was the first major facelifting the store has received in its more than 25 years in Colorado Springs.

Kunz Construction Co. of Denver, handled the six-week long renovating task.

Besides the remodelling, the Singer outlet increased its stock with the addition of a complete line of fabrics and trims, along with an increase in sewing accessories.

With these additions, the Singer Sewing Center is now "A one-stop shopping center for the woman who sews," according to Store Manager Dale Hazlett. The local center carries everything from a sewing machine to a button.

To celebrate the facelifting and additional stock, a grand opening is being held at Singer, from Thursday through Saturday. Store hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day.

The three-day celebration will feature special reduced prices on the new fabric line, plus free gifts for everyone who comes to the store.

Besides its complete line of sewing goods, the Singer Sewing Center now stocks a varied assortment of portable televisions, hi-fi stereo phonographs, vacuum cleaners, floor polishers and other small appliances.

A full line of McCall and Simplicity patterns is now in stock.

A one-third increase in floor display space was gained through Singer's remodelling. This was done by taking out a number of partitions and making use of part of what used to be the store office.

An acoustical tile ceiling, tile floor, complete new store front and new wall and floor fixtures are all part of the new look at also added, including the installation of a complete air-conditioning system.

Hazlett has managed the local Singer outlet for the past three years. Previous to coming here, he managed Singer stores in Illinois and Iowa for a total of 12 years.

He lives with his wife and three children at 521 Cypress Dr., Security.

The local Singer Sewing Center is one of more than 1,700 company stores around the world.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Mary's mother is now a member of the international fraternity of those parents who have lost a child just in its prime. So scrapbook this case and order the booklet below to help solace such bereaved relatives everywhere. No death is more tragic than that of a young person!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE U-457: Mary S., aged 14, went on a picnic with the Girl Scouts.

Gaily she waved goodbye to her parents.

But later that afternoon they received an urgent call from the hospital.

Mary had fallen over a cliff at the park and she was dying.

Before her parents arrived, she was gone!

"Oh, Dr. Crane," her anguished mother implored, "what can I do to get over this shock

"And I feel it is all my fault for I hesitated to let her go, since she is our only child.

"But Mary coaxed and begged to be allowed to make this trip with her girl friends, so I finally consented.

"Oh, if I had only refused, she would be alive right now!"

Mary might have been killed just crossing the street to the grocery store, even if she had remained at home.

For a large number of children and teen-agers are killed each year.

Then we lost our oldest son as a Cougar jet plane collided with the tail of his jet in mid-air during the Navy Air Show week-end, George rode his disabled plane to within 200 feet of the ground to avoid letting it strike the crowd.

So Mrs. Crane and I got the unexpected news over the radio at about 3 o'clock that Saturday afternoon.

It was the same kind of shock that Mary's parents received, for no death is quite as great a jolt as the unexpected loss of a young person just entering upon adult responsibilities.

The parents feel as if they have received a solar plexis blow under the heart, as I can attest from personal experience.

Then they think of all the various ways by which the accident might have been avoided.

Finally, they begin to broaden their perspective and realize that millions of others are also members of that international fraternity of those who have lost a child.

And as they receive evidences of sympathy or condolence, they gradually realize that life here on Earth is a temporary sojourn in just one of God's many Cosmic Classrooms.

Some people are thus promoted ahead of the usual Commencement ceremony!

Heaven is not just an Old People's Home, for if it is to furnish the challenging ideas of all sorts of personalities, then babies and toddlers and teenagers, plus young married folks and even graybeards must be in that next classroom.

One of the most inspiring poems at such a time is Edgar Guest's beautiful lyrics entitled, "To All Parents." It opens your eyes to a new concept of God.

So send for the booket "A Salute to George," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, which contains the funeral sermon, plus an essay of mine and Guest's remarkable poem.

Clergymen often keep supplies on hand to offer bereaved parents of teen-adoyung gers parents of teen-agers and young adults, for it buoys up the spirit of such parents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

MY ANSWER

by Billy Graham

© 1964 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: It seems to me that if Christianity was based more on fact instead of faith, there would be less doubt. — B. R.

ANSWER: Life itself is based on trust. Imagine a woman going to the meat market and saying: "I know this piece of beef is marked 'Grade A'', but I would like proof that it really is."

What if a man bought a ticket to Paris, and said to the airline employee: "Before I pay you for this, I want you to give me a guarantee that the plane will not go down on the way."

Marriage is a trust. Business relationships are based on good faith. Love is an experience of mutal trust. In the Christian faith, not one whit more is required of us than everyday life demands. Christ says: "Put your faith in me that I will do for you what I have done for a host of others who have trusted me", and He has never disappointed anyone yet.

"Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." The Scripture again says, "Without faith it is impossible to please Him."

STATUS SYMBOL?

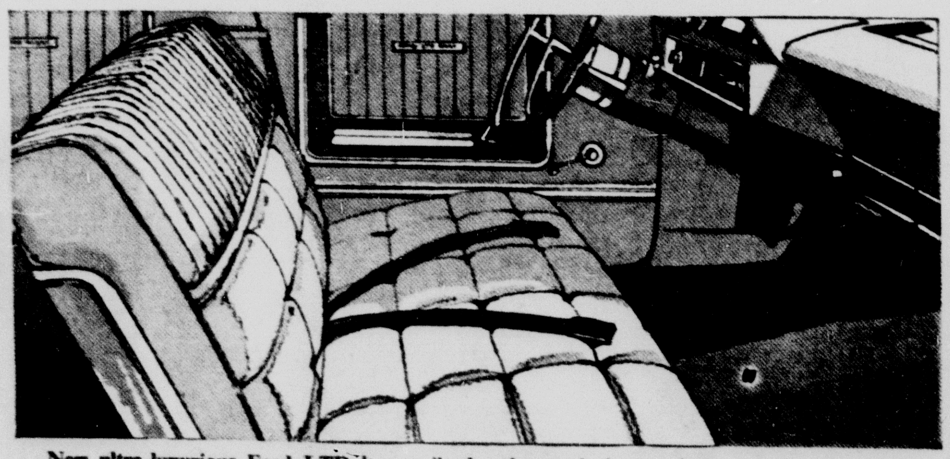
In classical Athens and Rome, a member of the artisan class usually wore a cap. Among the upper class, it was customary to go hatless except in rough weather or when hunting or traveling.

The 1965 Ford rides quieter than a Rolls-Royce!

Hard to believe? Maybe . . . but it's true. The Ford ride proved quieter in tests conducted by the world's leading acoustical consultants (Bolt, Beranek and Newman, Inc.). These tests were certified by the U. S. Auto Club. But come make your own test. And be ready for many other Ford surprises.

And gives you luxurious new features like these...

Silent-Flo Ventilation (on 4-door hardtops). Fresh air is drawn in, stale air removed even with all windows closed.



New ultra-luxurious Ford LTD has quilted nylon-and-vinyl upholstery, thick cut-pile carpeting, rich walnut-like paneling in doors and instrument panel, and (like all Fords) —spaciousness. Even more hip, shoulder, knee room than last year.

DEODORANT SALES

NEW YORK (UPI) — The deodorant and antiperspirant market now is a $130 million business, reports Chemical Week, McGraw - Hill publication. Aided by a "manly" promotion approach, antiperspirant sales are expected to top that figure in 1965.

Zsa Zsa's Claim Rejected by City

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor's claim against the city of Los Angeles for $100,000 has been rejected by the City Council.

The actress filed the claim on the ground that a municipal crew completed demolition of her home after it was damaged in the disastrous fire that swept the fashionable Bel-Air district in 1961.

City officials claimed Miss Gabor ignored repeated notices to clear her property.

TWO TROUSER SUITS

Regularly $75

Sale
$58

Almost like two suits for the price of one. We had to plan way in advance to offer these handsomely tailored all wool worsted suits (our regularly advertised brand). Suits already famous for wear, fit and value — now with the addition of the extra pair of trousers they're the unchallenged buy of the year.

Sizes: 38 to 46 Regular. 39 to 46 Long, 38 to 44 Short, 40 to 44 Portly

PREPARING THE FEAST—The 15th annual big game feed for workers on the Pikes Peak Highway was held Tuesday in a building in Crow Gulch. The appreciation dinner for road employees was started 15 years ago by Don Lawrie (center); city street superintendent, former highway superintendent. The dinner became a joint affair when Jack Sullivan (left) took over the road operations. Frank Sanborn (right) is one of the highway employees. In addition to the highway employes, a limited number of other invitations are extended.

Canon City Residents Attend Conference

Four Canon City residents attended the mid-year conference of the American Legion held in Denver the past weekend. The meeting was held in the Memorial Legion Home.

Attending from Canon City were Mr. and Mrs. George Cherrie, Mrs. L. N. Peterson and Robert Owens. Mrs. Peterson serves as chaplain of Legion 8-40.

More than 500 Legionaires participated in the conclave which featured a speech at a luncheon Saturday by Donald E. Johnson, national commander of the Iowa West Branch.

While in Denver, the Cherries were guests at the home of former local residents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nuce.

FAST PLAY

BOSTON (UPI) — The record 26-inning game between the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1920 was played in three hours and 50 minutes. This year's 23-inning struggle between the Mets and the Giants consumed 7 hours and 23 minutes.

Hotelman Is Getting Married 17th Time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hotelman Glynn Wolfe, 51, says he is getting married for the 17th time.

He said he and DeMerle Irene Rankin Wolfe, 19, would honeymoon at Disneyland.

DeMerle was his 15th wife. She divorced him three weeks ago. But, like one of her predecessors, she decided to marry him a second time. They took out their marriage license here Tuesday.

Wolfe told newsmen: "We've decided to try it over again. All my wives have been teen-agers, and sometimes they are hard to handle."

Mrs. Wolfe worked at the hotel Wolfe owns in Las Vegas, Nev. She married him Aug. 17 at Las Vegas an hour after she won a divorce from her first husband.

CHRISTMAS ETIQUETTE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — When a Christmas card is from the entire family, father's name should come first, then mother's, and finally the children, listed in order of their age, according to an authority from Hallmark Cards.

When you're addressing a Christmas card to a business acquaintance, it's best if you send the card to the office. When there is also a social relationship, the card can go to the home.

A good whiskey will cost you better than 5 dollars.
Don't kill it for a few pennies.

Four-fifths of a highball is mixer. So the mixer you choose will make—or break—your tall drinks.

There's no magic to mixing good drinks. Bartenders are human just as you and I. Their drinks look and taste so good because they follow two simple rules: one, stick to the recipe and measure carefully, and two, mix with quality ingredients.

The first rule doesn't need explaining, really. What's a recipe for? Or a blueprint? Or a map?

How important is price?

The second rule is deceptively simple. It doesn't mean "use the most expensive ingredients." Just the best. If you choose a mixer on the basis of price alone, you can probably pick from a dozen different brands; if you choose according to quality, there's only one and that's Canada Dry.

Two of the things you want most from a drink—good taste and liveliness—depend upon proper carbonation. Pinpoint carbonation picks up and enhances the aroma and flavor of the spirits.

Keep your eye on the bubbles

A lot of mixers come on strong with a "geyser" of bubbles when you open and pour them. When you pour a Canada Dry mixer, the bubbles don't come on with a rush. They're tinier bubbles, and they release themselves slowly the whole drink through.

Some evening, when you're in an expansive mood, uncap a bottle of Canada Dry Club Soda or Ginger Ale and just leave it overnight. Next day, pour yourself a glass. You'd swear you just uncapped it. With most other brands, the sparkle would have been long gone before the dawn.

What's the secret of Canada Dry's superiority? No secret. For anyone who'd like to try, here's how we do it:

Start first with pure water—as pure as your tap water. Then filter it, aerate it, and filter it again and again until it's so pure that it's called "polished" water. Then add only the best ingredients available. (We search all over the world for the best ginger for our Ginger Ale, for example, then age it for years to get the full flavor of the ginger root. Who else would bother?)

What is Special Sparkle?

The purest water possible, the finest ingredients, and pinpoint carbonation—and there you have it. At Canada Dry, we've coined a description for it: Special Sparkle. And you get it in every bottle of Canada Dry you buy—from mixers to true-fruit drinks.

This holiday season, be especially kind to your drinks—and your guests. Mix with Canada Dry.

Forester Gives Christmas Tree Care Tips

FORT COLLINS—Nearly 43 million Christmas trees will be purchased this season, but many may be dry or barren by the big day.

To avoid the dull, drab look and have a tree that will hold its needles throughout the holiday season, be sure to select a fresh dense tree with deep green color, says Dale L. Shaw excolor, says Dale L. Shaw, assistant state forester with the Colorado State Forest Service.

One way to check a tree's freshness, Shaw explains, is to grasp the needles and give a slight tug. If you come away with a handful of needles, pass that tree up.
plains, is to grasp the needles and give a slight tug. If you come away with a handful of needles, pass that tree up.

Another check is to tap the tree against the ground—if it keeps its needles, you know it's fresh, the forester states.

After you have purchased a tree, keep it in a cold place until you are ready to put it up. Before setting up the tree, make a new cut at the base of the trunk, Shaw suggests. Then place the tree in a stand that will hold water.

You don't need a fancy holder for this—any container, such as a one or two-gallon can wrapped in bright foil will do. Check the water level each day and add more as needed. Make sure the fresh cut is always under water.

Position the tree away from heat registers, fireplaces, and sunny windows, the forester warns, and don't attempt to fireproof your tree with chemicals.

Decorate your tree only with electric lighting sets that bear the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. label, and discard old sets that have frayed or bare wires. Turn off the tree lights when no one is in the room, and take the tree down as soon as it begins to shed needles or show signs of dryness.

Christmas trees are full of highly combustible natural pitch and resin, and when dry they are truly tinderboxes of trouble, Shaw states. They burn so rapidly that it is virtually impossible to halt a blaze by ordinarily available methods.

Follow these few simple precautions to insure a happy holiday season in your home, the forester concludes.

Weeds Cost $40 Million in State Yearly

FORT COLLINS — Weeds in crops cost Colorado farmers and ranchers nearly $40 million in gross income each year.

According to James H. Fischer, secretary - manager of Foundation, Fort Collins, gross income to farmers is reduced about one - seventh due to weeds in crops. But in terms of net income, the farmer loses about 40 per cent because of weeds.

Speaking at a ceremony opening Colorado State University's new Potato Virus and Weed Research Laboratory here Friday, Fischer said the weed problem is of particularinterest to sugar beet growers.

"The U. S. Department of Agriculture says weeds reduce yield and quality of sugar beets by $15 million annually in the nation. In addition, farmers spend approximately $28 million in controlling weeds — a total of $43 million each year.

"Here in Colorado," Fischer continued, "the beet sugar industry has imported from Texas or directly from about 5,000 migrant farm laborers to help control weeds each year. In addition to procurement and transportation costs of $40 each, the laborer earns an average of $250 during his four to six weeks in the state.

Thus these imported laborers cost beet farmers $1½ million in cash — which for the most part goes out of the state of Colorado. With an adequate research program, we can add this $1½ million to the state's economy," he said.

Hereford Champion Shown By Rush Boy

Larry Vickers, 17, Rush, showed the champion Hereford, Chief, at the 19th annual Junior Christmas Beef Show in Denver Saturday, a prelude to the National Western Stock Show.

The junior show gives 4-H Club members and Future Farmers of America an opportunity to exhibit steers that failed to qualify for county or club quotas and win a possible trip to the National Western Stock Show in January.

Others winners were: reserve champion Hereford, Pete, shown by Linda Demaree, 16, Platteville; champion Angus, Jim Fassler, 19, Akron; reserve champion Angus, Douglas Werner 13, Merino; champion shorthorn, Margaret Larric, 12, Englewood; reserve champion shorthorn, Jim Stonaker, 16, Fort Collins.

The events were judged by Dr. Marvin Heeney, livestock nutritionist at Colorado State University. Sponsoring the show were the CSU Extension Service, FFA, Denver livestock commission firms, Denver Union Stockyards and the National Western Show. More than 50 head of cattle were shown.

Yoder County Winner To Attend Luncheon

Freddie F. Geist, Yoder, is one of 14 county winners in the annual 4-H Club Grain Marketing contest, sponsored by the Colorado Grain and Feed Dealers Assn., in cooperation with Colorado State University and the Chicago Board of Trade. He and the other county winners will attend an awards luncheon, sponsored by the Colorado Grain and Feed Dealers Assn., Jan. 25 at the Albany Hotel in Denver.

State winners in the contest were Steven Greenwald of Greeley and Michael Hoppe of Sterling, it was announced recently by Terence J. Hall of Akron, association president. Following the awards luncheon, to which parents of state and county winners, and county agents are also invited, the two state winners will leave for a three - day educational tour of the Chicago Board of Trade. The two state winners were chosen from the county entries for their outstanding presentation of grain marketing methods, according to V. L. Sackett, chairman of the association's Youth Activities Committee.

DINNER TIME—Penny munches her grain as Kathy West watches, on the Dale West farm near Calhan. Kathy looks forward to the time when she can work with Penny. Kathy is one of three Washington Jr. 4-H members raising Ketch-It-and-Keep-It calves.

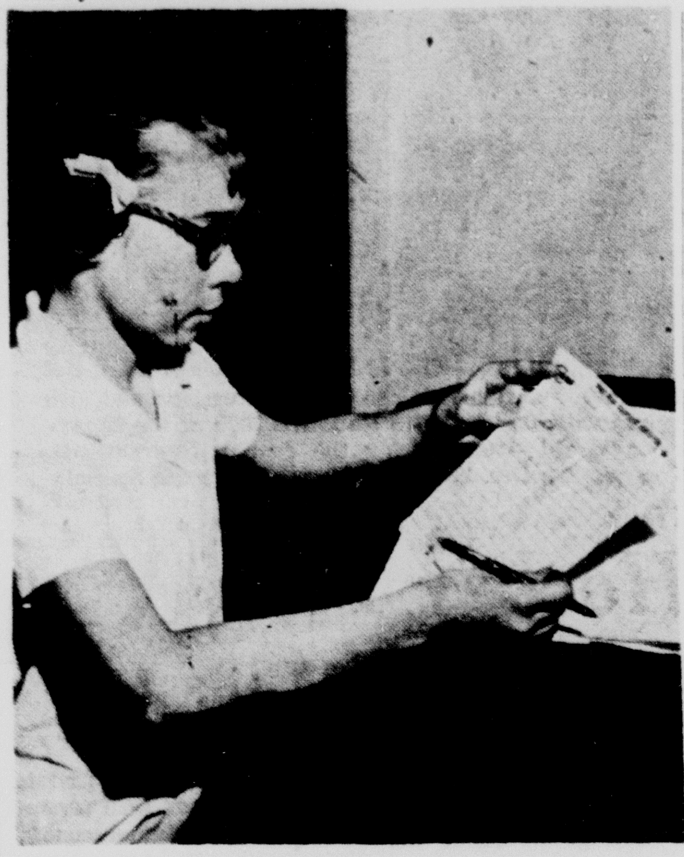
Calhan Girl Learns About Cattle Business



AGRIBUSINESS—Kathy West, 12, surveys her first feed bills. She must keep complete records of costs for her calf, Penny, and must write each month to Penny's sponsor, the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club.

Penny, a well - fed little lady all of eight months old, has about her that air of shyness you might expect of someone weighing 400 pounds. She keeps up her strength by eating a pound of concentrate, two pounds of grain, and about 13 pounds of hay each day.

Penny is a heifer, and she belongs to Kathy West, 12, Calhan. Kathy, a typical 4-H member working on a beef-breeding project, is one of three Washington Jr. 4-H members raising Ketch-It-and-Keep-It calves. The others are Beverly Butler and Tommy Vorenberg.

Kathy's cousin, Neil West, 15 Gillette, Wyo., caught the calf for her Aug. 8, in the Ketch-It-and-Keep-It Contest. Since she got the heifer Nov. 4, Kathy has gone out to the West farm each evening to give her grain and hay. Kathy's father, Dale West, feeds Penny concentrate each morning. Mrs. West said that the recommended amount of grain is one pound per day, but Penny needs twice that much.

Penny seemed rather startled to have so many visitors in the corral which she shares during the day with a black calf. Kathy put her grain in a pan, and, as soon as we were all far enough away, the brown-and-white heifer chewed contentedly. Dale West said that Penny should weigh 1000 pounds a year from now.

Penny and the black calf spend nights in the barn, while the other 35 head of cattle owned by the Wests are put in the corral at night, after spending their days on the range. Penny spent all summer free on the range — that's why she is so reluctant to have anyone approach her.

Kathy said she's looking forward to when she can work with Penny.

What's in the future for Penny? We couldn't get a chance to read her hoof, but we learned that public appearances are a must for her next year, and Kathy expects to show her at the county fair. Also, Mrs. West told us that Penny should be a mother when she's two years old. Kathy is entitled to keep the calves, Mrs. West added, but we'll probably keep only the heifers, and replace the steer calves with heifers.

Kathy has found that there's a bit of bookkeeping involved when one enters the cow business. She must keep the calf — and complete records of her expenses — for three years. If, during that period, something goes wrong, she must return the calf, but will be reimbursed for the money she spent for feed. She must also write once a month to Penny's sponsor, the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club.

Kathy got a chance to give a public accounting when she and her father visited the Kiwanis Club Nov. 25.

This will be the third year in 4-H for Kathy, who is a serenth grader. It's her first year in beef - breeding, but she has been in cooking projects for two years.

Also interested in Penny are Kathy's brother, Roger, and her two sisters, Joyce and Diane. The Wests operate a 640-acre farm, and raise wheat and feed grains, engage in custom harvesting, and care for their cattle.

Agricultural Capital Requirements Increase

FORT COLLINS — Increasing capital requirements in agriculture make sound financial planning a must for tomorrow's young and progressive farmers, states Hugh Winn, Colorado State University extension marketing specialist.

The dollar value of assets used in agriculture have increased over the past several years due to increased use of capital, higher land values, and higher prices paid by farmers.

Data from the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City also indicate production expenses are advancing for the same reasons, Winn continues. At the same time, the diminishing number of farms using more dollars to finance investment and production expenses has created an interest in financial requirements of agriculture.

United States Department of Agriculture statistics indicate total dollar value of assets in agriculture rose from $131.6 billion in 1950 to $223.3 billion in 1964. This was an increase of 70 per cent. Categorical gains for this period were: real estate, 100 per cent; machinery and motor vehicle, 78 per cent; livestock, 22 per cent; and all other, 14 per cent.

The index of prices paid by farmers increased 26 per cent during the period — so part of this increase in assets is due to rising prices rather than larger quantities used, Winn suggests.

Real estate is the leading asset with a dollar value of $150.8 billion this year. While much of this growth can be related to higher land prices, the remainder must be attributed to land improvements.

In addition to investments in assets, farmers also need substantial funds for annual production expenses, the CSU specialist continues. Current operating expenses such as feed, seed, livestock, fertilizer, repairs, and operation of capital items have increased in price and quantity. On the other hand, hired labor has declined, but higher wages have created an overall increase in this particular expense.

While financial requirements have been increasing for agriculture as a whole, they have increased faster for the individual farm. Declining numbers of farms and substitution of capital for labor have significantly increased per farm investments and production expenses.

In agriculture, sizable investments in research and education have been responisble for increasing output per unit of labor Winn states. As research and education grew in importance, the tendency was for labor inputs to decrease, land to remain fairly stable, and capital inputs to increase substantially.

It seems certain that research and education will continue in the future. This means that large investments will continue to be made with the substitution of capital for labor. Further, the USDA estimates that the nation's present 3.6 million farms will decline to about 2.1 million by 1980.

Thus, capital requirements will continue to increase on a per farm basis, Winn explains. "Financial planning will be a necessity for future farmers."

CSU to Offer Course In Co-Op Bookkeeping

FORT COLLINS — The Colorado State University Extension Service will offer a five-day bookkeeping workshop for directors, managers and employees of cooperatives beginning Jan. 4.

The educational program, to be held in the CSU Student Center, will feature "problem - type" instructional sessions. Instructors will be provided by CSU, the Wichita Bank for Cooperatives, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Cooperative Service, the Colorado Cooperative Council and the Colorado State Department of Agriculture.

The workshop will cover the entire accounting cycle, CSU extension representatives state. Sessions will include problems in journalizing, posting, taking trial balances, preparing work sheets, adjusting and closing books, taking post - closing trial balances, and other accounting procedures.

Registration for the workshop will be at 8 a. m. Jan. 4. All necessary supplies for the instructional program will be provided.

CSU certificates of completion will be awarded to all who fulfill workshop requirements.

Luncheon Club to Hear Land Acquisition Talk

Lt. Col. E. T. Becker, post engineer at Fort Carson, will speak on "Land Acquisition" at the meeting of the Farmers Luncheon Club at noon Saturday at the Swiss Chalet Restaurant.

Chief of Staff Col. A. H. Smith Jr. will also be present to answer questions, Tony Venetucci, club president, reporeed.

Price will be $1.40 per plate. The public is invited.

There will also be a 10-minute program of Christmas carols.

To keep your mistletoe bright longer, spray it with clear plastic or dip the stems in melted wax. This will delay shriveling of the leaves and dropping of the berries.

What's Up In Four-H

PALS OF THE PINES

Demonstrations given at a recent meeting of the Black Forest Pals of the Pines 4-H Club at the Community Church were: "Basics of Electricity," Jeff Rowland; "How to Care for a Saddle and Blanket," Cynthia and David Ervin; "Parts of a Beef," Larry Kingrey; and "How to Place a Pattern for a Blouse," Margaret Knapp.

Project meetings scheduled include: leathercraft at McAllister's at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 16; first aid at Scott's at 4 p.m. Jan. 6; and forestry at Scott's at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 13.

Don McAllister reported on the County Council meeting, and the club was reminded of a Leaders meeting Dec. 28.

The club decided in lieu of a Christmas party, to furnish a Christmas basket for needy families, and also to sing carols. The committee for this project is Larry Kingrey, Don McAllister, Ricky Knapp, Jeff Rowland, Kathy Weaver and Michelle Kirchhofer. Dec. 20 has been tentatively set for carolling.

The club decided to have square dance lessons, to be held at Weaver's home, with instruction by Mr. Davisson. The date has not been set.

Refreshments were served by Wayne Barton, Bryce Davis, and Cynthia Ervin.

The next business meeting will be held Jan. 8.

BUSY BEAVERS

The Busy Beavers 4-H Club held their annual Christmas party Dec. 8 in the home of Bonnie Bashore.

Candy for the candy sale and 4-H work books were distributed.

The Busy Beavers work meetings were discussed and planned.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 12, in the home of Karen Armstrong.

All-Stater Joins CC Cagers

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College's undernourished basketball program received an unexpected booster shot early this week when Phil LeCuyer, a former all-state player, from Greeley's 1962 state champions, joined the Tiger forces.

LeCuyer, an outstanding student, has led an almost anonymous existance since entering the Colorado Springs institution in the fall of 1962. But his presence on the CC campus has not been overlooked by the athletic department and when he confronted Eastlack early this week, expressing a desire to join the Tigers' basketball team, the arms opened quickly.

"Of course, it will take him some time to catch up," Eastlack said Tuesday, "but there's no doubt that he will help us a great deal. After seeing his first workout, I would say that his basketball conditioning is a little behind, but as far as strict physical conditioning goes, he doesn't have much catching up to do."

Eastlack classed LeCuyer as "an outstanding prospect. We probably won't be starting him Friday night," the CC coach said. "But he'll be ready to play and I imagine he'll be in there fairly quickly." The Tigers are to meet Oklahoma Christian of Oklahoma City Friday at the City Auditorium in their final local game before the Christmas holidays.

To understnad the possible importance of a player like LeCuyer to the CC team, it should be pointed out that the Tigers have been scrambling for strong frontline prospects for the past three season.

LeCuyer, who was a standout member of the last Greeley state championship squad in 1962, could fill the bill. At 6-3, he was a unanimous choice to the All-State teams and also played in the 1962 All-State basketball game in Pueblo. He was one of the leading scorers for the Greeley unit as well as one of the state's finest rebounders.

Eastlack said Tuesday that he is planning to work the former Greeley star at the post position, where the Tigers have been lacking the past three winters. He will also probably be among the traveling squad when CC moves to the West Coast next week to participate in an eight team tournament in San Diego.

That tourney, which will be hosted by California Western, will be played at the Western campus and will include four collegiate teams plus another quartet of squads from the Armed Services.

First round action will match host Cal Western with Colorado College, and the University of San Diego with Southern Utah in the second game. In the Service half of the bracket, the Marine Corps Recuruit Depot from San Diego will battle Pt. Mugue while Hamilton AFB will meet Phib Pac. The tournament will assure all teams of playing three games as consolation contests are scheduled throughout the three days. It is also certain that a college and service team will meet in the finals.

Eastlack had not settled on his traveling sqaud as of early in the week, but said he planned to take 10 men to San Diego. The Tigers will then return to host their own Holiday affiar, a four team tournament at the Palmer Gymnasium, Dec. 29-30. CC, Grinnell, Chicago University, and Knox College will be the clubs involved.

Upcoming, however, is Friday's contest with the Oklahoma school where the Tigers will attempt to even their season's record. They have lost to New Mexico University and Colorado State College while defeating St. Mary's of the Plains.

DU Cagers To Play at Evansville

DENVER (UP)— Denver University tucked another basketball win under its shirt Tuesday, then prepared to head for Indiana where it will participate in the Evansville Basketball Tournament.

The Pioneers had little trouble in coasting to a 96-57 victory over Western State College of Gunnison. The Mile High Club jumped to an early lead which it refused to relinquish.

Six Pioneers scored in the double figures, shooting 53.5 per cent from the field to 36.8 per cent for Western State. At halftime Denver held a commanding 43-22 lead.

Ace shooter Roosevelt Robinson, a 6-2 guard, dropped in 19 points for game honors, but it was not enough for the losing Gunnison club.

The win gave Denver a 3-2 mark to Western State's 1-3.

WHAT DID I DO?—Giving the typical innocent look, a Russian National hockey team player at right sees the referee call a penalty against him during a heated match with Czechoslovakia two week ago in Moscow. The Soviets won, 2-0, but the Czechs will have the chance for a re-match against the Russians and also games with the Canadian Nationals here at the Broadmoor World Arena during the coming International Tournament, Dec. 26-31. Strong Russian Ice Hockey Team Slim Choice in International Meet

Being the Olympic champion and a consistent winner in world-wide competition over the past several years, the Russian National hockey team has naturally taken the early favorite's role for the International Hockey Tournament, scheduled at the Broadmoor World Arena here in Colorado Springs, Dec. 26 through 31.

Last winter the Soviets romped through the Olympic Games with an undefeated record, but although they've impressed observers with victories over touted opponents this year, the Russians undoubtedly will have to be at their best in the double round-robin here against two other world powers, Canada and Czechoslovakia.

Stamping the USSR as the tournament favorite and indicating the close games expected here were the two recent victories over the Czechs. Prior to leaving Europe the first of this month, the Russians slipped by the Czechoslovakians 2-0 and 3-0, and then this past week they served up twin losses to the Canadian nationals in Toronto, 3-1 and 4-0.

At present, the Soviets are conducting an eight-game tour in Canada which includes encounters with the National Canadians, a team that members several from the National Hockey League. The Junior Canadiens of Montreal meeting the Russians have been beefed up with six members from the Quebec Aces professional club. They are goalie Gump Worsely, Doug Harvey, Jim Morrison, Leon Rechefort, Bill Sutherland, and Gordon (Red) Berenson, the later a former University of Michigan star.

This is not the team which will be representing Canada in the International series here at the Broadmoor. That squad is composed of stars from several teams throughout the country, the second year for an all-star type team from the land of the maple leaf. In the Olympics, Russia eased by this team 3-2 in the final game.

During the tour of Canada, international rules are being enforced and this has given a slight edge to the visiting Russians since officiating is more restrictive than the NHL professional laws. It allows the Soviets more freedom of action with their intricate passing and play-making without danger of as much body checking as in the NHL.

Whether it's rules or calibre of play that win games, there is no doubt that the Soviets enjoy being Olympic Champions and they plan on keeping their world prestige—come high water, Canada or Czechoslovakia.

Their lineup boasts maturity with ages ranging from 23 to 31 years. Both goaltenders, Victor Konovalenko, 26, and Victor Tolmachev, 27, are highly regarded within international competition. Konovalenko has an edge of experience that includes world title play in Switzerland, Sweden and Austria.

The top defensive pair is Eduard Ivanov, 26, chosen top blueliner at the 1964 Olympics, and Alexander Ragulin, 23. The second tandem is Viktor Kuzkin, 25, and Oleg Zaitsev, 24. Vitali Davydov, 24, a veteran of two world championships and the recent Olympic, is paired with Stanislov, 27, previously a star forward, for the other duo.

Konstantin Loktev, 31, a principal member of the Soviet team for seven years, teams up with Alexander Almetov, 24, and Veniamin Alexandrov, a sage 27, as the top attacking unit. Tireless Vyacheslov Starshinov, 24, skates with the twins Yevgeni and Boris Mayorov, 26, who present double-trouble with their precise teamwork, for the second forward trio.

The third has 31-year-old resident veteran Leonid Valkov and Vladimir Senishkin going with Anatoli Firsov, who, at 23, is considered to be the fastest rising puckster in the USSR. Vladimir Yursinov, 24, presently regarded as the best player in Russia, is on a unit with Yuri Volkov, 27, and Sergi Paramoshkin, 26. Yurzinov did not compete in the Innsbruck Olympics due to appendicitus. Utility man on the team, Victor Yakushev, is a 27-year-old center who can work any position.

Czechoslovakia is expected to supply a comparable team during the six-game tournament here for the Walter A. Brown Memorial Trophy, and Canada will excercise their new National team composed of the best combination of collegiate and NHL icers. All three teams were on the winner's triangle during the Olympics, as Canada and Czechoslovakia tied for second behind Russia.

St. Joseph's Drops Redmen From Ranks of Undefeated

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

College basketball's upper echelon is fast becoming a scrap heap — and the hungry Hawks of St. Joseph's, Pa., are doing their share of the plundering.

The Philadelphia quintet, which ran Davidson out of the Top Ten 10 days ago, knocked off seventh-ranked St. John's of New York 71-56 Tuesday night with a stifling zone defense that limited the visiting Redmen to 16 second-half points.

St. John's first loss in four starts left only two nationally ranked teams — No. 3 San Francisco and No. 4 Minnesota — with perfect records.

The Hawks, behind sophomore Matt Goukas Jr., opened and the second half with a 13-1 surge that wiped out a 40-39 deficit and put the Redmen behind to stay. Goukas hit fo reight points during the rally.

Sonny Dove, St. John's 6-foot-7 soph center, was stopped cold in the last 20 minutes by the Hawks' 3-2 zone after scoring 16 points in the first half.

Goukas finished with 17 points, one less than teammate Billy Oakes. Ken McIntyre hit 19 for St. John's.

Villanova, St. Joseph's ambitious Philadelphia neighbor, matched the Hawks' 5-0 mark with a 95-60 romp over Toledo. The home club scored 15 straight points at the outset and was never headed. Six Wildcats scored in double figures, with Bill Melchionni potting 20 points. Tom Aspen of Toledo, with 22 points, took game honors.

Rick Barry scored his first point at 12:09 of the first half but still finished with 39 as Miami of Florida outraced visiting St. Mary's, Calif., 89-77. Barry's 11 field goals and 18 rebounds set Miami career records of 571 and 922, respectively.

Penn State pulled away from Gettysburg with a burst of 10 successive points midway through the second half and whipped the home team 53-39. Bob Weiss' 18 points paced the Nittany Lions to their fourth straight victory after an opening loss.

Skip Thoren pumped 16 of his 19 points in the first half, triggering Illinois to a 70-56 decision over Wisconsin in the Big Ten conference opener at Madison, Wis.

The Citadel boosted its top Southern Conference record to 3-0 by nipping Richmond 78-75 on Herwig Baumann's jump shot with 12 seconds left in the second overtime period.

Errors Bother AFA Coach As Cadets Break for Exams

Athletes at the Air Force Academy have turned their attention towards the classroom and final examinations this week, as the winter sports program has been recessed until Dec. 30, when the basketball team resumes play.

The Falcons completed pre-holiday competition on a high note last Saturday as Coach Bob Spear's basketball team eased past Iowa State, 67-63, and the Falcon swimmers drubbed the University of Colorado, 66-28, in the only varsity action scheduled.

The win by the Falcon cagers was their second in a row, and boosted the season record to 3-2. The win was also the second straight over Big Eight competition, as the Cadets stopped Missouri last Wednesday, 82-76.

Spear, who is in a "rebuilding season," was smiling over the fact his charges dumped Iowa State with an all sophomore-junior cast, but was unhappy about the numerous errors committed by the Falcons.

For the first time this season, the Cadets jumped out to an early lead, primarily on the basis of a glove tight defense which forced many Iowa State bobbles, and held leads of 8-1, 10-3, 14-4 and 22-12. But then, the Falcons could manage only three field goals in the last seven minutes of the half, and were hanging onto a slim 35-33 halftime margin.

The Cyclones hustled to their only lead of the game, 37-35, early in the second stanza before junior Sam Peshut led an Air Force attack that put the Falcons into a 61-56 lead with less than five minutes remaining. The Cadets salted away the victory on free throws, as the Cyclones were forced to foul in a desperate attempt to get back into the game.

Sophomore Fred Budinger finished as the Cadets' top scorer with 15 points, while three other starters scored in double figures. Peshut, who collected 11 in the last half, finished with 13, Ed Sullivan with 12 and Jerry Yankee with 11.

Said Spear, "I guess you have to figure a win is a win is a win. But we're really concerned about the number of errors we have been making in critical situations in the past two games, our inability to hit from the free throw line, and our inability to run our delay offense."

Spear continued, "Our rebounding has shown considerable improvement, and we certainly can't fault the players on effort. We have hustled all the way in our first five games, and that's the main reason we're over the .500 mark. If we continue to hustle, and eliminate some of those errors, we're going to be a pretty good team before this season is over."

Although the Cadets connected on a healthy percentage from the charity line against Iowa State (19-25), the free throw avenue was a rocky road in the first four contests. In fact, in the Falcons' overtime loss to Mile High Champions Colorado State, the Cadets hit only 12 of 21 free throws, while the Rams connected on 26 of 36.

The Air Force cagers will have plenty of time to correct any mistakes before seeing action again, as the next game is slated for Dec. 30, when the Falcons play Arkansas State in the first of a three-game road trip. After meeting Arkansas State at Jonesboro, Ark., the Cadets move into Omaha, Neb., for a Jan. 2 game with Creighton University, then travel on to Grand Forks, N.D., and a Jan. 5 meeting with the University of North Dakota.

Next home action for the Falcons will be on Jan. 9, when they entertain the University of Denver at the Cadet Gymnasium.

Baseball Signs Multi-Club Contract For Television of Saturday Games

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball has struck its finger in the lucrative television pie for the first time on a multi-club basis, pulling out a $12.2 million plum but leaving one juicy question still unresolved:

What about the New York Yankees and CBS?

The speculation arose Tuesday following baseball's announcement that it had sold its first regular season package, giving the American Broadcasting Co. the right to telecast nationally 25 Saturday and two holiday games in both the 1965 and 1966 seasons.

The money from the new undertaking, named the Saturday Spectacular, will be divided equally among the teams, bringing the 18 clubs participating in the venture about $300,000 a year in addition to revenue from local telecasts.

Two clubs with previous committments — the Philadelphia Phillies and the CBS-owned Yankees — are not participants.

The Phillies are expected to join before the start of the season and it is hoped the Yankees will join the rest of baseball for the 1966 season.

During the 1965 season the Yankees will be in direct competition with the other 18 clubs, 19 if the Phillies iron out their local sponsorship problem.

The Yankees, purchased last year by CBS, have a contract with the network that has been in existence for about 10 years, but runs out after the 1965 season. The past season the Yankees televised 22 home games on a national basis via CBS, receiving $550,000. They are expected to do the same in 1965.

John Fetzer, owner of the Detroit Tigers and one of the prime movers in the package arrangement with ABC, admitted the Yankees participation would have made the transaction more attractive and said:

"We hope the Yankees will be included in 1966. But we are unable to determine that at the present time."

The Yankees said much the same through General Manager Ralph Houk.

"We have not committed ourselves one way or the other," he pointed out. "Our contract for this year with CBS is so much better than what the others are to get, we would have to study the proposition when we are no longer committed to our present contract."

Under the terms of he contract for the Saturday Spectacular, the clubs will get $5.7 million the first year and $6.5 million the second—equivalent to $300,000 per team the first year and $325,000 the second time around.

The new package deal also means that television viewers around the country no longer will see major league baseball on an NBC outlet. The only games to be televised nationally are the Saturday Spectacular on ABC and the Yankees home games on Saturdays and Sundays.

One of the main features of the Saturday Spectacular is that there will be no blackout anywhere except in the cities of the two teams playing. The game will be televised into all areas of the country, including cities which have major league teams.

Previously no game was permitted to be televised into an area within a 50-mile radius of a major league city.

The announcement of the new contract was made by Fetzer and Roone Arledge of ABC in the office of Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick. Frick said the baseball contract was more profitable than the $28 million two-year package engineered by the National Football League.

"You must remember," said Frick, "that baseball clubs still maintain their individual rights to negotiate for the telecasts of their own games on a local scale.

"If you want to make a comparison you have to take the total telecasts into account," Frick added. "The revenue from all baseball telecasts, including the World Series and All-Star games, prior to this contract, was roughly around $30 million. I would say that far exceeds the amount paid to football."

With 14 cubs, each NFL team gets about a million dollars. Although all baseball teams do not get the same revenue from local contracts, using Frick's estimated figures, the average over-all television monies would be $1.8 million a year for each of baseball's 20 teams.

Under the terms for the Saturday Spectacular, two games will be televised — one in the Eastern part of the country and one in the West. There will be a third game, held as a standby, in the event of a postponement.

Tom Moore, ABC president, said the schedule will be arranged before the start of the season but will be flexible so emphasis can be placed on the pennant races.

"We will make it flexible so that changes can be made depending on the nature of the pennant race," he said. "Our idea is to schedule the game that have the maximum interest for the fans. Baseball as a national attraction has nothing but growth ahead, and we will do everything in our power to enhance the enjoyment of the game for the fans."

NAB Play Blasted as Too Rough

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Jack McMahon of the Cincinnati Royals has followed up charges by St. Louis owner Ben Kerner of "rough-house tactics" in the National Basketball Association by blasting opposing clubs for "getting away with murder" agiainst Oscar Robertson.

McMahon's verbal broadside Tuesday night was fired only hours after Kerner met with NBA President Walter Kennedy in New York, citing play in the league as "the roughest I have seen in my 18 years of professional basketball."

McMahon said opposing players are "handling" Robertson illegally. "They're putting both hands on him every time he moves. You cannot use your hands to impede the progress of a player.

"A referee can't rationalize a move," said McMahon. "If it's a foul, then call it. I don't want any advantage. All I want them to do is call it the way it's supposed to be called."

Robertson said "the refs say you have to be moving to get the foul. I don't understand this. Everytime I do it to them, it's a foul. They won't let me play that way. If they can come out and put hands on you, you should be able to do the same to them.

"Boston plays all over you," Robertson continued. "But all the teams are doing it now. The guy picks you up high. You make a move — they grab you and hold you.

"But they do it because they can get away with it."

Kerner said Kennedy had told him that a special meeting of NBA referees would be called immediately to discuss his charge. The Hawks' owner said the NBA president had told him the referees would discuss the game in which St. Louis star Bob Pettit was injured.

Pettit was hurt when he collided with a Los Angeles player and fell to the floor.

Kerner said the rough-house play also had resulted in a knee injury for Arlen Bockhorn of the Royals that likely will put him out for the season.

"Bockhorn's career is in jeopardy and he may not play again," Kerner pointed out.

Then he turned to St Lous' Tuesday night opponent.

"We're facing Boston without three of our top players — John Barnhill, Richie Guerin and Pettit — what position does this put us in?"

Fountain Valley Height Too Much for Mustangs

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Rank has its privileges in the armed forces and height has its privileges on the basketball court.

Fountain Valley, towering far above visiting Manitou Springs, handed the Mustangs a 60-51 defeat Tuesday night. Hal Clifford, 6-5 forward stationing himself for easy lay-ins, corralled 30 points to lead the Danes.

Manitou has no one standing better than 6-1, while the Danes played a pair of 6-5 cagers and another brace of 6-4's.

The Danes played for the easy shots against Manitou, tossing in to Clifford and moving confidently back downcourt as he potted 13 of 17 from the field.

Manitou had the lead most of the first quarter as Fountain Valley couldn't seem to bend down to snare the continual bounce passes the Mustangs employed. With Bruce Heidenreich hitting for six points and John Moore for five, Manitou jumped to an 18-10 lead before the Danes found the range, which was never very far from the basket.

Clifford hit for 10 points in the quarter, keeping his team near enough for Andy Jenkins to break the Danes in front for keeps, 23-21, at the end of the period.

The Mustangs hit a three-minute dry spell late in a slowed second quarter as Jenkins and Clifford rolled up six straight points during the drouth to send Fountain Valley out of reach.

Heidenreich had a fine night with 18 points, six of seven from the floor and six of eight at the foul stripe. Moore and Marv Layman each carded 12 points.

The Mustangs host Fountain Friday night in a non-Pikes Peak League game. Manitou beat the Trojans, 53-51, in the St. Mary's Tournament. But Fountain also has a half a dozen men over 6-1, giving the Mustangs their second straight taste of height.

Smith, Steel Selected As All-State Gridders

Quarterback Jim Smith and end Charlie Steel of Wasson were awarded first team berths on the All-State football squad announced by the Rocky Mountain News today.

Smith, the record-breaking signal-caller of the state's number two team, was one of five backs selected by the News staff. Others included Steve Tracy and Bill Schmitz of the champion Lakewood squad, Craig Bozich of Aurora Central, and Dan Ruth of Denver Washington.

Two other local players were named to the AAA second team. Yogi Grandcourt, Wasson tackle, and Greg Cramblit, Cheyenne Mountain fullback, were among that 12 man group.

Other area stars honored were Dick Shadwell of Florence who was a first team back in the AA division, Gary Williams of Monument who was a first team end in the eight-man division, and Crosby Carver of Monument, a second team selection in the eight-man division.

Illinois Cage Game Goes Nine Overtimes

DWIGHT, Ill. (AP) — Dwight had to go through nine overtimes Tuesday night before finally posting a 76-72 Illinois high school basketball victory over Reddick.

The two teams were tied 62-6 at the end of regulation time. They then remained tied 62-62 through the first seven overtimes.

Each team scored four points in the eighth overtime before Dwight scored 10 points in the final extra period while Reddick was collecting only six.

St. Louis Obtains Francona

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The world champion St. Louis Cardinals have turned Tito Francona into a last-minute Cinderella, acquiring the veteran outfielder from Cleveland just before the clock struck midnight Tuesday and ended major league baseball's inter-league trading period.

The Francona transaction, in which the Indians will get a player to be named later in addition to an unannounced amount of cash, was the 13th made during the month-long period in which National and American League clubs can trade with each other.

Including the player to be delivered by the Cardinals, 31 players will have changed uniforms. In addition, eight more players have been shuffled in four other trades since the 1964 baseball season ended.

The Cardinals grabbed Francona to beef up their bench strength after a couple of trades in the past week depleted their supply of outfielders.

Charley James was traded to Cincinnati along with pitcher Roger Craig for Reds' pitcher Bob Purkey and outfielder Johnny Lewis and pitcher Gordon Richardson were sent to the New York Mets for pitcher Tracy Stallard.

Francona, a 30-year-old left-handed hitter, hit .248 for Cleveland last season with eight homers and 24 runs batted in.

The interleague trading period ended with 13 major league clubs having completed at least one transaction. All but four American League clubs — New York, Detroit, Baltimore and Kansas City — have made at least one deal since the end of tht season.

The Philadelphia Phillies and Washington Senators were the two busiest clubs during the inter-league period, each completing three trades.

The Phillies acquired first baseman Dick Stuart from Boston for pitcher Dennis Bennett, got pitcher Bo Belinsky from the Los Angeles Angels for first baseman Costen Shockley and pitcher Rudy May and received pitcher Ray Herbert and outfielder-first baseman Jeff Long from the Chicago White Sox for outfielder Danny Cater and shortstop Lee Elia.

The Senators pulled off the biggest deal in numbers, concluding a seven-player swap with the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Senators acquired outfielder Frank Howard, pitchers Pete Richert and Phil Ortega and infielders Ken McMullen and Dick Nen in exchange for pitcher Claude Osteen, third baseman John Kennedy and $100,000.

In a separate transaction, the Senators bought catcher Doug Camilli from the Dodgers and traded outfielder Chuck Hinton to Cleveland for first baseman Bob Chance and infielder-outfielder Woody Held.

The entire list of transactions during the inter-league period:

San Francisco traded outfielder Jose Cardenal to the Los Angeles Angels for catcher Jack Hiatt.

Chicago White Sox sold pitcher Fritz Ackley to St. Louis.

Boston traded first baseman Dick Stuart to Philadelphia for pitcher Dennis Bennett.

Los Angeles Angels sold pitcher Dan Osinski to Milwaukee.

Washington purchased catcher Doug Camilli from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Los Angeles Angels bought first baseman Vic Power from Philadelphia.

Army now leads its football series with Navy, 31-29. Five games ended in ties.

Record Crowds See College Grid

NEW YORK (AP) — College football reached an all-time high in attendance in 1964 attracting a total of 23,354,477 spectators.

The figures, released today by the Nation Collegiate Athletic Bureau, showed an increase of 1,117,383, or 5.02 per cent, over the 1963 total.

Both previous highs were set last year when 22,237,094 turned out, an increase of 4.76 per cent over 1962.

It was the 11th straight year that crowds at college football games were on the upswing. During that time the attendance climbed 40 per cent over the 16,-681, 731 in 1953.

The top 100 teams in 1964 drew an average of 1,516 more per game than did the top 100 in 1963.

Attendance increases were spread all over the country, with nine of the 11 major conferences showing gains. Three of those conferences, the Big Ten, Big Eight and Southeastern, set all-time records for average attendance per game.

The Big Ten headed the list, averaging 58,780 fans for its 49 games. The Southeastern was next with a 73,880 average for 68 home games. Then came the Big Eight with a 36,332 average for 39 games and the newly-organized AAWU Conference with an average of 36,604 at its 41 home games.

Two conferences showed attendance drops. They were the Southern, down 1.70 per cent and the Southwest, down 7.19 per cent from 1963.

The Atlantic Coast Conference enjoyed the biggest jump, a 16.19 per cent increase.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Bastiat Immortalized

Some years ago, the writings of Frederic Bastiat were "discovered."

Since that time, many thousands of persons have become familiar with the thinking and the writing of this particularly penetrating Frenchman, through the efforts of Rose Wilder Lane, The Foundation for Economic Education, and the Freedom Newspapers under the leadership of publisher R. C. Hoiles.

Frederic Bastiat was born at Bayonne, France, in June of 1801. He lived an all too brief but active life, and died on Christmas eve in 1850 at age 49.

Bastiat was a great popularizer of economic truths. Few if any can rival his genius for stating an economic truth in such clear and sparkling terms. And while he has been criticized for the touch of simplicity with which his arguments are conducted, his essay, "The Law," and similarly his article on "Things That Are Seen and Things That Are Unseen" have taken on the aura of classic writing and are today more widely read than ever before.

It is with unalloyed delight, therefore, that we now find the Van Nostrand Company putting out a splendid three-volume set of Bastiat's writings. Each of the volumes has an introduction, written in turn by Dean Russell, F. von Hayek and Henry Hazlitt. The entire three-volume set is something that all serious explorers in economic theory will wish to possess.

Even the dabbler in social affairs and social and economic problems will find much grist for his mill in these splendidly edited volumes. Arthur Goddard has translated from the original French. The three volumes are entitled: "Economic Sophisms," "Economic Harmonies," and "Selected Essays on Political Economy."

What is important at this juncture is this: Bastiat was perhaps the first serious writer to come to grips with socialist theory and to demolish it. While he was not acquainted with later studies in value which have provided so much to refute many socialist claims, Bastiat nonetheless used a devastating technique to trounce his socialist opponents. His method was the reductio ad absurdum device of extending to its logical conclusions the concepts in socialist panaceas. His ridicule was both pointed and profound.

Bastiat took up his pen to controvert the theories of government protectionism in economic theory. And though modern protectionists have tried to laugh off his barbs which he so skillfully launched, they remain like the pics of the Spanish bullfighters, to worry and sap the strength of the charging male bovine of government regulation and management.

When, for instance, someone suggests that the Paris to Madrid railroad be forced to break the line at Bordeaux (in order to enhance the business of Bordeaux), Bastiat goes on to suggest that if it is desirable to have coercion employed to improve business at Bordeaux, would it not also be desirable to compel the railroad to have a break at each and every intervening point, thus enhancing business all the way around. He suggests, finally, that if the railroad has enough breaks in it, it will enhance business all around by being a purely negative railroad that will take nothing anywhere.

In order to show the ridiculous concept of slowing down workers in order to create more employment, he suggests that the government issue a decree wherein all men are required to work only with their left hands. Since they could do less than half of what they have done before, this would enhance the employment picture. He even suggests that to enforce the law, it would only be necessary to amputate all right hands. Think of the employment that would result!

If you haven't read Bastiat, you'll want to become acquainted with this fascinating writer, who entertains as he writes. If you have read some of his efforts, you'll certainly want to familiarize yourself with his total output. This is now possible thanks to the Van Nostrand Company and The Volker Fund, which has sponsored the publication.

Value Judgments and Moral Principles

In current conversations in various parts of the country, we have come across an interesting dichotomy in the minds of serious students of individualism.

There is a tendency in certain quarters to confuse moral principles with value judgments.

This is fairly serious. It is important that we all understand as clearly as we are capable that moral principles are one thing and value judgments quite another.

A moral principle is an absolute. A value judgment is relative. If we begin to think of moral principles as being relative, we are in difficulties. Similarly, if we begin thinking of value judgments as absolutes, we are in trouble.

The causes for this confusion undoubtedly relate to epistemology. That is, the confusion relates to the method employed and the words used in applying reason.

Moral principles are part of the objective world of reality. As such, they are finite, with limits that can be determined. Value judgments are subjective. They relate to the individual's scale of values which he employs constantly in determining which action he is to take and which he is to avoid. Values fluctuate in time and place. And each person, while capable of recognizing a moral principle, is also capable of valuing that principle a little differently than any other person.

Let us see if we can find a moral principle.

We will propose only one at this juncture. This is not to suggest that there may not be many more.

It is immoral to impose one's will on another by means of aggressive force to the ultimate harm of that person. How the imposition is to occur or what means will be employed to force the victim are matters of detail.

We will argue that this is a moral principle for it gives us an unvarying general rule as to a kind of behavior which is injurious to each and every member of our species if it is employed.

Now let us examine this proposition in some detail in order to find out where value judgments enter.

If our moral principle is sound, then it is immoral (in principle) to steal a penny from a person; to knock a person down without provocation; to set fire to his house; to kidnap the person. Each of these acts is a violation of the principle we have set up.

Now, how about value judgments? Most of us would have a descending scale of values in relation to each of the acts. In all probability we would view kidnapping as the most serious of these offenses, followed by arson, assault and theft, in that order. Although each of these actions is a violation of the principle, we would value each act (or de-value it. . .value it negatively) in relation to its real or imagined severity.

From the standpoint of the principle involved, each of the acts mentioned is a violation. From the standpoint of value judgments, we would view each act separately.

Now, it is possible that a society might exist (or possibly has existed) in which a set of values quite different from the one we have suggested could be in vogue. This in no way alters the principle. We would still hold it immoral to impose one's will on another by means of aggressive force to the ultimate harm of the victim. The degree of harm, the feelings we have in each case, will vary.

Further, our view of the severity of the crime will vary.

A person loses a penny to a thief. There are times when we would view such an act by a thief as a very severe violation of the principle. This might occur, for instance, while we are trying to train a child as to the value of honesty.

Again, we might be very lenient. For instance, in making change, the difference of a penny might be involved. In either case, the person taking the penny not belonging to him has violated the principle. In the first instance, we might spend a long time lecturing the thief (if known) on the importance of absolute honesty. In the second case, we might shrug it off and suggest that the person making change should have been more careful.

Thus, the difference between a moral principle and a value judgment is shown. An act, trivial or major, which violates the principle is a wrong in itself. The degree of wrong, the reaction we have to it, the various factors involved will not change the principle. But all these factors will alter our way of looking at the violation.

Dislike for Paper Napkins

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

It was a good many years ago when I first began to notice the disappearance of linen or cotton napkins from the tables in restaurants. Since I have a built-in dislike for paper napkins, I began avoiding the eating places where cloth napkins had fallen into disuse. I don't usually spill food on my clothing but if an accident does occur — maybe a spot of mustard gets on a sleeve — dipping the corner of a paper napkin into water to create a tool to remove the stain is a total waste of time. Of course, things are different now. It is difficult to find a restaurant where a waiter or waitress whips a cloth napkin from a table to hand it to you with a flowing, graceful gesture of welcome. Now you're lucky if you get a double-size paper napkin, and I quit holding my breath waiting for even one of those things to be handed to me. As a matter of fact, you can count yourself as lucky any time you are served a cup of coffee in a saucer which does not also contain coffee which drips from the cup unless you sop it up by placing a couple of paper napkins in the saucer.

I guess I began losing my pleasure in food about the same time the beautiful linen napkins disappeared from the dining tables, but why did they disappear? Restaurant owners began asking the same question! And the end is not in sight because hotel and motel operators are being plagued by thieves who seem to believe that payment of rent for a one-night stay in a motel entitles them to towels, sheets, bedspreads, blankets and pillow cases.

Nice thick bath mats went first and this is the reason you now find specially treated cardboard things upon which you may drip dry after you step from shower or tub bath. If you think thievery is not prevalent, talk to a few motel and hotel operators who find that many of their best customers are thieves, insatiable thieves, at that. For some strange reason, a good many tourists believe the autograph of an establishment on an expensive bedspread makes it fair game as a souvenir and then wonder why prices for overnight accommodations continue to rise.

Have you ever wondered what effect this particular kind of stealing has on children who watch while a parent wraps his overcoat around an expensive blanket and the other parent stuffs a few towels into a suitcase? Wonder no more. It makes thieves out of children and their children ad nauseam, ad infinitum, and that means sickeningly, and it goes on and on.

Motel and hotel operators have discovered that plain, unadorned towels and bed linen, blankets and bedspreads present less of a temptation to their overnight guests but even under such circumstances, much too much private property is stolen.

Disrespect for private property has grown with every advance of socialism and with every increase in the size and cost and power of government. If there be justification for thievery, then all forms of thievery are justified and too many Americans are reacting accordingly.

If parents are justified in stealing hotel and motel property, why is their son not justified in stealing an automobile to take his girl for a ride? He doesn't intend to keep the car whereas his parents do intend to keep the motel and hotel property they have stolen.

An oddity: An acquaintance with whom I discussed this problem several months ago told me I was being too tough on what he called "hobbyists." I dropped the subject at the time out of sheer disgust but the acquaintance may remember. My maternal grandmother was a hobbyist. She loved to collect silverware from hotels and trains and she PAID for every spoon or knife or fork she added to her collection. There's a difference! I suspect that the difference may have something to do with my own respect for the property of others. I always felt a bit proud of my tiny grandmother when she walked up to the desk or a cashier in a restaurant and asked, "Will the management permit me to buy this lovely spoon for my collection?"

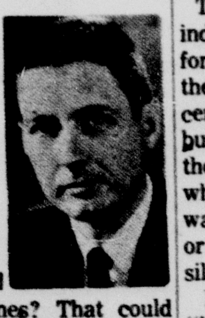
One of these days, I will buy a linen napkin, complete with silver napkin holder, and carry it around with me, so I can enjoy my food in a restaurant.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

The American Way

Why There Is A Coin Shortage

By HARRY BROWNE



Wherever you may live in this land, I'm sure you know by now there's a coin shortage. First the silver dollars disappeared; the half dollars are on the way out; the quarters will undoubtedly be next.

Why this shortage? Too many parking meters and vending machines? That could hardly be the cause of the disappearing silver dollars.

In reality, the coin shorage reflects the growing understanding of the American people that their government is handling their money dishonestly. As a result, individuals are protecting themselves in the only way available to them.

The inflationary paper money in circulation is continuing to depreciate in value as the growing federal debt requires the printing of additional Federal Reserve Notes. The paper on which these "dollars" are printed has no intrinsic value. And the "dollars" are not backed up by anything of value. All the gold in Fort Knox is subject to the claims of foreigners.

No one knows when the present inflation will erupt into the kind of hyper-inflation that ruined the French economy in the eighteenth century and the German economy in the 1920's.

So what does the individual do to protect himself against the destruction of the wealth he has earned? He seeks something of value that will weather all the storms the government can create.

He can't store gold — much as he'd like to — for the government has outlawed the holding of gold. This was done in order to give the government the freedom to inflate the money supply at will, without fear of losing all its gold to understandably-irate citizens.

The only thing available to the individual is silver — in the form of silver coins. He saves the coins — not for the "fifty cents" written on the surface—but for the silver contained therein. He knows that, come what may, the silver will always be of value. Good times or bad, he can always exchange silver for something he needs.

Is it wrong for individuals to "hoard" coins? Of course not! Is it wrong for anyone to utilize the fruits of his own labor in any way he chooses? Is it wrong for an individual to protect himself against a foolish government or should he "patriotically" protect the government from its own dishonesty?

If our money system were honest — if every "dollar" in circulation were backed up by a dollar's worth of gold or silver — no one would have to save coins. There would be no inflation, prices would be stable or dropping, and depressions would be eliminated from the economy.

There is no excuse for a dishonest money system. It is the result of our foolishly thinking the government can solve problems. It can't. Only free men, making mutually-profitable exchanges with each other, can solve the problems of society. When we ask the government to solve our problems, pay our bills, and run our lives, we are asking for trouble.

For governments do not have the "welfare" of the people at heart. They are concerned only with perpetuating their own power. And inflation is always the government's number one tool for this purpose.

Inflation is the inevitable result of "letting the government do it" — and sooner or later enough individuals realize this and take steps to protect themselves.

When enough individuals realize this, perhaps we will take steps to solve our problems the right way — through freedom.

ESSAY

To the Editor:

I wrote this essay for an English class. Would you publish it? It is entitled, "The Death of an Individual."

"The enemy to us now is communism." How many times has each of us heard that statement? How many know what communism really is?

Communism is the total equality of men. To some this sounds a little like the American ideal. Yes, it is equality — but equality carried to an extreme. One cannot rise above another either mentally or financially. It makes no difference whether one works twice as hard as another.

They talk about the deceiving capitalists. Yet how deceiving are we? Do we pack the truth in a small, but true, diamond and surround it by false, but more glittering, cut glass? Are we as unfeeling as a speck of dust, and are we treated as one?

I ask you, Americans. Do you know who the true enemy is? It is recognized by everyone in our country as communism. But we have a form of it in our government now! It is known as socialism.

JOB CORPS

To the Editor:

A considerable amount of confused thinking exists regarding the truth about the "Economic Opportunity Act of 1964" —particularly the Job Corps section. The press and other news media have done much sounding-off about the tremendous opportunities which the Job Corps will open up for our so-called "disadvantaged" youth.

After reading the Act, these points stand out as needing public exposure: 1) The director is given practically unlimited powers to establish any rules and regulations for the Corps. 2) Although the age requirement of 16 up to 22 years is in the law, there is no provision for requiring an enrollee to have his or her parents' consent to join. 3) The program's aim is stated to be "to increase the employability of young men and women"; however, the type of training proposed shows no practical preparation for jobs since there are very few employers hiring young people to "develop. . . natural resources, protect public recreation areas, make botanical surveys," etc. 4) Although the standard rate of compensation to each enrollee is $50 per month, it is possible for them to receive as much as $75 per month. These amounts are in addition to allowances to enrollees for travel, subsistence, transportation, equipment, clothing, medical and dental care, hospitalization, etc.

The Act specifically provides that the number of personnel of the uniformed services assigned to duty with the Job Corps shall not be counted under the law limiting the strength of such facilities. Is this not, in combination with the preceding facts, a grim reminder of the Nazi Youth Camps of the late 30's?

There are many jobs available in the field of farming — farm and ranch hands, domestic help, etc., where the employer is willing to train personnel at the employer's own expense and pay a salary in addition.

Delinquency rate is rising every day in the cities where a

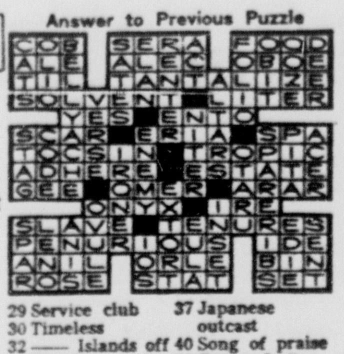
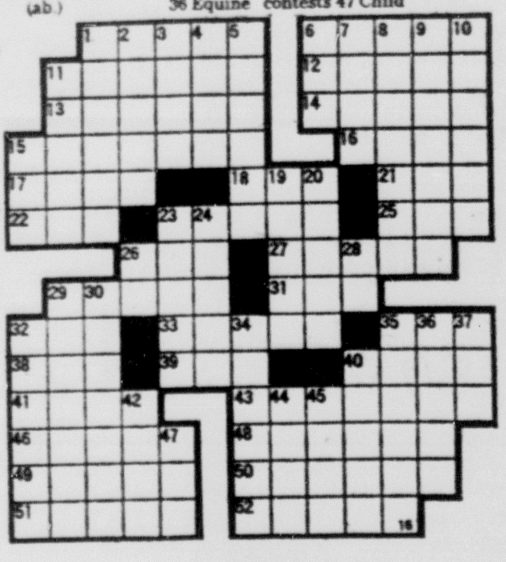
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Sidewalk Assessment

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

An elderly lady in Omaha, Nebraska, hit the issue pretty squarely the other day in her dealings with the city government. The city was putting a new sidewalk in front of her house, and notified the lady that she was to be assessed a certain sum of money to pay for it. She protested, her argument being: "If this is my property, then I should be able to go out and get a contractor of my choice to put the sidewalk in, and pay him the price we agree upon; if this is the city's property, then the city should pay for the sidewalk." The city bureaucrat in charge of such "problems" regretted that the woman "would not listen to reason," and assessed her for the cost of the new sidewalk. (It is interesting to witness an official of government, a man whose final word is a gun, talking in terms of "reason.")

The lady involved could have been even more precise had she stated her position thusly: "If this is my property, I should have the right to determine whether or not I even want a sidewalk in front of my house; and if it is not my property, then let those who want a sidewalk there volunteer to put one in." Either an individual has the absolute right to determine what he will or will not do with his property, or else private property rights do not exist. If government reserves to itself the power to determine what other people must do with their property, then the government owns that property. "Ownership" of any property resides in the man or men who have the complete right to determine what will be done with that property.

A man who thinks he "owns" his home does not, if government can require him to keep his house in repair (or risk losing it under condemnation proceedings); or require him to get a permit before altering the structure of his home; or tell him whether or not he can engage in business on that land (through zoning laws); or insist that his house be back of his lot line so many feet, or have a sidewalk in front of it; or determine whether or not he may raise animals on his land; or tell him how much of his land he may sub-divide and sell to others; or, in the final analysis, take his land from him, against his will, whether to satisfy the tax people or the aesthetic tastes of a bureaucrat who might think the land would be more fitting with a new library on it.

When we are forced to live under such restrictions, we do not "own" our land, we merely have a license from the government to use that land until such time as it pleases the government to force us to make another use of "our" land.

A parasite is one who seeks to obtain either his livelihood or some other advantage at the expense of someone else. In my estimation, anyone who insists upon the right to determine how another man will use his property is a parasite; he is seeking the unearned, by force, from a man who owes him no obligation except to refrain from using coercion against him. What one man does on his property is not the rightful concern of any other property owner, for no man has any right residing in another man's property (unless such a right has been voluntarily created by contract).

It may be argued by some that if a man puts an unsightly building on his property, the rights of his neighbor have been abridged by denying him the former beautiful view. Not at all! The fact that a man may have found a prior use of land to have been more aesthetically pleasing does not mean that he thereby acquires a right to have that prior use maintained. If this is not so, then are we to say that if our neighbors "prefer" that our house remain painted white instead of changing it to blue, that we must not re-paint our house? Or, perhaps we can look at the matter from the other point of view: the man with the unsightly house might care to argue that his rights are being violated by his neighbors maintaining "well-kept" homes.

A man who would like to have another's land devoted to a certain use has only two moral ways of achieving this end: either buy the other man's land, or make a contract with him in which he agrees, for a price, to use his land in a given manner.

There is only one rational criterion for judging property rights: a man has the right to determine what use will or will not be made of his land, and his determination will be final. Any man who would deny this right to others, has effectively denied it to himself as well.

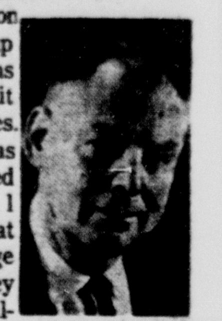
Pension Fund Grab

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN



One of the bigger scare items afloat in Washington, D.C., concerns the administration of the private pension funds built up by corporations for the benefit of employees. The idea has been advanced in several places that here is a huge sum of money — some $65 billions in marketable investments — that might be tapped by the government for its own temporary uses, as Social Security collections have always been tapped. Just put the pension funds under compulsory government administration, possibly under the Social Security fund bureaucracy, then exchange blue chip securities for government bonds — and there would be plenty of cash released to shovel out for "investment" in anti-poverty projects.

This is a bureaucrat's glorious dream. If all pension plans had to be funded through the government, it would bring in a continuing flow of some $5 billion a year for investment. Put into government paper, or I.O.U.'s, the $5 billion of course would be changed annually into a draft on the taxpayers of the future, and so freed as cash to be spent on paying government expenses in the present. The money would, in effect, enrich the bureaucrats without showing up in the annual federal budget.

RESISTANCE

The bureaucrats' dream, however, hardly reckons with reality, for the attempt to "socialize" the private pension funds would surely be resisted at the outset by many of the unions themselves. Pension funds set up as the result of union-management bargaining are many and varied, and they would naturally baffle anyone trying to plan a takeover.

The United Mine Workers fund, for instance, is an industry-wide fund which is under the administration of a three-man board, one chosen to represent the miners, one to represent the coal operators, and the third a "neutral" agreeable to both sides. The Mine Workers fund is mostly a pay-in-pay-out proposition. But it has some cash invested in blue chip securities, mostly in the coal burning electrical utility field, the rest of it being government bonds bought voluntarily in the open market, not foisted on the union by compulsion.

A district court keeps close watch on the Mine Workers' investments, which means there is surveillance without bureaucracy. The cost of administering the Mine Workers' fund is pretty close to zero, as union officials do much of the work of certifying cases for payment voluntarily.

In other industries, pension funds are the joint creations of separate corporations and their employees. Some pension plans are set up exclusive of Social Security payments; others are written to give an employee a total of, say, $200 a month including government Social Security. The complexity of the various plans would baffle uniform administration by electronic computers. Just how they could all be put under government control without a vast amount of special direction involving the creation of a vast additional bureaucracy is a mystery.

TAMPERING

So, although bills may be introduced into the next session of Congress looking to put private pension plans under federal Social Security control, it is doubtful that the contemplated "grab" will get anywhere. Back in the nineteen forties, the House Ways and Means Committee considered putting private pension plans under the Social Security system, with the funds being invested in government I.O.U.'s. It is recalled that the employees of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company threatened at the time to go on strike if there were any tampering with the A.T. and T. pension fund. The idea of handing over pension funds to the government forthwith died aborning.

If, as a matter of wild speculation, the government were ever to get its hands on the investment funds represented by the pension plans, it would certainly help to hollow out the free economy. By transferring creative investment funds into sterile government paper, it would add to the interest-bearing debt of the nation without bringing any corresponding earning capacity into existence. We would, of course, "owe the money to ourselves." But somebody, some day, would have to be taxed to pay the money to "ourselves."

trained police force is maintained to handle this situation. Does it make sense to transplant this element into areas which have only sparse rural protection?

Misguided local merchants who think they can increase their volume of business with close-by camps, would do well to check the facts and request written commitments of purchases to be made locally.

Why have Pike National Forest Officials pressed for installing camps in their area without first consulting property owners in the immediate vicinity?

MEANINGS

To the Editor:

Just noticed a letter from Mr. Carter suggesting another writer refer to the dictionary for word meanings. From the sidelines I'd like to suggest that Mr. Carter take his own advice. Did he ever stop to consider that some words have double meanings according to the point of view and usage?

For instance, "wages" over and above my "expenses" are the "profits" on my "capital" of my outlay for training and the difference between minimum earnings and living expenses while gaining experiences — which "profits" our federal bureaucracy (IRS, sometimes known as the Infernal Revenue Dis-Service) stole from me as fast as paid to me! "Profits" of a corporation paid out in dividends are "wages" (earnings) paid to stockholders for "services rendered" by their money so invested.

Surely, Mr. Carter must have heard the term "earnings" used in speaking of stock values — values go up as earnings go up, and go down as earnings go down. Earnings can be wages, salaries, commissions, or anything of value to the recipient for services rendered.

Why waste time arguing about differences without a distinction? It appears Mr. Carter has classed himself as one "convinced against his will is of the same opinions still."

STOP PUSHING

To the Editor:

Recently, Mrs. Kircher began her Open Parliament letter with, "Our rapidly expanding city is in desperate need of money."

For that very reason of rapid expansion, there are about twice as many taxpayers now as there was thirteen years ago, and, furthermore, they are paying more in taxes now than ever before in history. Simple arithmetic shows that as the city grows, the tax burden for each taxpayer should DECREASE, not increase. As any business services more people, either their profits rise or the cost to the people comes down. Now, since the cost to the taxpayers is going up instead of down, WHAT IS HAPPENING TO ALL THE EXTRA LOOT?

A builder recently told me that when he develops lots for building sites, the sewer, water and streets cost the city not one penny, and if you talk to the home buyers they will tell you also that the $3,000 or more they paid for the lot includes the street, water and sewer. So every new resident is almost pure gravy to the city tax collectors.

Nobody but an idiot would believe her opening statement without absolute proof. Increasing taxes discourages home ownership, the backbone of our country. (Count the number of trailers in the Colorado Springs area.) The best thing the "city" could do to the people is to start stealing less money from them. We are being taxed into slavery fast enough. Please, Mrs. Kircher, stop pushing!

TO OBTAIN FREEDOM

To the Editor:

It is good to glance over the editorial page, and see what subjects may be discussed, disgusting or such.

Good old Rufus Porter can discuss an article of interest to all of us, at any time —without using half a dictionary word volume — to get to the point of his article.

Now, the editor is very much different! He is always writing and trying to explain, about the meaning and worth of FREEDOM. But, generally, if you finish his article, you wonder what he was writing about.

He is always yakking about the need of freedom but he has never yet put forth a way of any kind of obtaining it, legally.

He certainly must be afraid to say a word about the Liberty Amendment, which is one way of getting this freedom the editor speaks of.

I guess he is wearing a bridle and halter in regards to what he prints, regardless of his paper not being a union one.

So, if he has his usual comments, or corrections on the articles any of us send in, maybe we can learn from his answer why he will not proclaim the Liberty Amendment a real good way to obtain this needed freedom from federal-state-county-and city authority, in regard to how, where, why and when we live, as we want to.

Very few people know of the Liberty Amendment, or the merits it contains, the power it will have IF the people will get behind it, and start it to roll.

The large, overweight government lords are fearful of this Liberty Amendment, as it would put them back to daily work for living, for themselves, instead of us all working for them.

Let's see what the editor suggests, as a way to obtain this liberty he wants.

FRANK E. SEILER
230 E. Monroe

Editor's note: Liberty is a natural condition and cannot be provided by ye editor, by the government, or by those who favor the Liberty Amendment. Liberty comes to those who understand it when they have individually earned it. It comes through the practice of self-discipline, not through the imposing of controls on others, even for their own good.

The Liberty Amendment, as far as it goes, is an excellent idea relating to the possible blocking of one avenue of income to the government.

However, since there is nothing to prevent the government from embarking upon other avenues (national sales tax — a per capita tax, etc.) the actual gains to be made via the efforts of those who favor the amendment are largely in the field of educating the public to the fact that every tax is a limitation on their freedom. We have supported the educational efforts of the Liberty Amendment devotees.

RIP THAT PLAN

To the Editor:

In Open Parliament December 11, Mr. Grove wrote about the Fred Lander plan of government. The fourth point of this plan goes something like this:

"Those voting for the winning party and candidates are required to defray the costs of political government during the entire period their favorites are in power. Those voting for the losers are let off scot free for the same period of time."

Mr. Grove, after asking us to stop and think a moment about this, says, "What's wrong with Fred Lander's plan? By golly, nothing!"

By golly, I have news for Mr. Grove. Plenty is wrong with the plan.

1) It is undemocratic. The winners would pay for the government and thus deserve all the benefits and control of the government. The losers would have no say in the government because they would not contribute to it.

2) It would discourage voting. Few would want to carry the whole burden of government finance, so they would not want to win.

3. It would eliminate the secret ballot. To be able to be counted as a loser, the voters would have to prove who they voted for: Back to the paper ballot, in duplicate forms with signatures even.

This is just a beginning. I spotted these even as I was reading Mr. Grove's letter. I am sure that with careful study one could really tear that plan apart.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS

To the Editor:

This is in reference to the letter to the editor "Fender and a Prayer" which appeared in the December 12 edition of the Gazette Telegraph, and concerned Airport Road and Circle Drive.

The statement of the writer that "just K-Mart did not make this difference," is an error. Prior to the opening of this shopping center, this department took a 24-hour automatic traffic count on September 9, as part of a study of the intersection under discussion. At that time, the traffic volume warrant was met for only four hours.

This department made a three-day automatic traffic count following the opening of the shopping center (November 30, December 1 and 2). This showed that warrants for signalization, by reason of traffic volume, were met for eight hours a day.

The implication that traffic signals prevent accidents is a popular misconception. Traffic signals are not, primarily, safety devices. This fact is known to all persons engaged in traffic control. Your paper carried an article concerning this on March 1, 1964.

The accident referred to by the author of the "Fender and a Prayer" letter, occurred December 2, 1964. It might be of interest to note that the accident report of the CSPD stated that in the opinion of the investigating officers, the vehicle that caused the accident was traveling at an excessive rate of speed and ignored an existing STOP sign. Witnesses verified this.

It should be noted that on November 27 your paper carried an accurate and explanatory story that this department did intend to re-study and re-evaluate the intersection. On December 11, you carried another story stating that signalization of Airport Road and Circle Drive was warranted, and that such installation would be made and "in operation within 10 days."

Thank you for your courtesy, consideration and co-operation in alleviating our traffic problems.

V.A. HOSPITAL

To the Editor:

As we draw near to the close of 1964 our hospitalized veterans and staff join me in expressing our thanks to you and your personnel for your kindness in using news releases relating to the various programs and activities of the Fort Lyon V.A. Hospital. If the public is to gain a greater knowledge of progress dealing with achievements in the care and treatment programs for the mentally ill the interest and cooperation of news media reporting this information is vital to any success achieved. An understanding public certainly will provide valuable follow-up assistance for discharged patients returning to their communities.

We believe our hospital has made an excellent record in 1964 providing new and improved programs benefiting the hospitalized veteran. We are currently planning new programs and activities for 1965 to further hasten the recovery of our hospitalized men. We will appreciate your continued concern in presenting this information to your readers.

It is not in the sense of custom only, but with a genuine appreciation of our pleasant association during the past year that we extend our sincerest wishes to you and your staff for a happy holiday season and a prosperous New Year.

BUYING AND SELLING

To the Editor:

The movement of goods and services for human consumption is the only basis for prosperity and security. What prosperity and security we have is due in large measure to how effective we are in the fields of buying and selling. Every person is both a buyer and a seller.

It is therefore imperative that every individual sell his skills to the highest bidder and he buys the production of others at the lowest price consistent with quality. To the fact that this has been accomplished in the open market is due to the abundance of life enjoyed by millions of Americans. The ready accessibility of the open market place to more and more individuals is a must if we are to continue to prosper and make ourselves more secure in local and world economics.

The open market is the key to distribution and it is here that we must focus attention and gear for effective action. If we fail, it will be because of interference from group actions to control free trading between individuals.

Every individual from birth to death requires goods and services, and there has never been an over-production. Supplying the wants of people in turn creates the jobs, which furnish the money with which to purchase the products of labor. The market for goods and services is provided by our Creator. We fail when we do not understand the workings of the free market place and allow government action to interfere with the natural flow of transactions.

The Dale Carnegie courses have helped hundreds of thousands of persons to understand the ways in which to "win friends and influence people." Businessmen need to set up courses for key men to understand the operation of the open market place. I say businessmen because they are the only ones qualified and experienced to teach it.

WEAKNESS

To the Editor:

The most prevalent weakness of the human race is to make excuses for their failures instead of facing up to them. Some people do not have the ability to understand their failures. For every lack there is a reason. The greatest lack with the majority of people, they are wise in their conceits and will not turn to the omnipotent one for better understanding — the one who said, "those who lack understanding, let them ask and he will give liberally."

Some people do not understand the laws of nature and could not be taught them, because they do not have the ability to learn, and some of them do not have the physical strength to obtain their needs. They are subjects of love and the Golden Rule, which simply is to be considerate and thoughtful of them in actions, which is defined in one word, charity. In the 13th Chapter of 1 Cor., it seems that the definition of salvation is defined. Charity covers a scope when if one meditates upon it and considers the statements of Jesus when he was on the Cross in saying, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do." When one has salvation, they have a charitable thought towards the wicked in the hope that they will see their plight and change.

I am reminded of a great man, ex-President Herbert Hoover, whom I learned more about after his departure. Of his Christian characteristics, of his great compassion, his charity, how he went about doing good without seeking self-aggrandizement. I personally heard people whom I know were void of his good qualities say so much evil of him and blame him for the depression. He was magnanimous. Truly the world was made better by his living here. Though he was rich, in material wealth, he never seemed to set his affections on them and had charity. He never let the evil said about him get him down. He lived above it. This nation lost a friend in his passing. People who set their affections on the perishable material wealth just for the sake of acquiring for themselves, St. Paul said, "They are dead while they yet live."

REAL DESTROYER

To the Editor:

"The real destroyer of the liberties of any people is he who spreads among them bounties, donations and largess" wrote a man named Plutarch some 1,800 years ago after a study of the Greek and Roman nations and empires.

But we're forgetful. Even the eggheads and intellectuals in our government's councils, while they may know about what caused the fall of other nations, unlike Conservatives never know how to make constructive use of history.

So liberty-destroying handouts, under 20th century titles, including federal aid, welfare, war on poverty, depressed areas aid, and money for not farming are leading us towards a new "Great Society," without any assurance that in this Society men will be free, will have any Rights to Liberty, to Life or to the pursuit of Happiness.

The Romans wouldn't learn from Grecian history, but learned when Rome passed into history. Americans who won't learn from either Grecian or Roman history will learn, as America passes into history, the America from whose heritage we enjoy what blessings remain.

Big, Small Car Dispute Still Raging

By JERRY SHEEHAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK NEA) — Steel clashed with steel in a mighty crunch. Glass exploded and tinkled to the pavement. The Great Connecticut Car Crash had been, its promoters believed, a success.

Somebody in the state police had a suspicion that small cars—especially foreign ones—were dangerous to occupants and should be kept off the highway.

The results of this demolition foreign and domestic small car manufacturers. The little cars clearly came through the encounter second best.

At one point a driverless big sedan missed its mark and sped around the area like a monster seeking to turn on its master. It was captured and sent careening into its European victim.

Small car defenders yelled foul. They pointed out that the small car hand brakes had been set before the collision. This was like nailing a man's shoes to the floor before hitting him with a poleax. Also, the protective spare tire in front of rear-engined cars had been removed.

To undercut the big car-big safety theory, a Texas auto dealer flattened a luxury-sized car with a truck.

Safety experts have now stepped into the controversy in hopes of creating light instead of noise. Among them, Dr. James Malfetti of Columbia University. He concludes that "relative safety probably lies in the major use to which a car is put and in individual driving habits . . . If a crash does occur, the occupants are better off in a big car, particularly if it has collided with a small one, but the chances for staying out of an accident are better in a small car."

Dr. Malfetti, director of Columbia's Safety Education Project, added: "The composite safety difference (between big and little cars) may be so small that driving competence alone is the overriding factor."

However, Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, Buffalo, N.Y., after a study of nearly 13,000 injury-producing car crashes, states that there is no reason to believe that small cars avoid accidents easier than large ones. There is insufficient evidence, says Cornell, to show that either big or little cars have a higher accident rate.

But the Cornell study does indicate that fatal injuries are about 50 per cent higher in little cars involved in serious accidents. And fatalities occur 30 per cent more often in medium-sized cars compared to big cars.

One possible reason may lie in the higher ejection rate of small cars—60 per cent more frequent. And risk of injury, say the experts, is twice as great if one is flying through the air rather than riding out a crash in the disintegrating vehicle.

Dr. B. J. Campbell head of the Cornell Laboratory Accident Crash Program, is quick to point out that any disadvantages of auto safety."

This means seat belts, chest harnesses, door safety latches, padded dash boards, dished steering wheels and the rest of the small items of highway existence which have been proved effective in saving life and limb.

Most American and foreign companies now are either supplying seat belts as standard equipment or building in the anchors for them at the assembly line.

For reason known only to auto makers, very few cars are equipped with seat belt-chest harness combinations. This rig, standard on the Swedish Volvo, for example, has been shown far superior to the seat belt alone in times of abrupt stops or crashes.

Still no strides have been made in the United States in investigating the merits of yellow headlights for all cars. They have been proven less glaring to oncoming drivers. Renault alone is studying the safety factors of yellow lights, which are used in France.

A suggestion by a safety expert that green rear lights be considered as a means of making some order out of the chaos of night driving apparently has been ignored by the industry.

Although some authorities, such as the National Safety Council, are quick to blame excessive speed for a large proportion of accidents, other voices have called for a reappraisal of existing speed limits. Perhaps speed limits should be increased in some areas, they argue, to cut down on accidents.

The big car-small car controversy is not likely to find quick resolution. The job of staying alive on the nation's roads is a complicated one.

Johnson Picks Up Precedents Of Roosevelt

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is picking up precedent from his political idol and tutor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the fields of official oratory and diplomatic niceties.

The White House announced Tuesday that:

—Johnson will deliver a nighttime address to Congress — and the people — on the State of the Union on Jan. 4 rather than the usual noontime report. Not since Roosevelt delivered a State of the Union address at 9 p.m. on Jan. 3, 1936 — Johnson picked the same hour — has one been presented at night.

—From now on new ambassadors to the United States will be received in the executive mansion proper, instead of the presidential office in the west wing, to present their credentials. Eight of them did so Tuesday in the Blue Room. Roosevelt received envoys in the same room.

When Johnson speaks on the night of Jan. 4, he will be addressing the first session of the 89th Congress — an address that will be carried by television and radio networks.

It was the second session of the 74th Congress that Roosevelt addressed on that January night 29 years ago. His speech, broadcast by national radio networks, was a ringing defense of the New Deal and its policies and a stinging attack on its opponent. He declared "I recommend to Congress that we advance, that we do not retreat."

He painted a gloomy picture of world affairs and said he considered world peace jeopardized by nations with autocratic governments fostering ill will. He warned of "a situation which has in it many of the elements that lead to the tragedy of general war."

Roosevelt was greeted with roars of applause when he entered the House chamber on the arm of his son, James. The House had a solemn appearance that night, its only color provided by the evening gowns and wraps worn by some of the women in the audience. Mrs. Roosevelt sat in the House gallery with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger.

Outside, Capitol police had a bit of trouble keeping the enthusiastic crowd in order. Many without tickets attempted to crash the gate in an effort to hear the president.

INVENTORY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Do you know what you own? Most people don't, says State Farm Fire and Casualty Co., and the worst time to try to remember is after a fire.

The company's advice: make an inventory of your possessions and update it periodically.
